Will Hayti Vote For Change Again In Mayor Race

By CHARLES BRADY

HAYTI -- In many ways the rivals for the mayor's office — Mayor Harry Dowdy, 55, and former Mayor Lee Roy Bain, 60, — have similar ideas but Bain has the most experience in city government.

Lee Roy Bain

Bain, who was defeated by two votes April 6 in the general election for mayor, has served in that position for seven two - year terms. He was an alderman eight years prior to that. Mayor Dowdy has never held a city office.

The two will be the only candidates in a special mayor's election set Sept. 14. The Missouri Supreme court today rejected a petition by Hayti City Attorney James (Tick) Vickery asking it to prohibit Judge J. O. Swink's injunction ordering City Clerk Ellis Webb to allow only Bain and Dowdy on the Sept. 14 election ballot.

Bain and Dowdy were the only candidates for mayor in the April election.

"I feel I have a very good chance to be elected," Bain said of the Sept. 14 election. "I think the reason it was so close before was because there was this trend going around when everyone likes a change."

Hayti voters must have been in this mood for they ousted not only the mayor April 6, but Collector Fred Chaffin was beaten by Bob Turnage and ward one alderman Boyd McCrary was defeated by Dale Williams.

Bain said he would like to see many of the improvements started under his administration completed with him in the mayor's seat.

He said industry and housing were real problems.

Bain said Dowdy was "new in town and doesn't really know the problems of the city."

Residents of this Southeast Missouri city have been delayed in knowing who was their mayor. Legal entanglements have mired down the answer.

Bain said that the reason he protested the results of the April 6 election was because eight voters in ward one voted in ward two.

On Sept. 1, Circuit Judge William H. Billings got both candidates together and after they agreed invoked a seldom used law which calls for another election to determine who will be the mayor for the next two years.

Attorney Vickery set the special election for Sept. 14 and prepared a notice for an election open to other candidates and giving them until Sept. 10 to file for mayor.

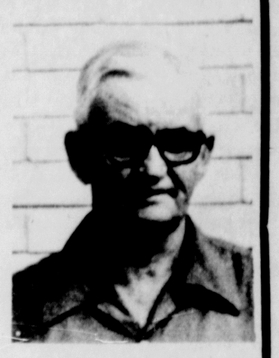

This brought protests from Dowdy and Bain, who claimed they were the only two eligible to run. Vickery said the law isn't clear and he believed the contest was open to all.

That was followed by Judge Swink's injunction Friday and Vickery's petition to the Missouri Supreme Court.

Bain said Dowdy asked for the special election and hinted that the reason Dowdy wanted it was because "we would have taken him to court."

Bain, who owns and operates Bain Motor Company, said "management of city government and operating the city on an economic

Two-Man Election Upheld

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri Supreme Court at 10 a.m. today denied Hayti City Attorney James (Tick) Vickery's application for a writ of prohibition ruling in effect that only Mayor Harry Dowdy and former Lee Roy Bain will be candidates in a special election for mayor in Hayti Sept. 14.

The action by the court was taken on petition by Vickery to prohibit Judge J. O. Swink's injunction ordering Hayti City Clerk Ellis Webb to allow only Bain and Dowdy on the Sept. 14 election ballot and to open it to other candidates.

No One Wants City Hall

The sale of the city administrative building on South Kingshighway was turned over to realtors last night by the city council when a call for bids was unsuccessful.

The city has not set a price for the building, but City Manager Raymert Miller said this morning, the building will be re-advertised in hopes of getting an acceptable bid.

The city administrative offices and the city jail will move to their new quarters in the old post office building on North New Madrid in mid-October and the present building then will be vacated.

Mike Bates, city summer recreation program chairman, reported on the progress and success of the program. The three-page report covered the faults and advantages of the program.

Bates reported:

"The program was a learning experience which gave us an objective look at some of the possibilities and some of the problems involved with a program of its nature. I personally feel that a similar program on a broader scale should be developed by the city for all its youngsters.

Mayor Lee Shell said:

"In time to come and I don't believe it's too far off, Sikeston will have a year-round recreational program."

The park board recommended to the city the removal of all drinking fountains from city parks. The recommendation, said the park board's letter, was a result of vandalism over the summer. A large number of the drinking fountains have been damaged or destroyed.

Miller said the collection of fees from city merchant licenses are coming in slightly slower than the same time last year, but added that collections were up nearly $7,000. Nearly 100 merchants have not paid the new licensing fee and Miller said the merchants would be assessed a late penalty amounting to 10 per cent of their license fee per month.

Sikeston's newest street east of Pine from Gladys to Virginia near the high school, was named Twitty Drive by unanimous consent of the council. The street was named in honor of former Superintendent of Schools Lynn Twitty. Clem Beal made the recommendation saying Twitty was "outstanding in his accomplishments to our school system and the community as a whole."

A group of Petty street residents protested to the council on the paving of a two-block portion of the street. The protestors said the street paving was unwanted by residents of the 300 block of the street and said the newly installed street was not as good as the previous one. Miller said the council received a petition from a majority of the residents of the street and added that no protest was heard when the action was first taken.

John Scott, president of the Sikeston chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, spoke to the council on publicity on a "red masked bandit", who terrorized the city in July.

Scott said reports of the bandit in the Daily Standard and on radio stations had a "damaging relationship" to the black community. Scott said that apparently all news reports of the account of the crimes originated with police and asked the city to examine police policies on such incidents.

Scott protested reports by police that the bandit was apparently a Negro male.

A 1,200 ft. unpaved section of Murray Lane in the new Clayton Heights division was approved for paving and Welter Drive, near Malone and Hyde also was approved for a paving project.

The city received an excellent rating from the Water Pollution Baord in Jefferson City.

Rape Case To Circuit

NEW MADRID — Five were bound over to circuit court on felony charges after waiving preliminary hearings in magistrate court before Judge Leo Hedgepeth.

Thomas L. Combs, Lilbourn, charged with forcible rape on a 17-year-old girl Sept. 4, was bound over under $500 bond, after he waived preliminary hearing.

Donald Matthews and Lynn Atchley each were bound over to circuit court under $500 bonds after waiving preliminary hearing on a felonious stealing charge. The two are accused of stealing a school bus battery valued at $50 July 15 from Lilbourn school.

Willie Harris and James MaHaney charged with burglary and larceny in connection with the Sept. 2 theft of a rifle and radio valued at $75 from the home of L. B. Milton, route two, New Madrid, were bound over to circuit court under $500 bonds each after waiving preliminary hearings.

Steven Lynn Mitchell was fined $150, given six months jail sentence and granted probation on charges of driving while intoxicated and illegal possession of beer. His driver's license was suspended for one year.

Princell Jones was levied a $125 fine on charges of driving while intoxicated and operating a vehicle with no operator license.

Judge Hedgepeth assessed a $175 fine against William C. Sheets, charged with operating overweight vehicle of 2,300 pounds.

David McCullough was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $45 on peace disturbance charge. He was give a $20 fine on speeding charge. Lenzie Watson paid $25 fine on peace disturbance charge. Speeding charge against Clarence Louis Vaughn resulted in a $20 fine.

Charged with failure to exercise care, Brain L. Clark was assessed a $20 fine.

Tommy Lee Daniels was levied a $15 fine on a charge of failure to transfer license.

Judy Catherine Poole charged with careless and imprudent driving was granted change of venue to Pemiscot county magistrate court.

Standley Renamed

JEFFERSON CITY — Former Sikeston board of education president L. M. Standley was today reappointed by Gov. Warren Hearnes to the Missouri Commission of Higher Education. Standley has served on the commission eight years. He was first appointed by former Gov. John Dalton.

Dr. C. Brice Ratchford, new president of the University of Missouri, Dr. H. Tudor Westover of Poplar Bluff and Laurence E. Mallinckrodt of St. Louis also were reappointed.

Standley was president of the Sikeston board 12 years and was active in the state school board association. He teaches social studies at the high school.

Enlarged Dial Area Discussed

By Staff Writer

BERNIE — United Telephone Company representatives R. E. Cannon, district manager from Steele, and C. D. Williams, commercial manager from Kansas City, met with Mayor R. B. Woods and the town board last night to discuss expanded area free dialing.

The representatives presented a plan for area free dialing but it was rejected as "too high" by the board.

The plan, for the Bernie-Malden - Parma area, called for an additional monthly charge $2.05 for residents and $6.63 for businesses.

The board voted to investigate the telephone situation to see if anything else can be done.

A letter was presented to the board from the Missouri Inspection Bureau, Jefferson City, asking the city to replace its 1953 fire truck.

Bids were opened for city gasoline for the coming year. Low bidder was Mutual Farmers Association with 16 cents a gallon for premium grade gasoline.

Second Generator Unit

NEW MADRID-- A second 6000,000-kilowatt multi-million electrical generating unit seems certain for the giant industrial complex in the City of New Madrid Industrial Park.

Plans for the second unit were disclosed last night at the city council meeting when the council was told that a long-term lease was being negotiated for the site adjourning the unit nearing completion, which will be put into operation next year.

Cost of the proposed second unit has not been determined. Cost estimates of the present unit originally were $98 million but ballooned to more than $150 million. High labor costs and low productivity have been blamed for much of the

Last year an option was exercised for the purchase of a second steam turbine generating unit from the Brown-Boveri corp., in Switzerland for about $8 million. This turbine generator will be the heart of the second generating station.

By exercising this option given at the time the first steam turbine generator was contracted, an estimated $4 to $6 million savings will be realized based on current prices.

This generating station is being built will city revenue bonds with Associated Electric Cooperative, Springfield, project managers. Associated Electric will operate the plant under

Tax Statements Go Out In October

BENTON — Approximately 12,000 personal and 15,000 real estate 1971 tax statements will be mailed around Oct. 15, Scott County Collector Tom Marshall announced today.

Marshall said there are no significant changes in the tax statements or the number that will be mailed this year.

His August report of collections totaled $29,570.95.

The state will get $192.80; Scott county, $2,835.09; health, $594.25; library, $437.45; Johnson grass, $151.83; county special roads, $1,707.80; and county drainage, $312.24.

Illmo-Scott City R-1 school district will receive $7,101.22; Chaffee R-2, $1,973.66; Oran R-3, $1,034.33; Kelly R-4, $1,159.92; Morley R-5, $3,194.30; Sikeston R-6, $8,526.27; and Kelso C-7, $230.69.

Marshall said 1970 delinquent taxes collected in September bear a two per cent penalty and nine per cent interest charge.

Coffee Break Wins Praise

The Marston wake and break stop was manned by the Bootheel C.B. club in Sikeston for the last time this year on Interstate 55 over the Labor Day weekend with 1,188 cups of coffee served.

Fire Chief Dolph Webb said the break stop was opened at 8 a.m. Saturday and operated until 5 p.m. Monday.

Those who stopped found the break stop unusual and most offered comments such as "very good" and "keep it up," Webb said. Travelers from throughout the United States took advantage of the break over the weekend, including travelers from India and Berlin, Germany.

AMERICAN BUSINESSMEN SCORE HIGH

At a time when downgrading America has become such a favorite pastime of the media, the U. S. News & World Report (Aug. 9th) reports encouragingly on how foreign businessmen around the world assess their American counterparts. It comes as a welcome boost to national self-respect and pride.

Americans are esteemed for know-how, frankness and informality. Italians admire the way Americans strike quickly to the heart of the problem: "Your people use nouns and verbs, don't waste time on adjectives."

American businessmen are admired for the way our executive "brass" pitches in to help subordinates. A Japanese businessman rated Americans tops for logic and efficiency.

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. For all their criticisms of America, it is clear that foreigners are becoming more Americanized in advertising and marketing. The American way of doing business facilitates business everywhere. It is one of our most welcome exports.

BACK TO SCHOOL

School opened last week and the annual exhortations are in order for drivers to watch out for youthful pedestrians, and for students to treat school as more than just a place to waste six or seven hours a day. Hopefully these appeals will be heeded a little more this year than in the past, for their age and familarity do not decrease their importance.

The vacation for the students and the teachers is over with the renewal of doing homework and taking tests, of grading papers and mollifying parents.

The weatherman has provided some help with a change from the traditional oppressive heat of the season. The cool will also allow mothers to enjoy the relief of getting the children out of the house without any guilt feelings about sticking them in some sweltering classroom while Mom enjoys her new freedom in air-conditioned comfort.

JAPAN AND NIXON'S NEW ECONOMIC POLICY

There will be a lot of homework done before the Joint U.S. - Japan Committee on Trade and Economic Affairs meets in Washington on Thursday, Sept. 9. On Aug. 10, Joseph Slevin wrote in The Washington Post: "The administration is going to demand that Japan change its foreign economic policies but it can't decide how tough the United States ought to get." President Nixon's announcement five days later that the United States was cutting the dollar free of gold and establishing a 10 per cent surcharge on imports showed just how tough Washington intended to get. The surcharge will effect 90 per cent of Japanese exports to the United States or about one-third of all Japan's export trade. the combined effect of both measures is expected to cut U. S. imports from Japan by nearly $2 billion a year.

Japan's currency and trading methods are believed to be the main targets of Nixon's drastic actions. Japan's continuing balance of trade surplus -- $1.5 billion last year and expected to be even greater this year -- had sharpened demands in this country for either a revaluation of the yen or elimination of some of Japan's trade restrictions. The administration is hoping that the new 10 per cent surcharge on imported goods will force the Japanese to revalue the yen. It has indicated that an upward revaluation of at least 10 per cent would lead to removal of the surcharge. In the absence of a definite assurance, however, the Japanese are afraid they will be stuck with both an upvalued yen and extra duties.

The protectionists' arguement that the United States has been the victim of Japanese trade restrictions overlooks a few facts. An unpublished State Department analysis quoted in the August issue of Fortune shows that by the end of this year, the difference between Japanese and American tariff rates on industrial products will be less than 3 per cent. During the past 10 years, the United States has added new quotas on imports while Japan has been tearing hers down. It is obvious that new trade and investment arrangements between the two countries must be made. But any workable agreement will require concessions by both.

Experienced businessmen hold differences of opinion concerning the effects of advertising.

One opinion is that no one can be expected to remember the details of advertising and that advertising is effective only when it gradually implants certain attitudes in the unconscious mind of the public.

On the other extreme an aggressive retailer may argue that advertising is not effective unless the public acts on the detailed offerings of a particular advertisement.

Both of these opinions persist because both are based on truth. Advertising may work in either or both ways. The best of retail advertising should result in immediate action on individual ads, while, over a period of time, creating a favorable overall image of a business.

It is true that very few people remember the details of an advertisement, even when the ad is studied carefully. Thus, it is important for the retailer who wants specific action on his advertising to choose a medium which is retained and used for reference.

That is why the newspaper is the best medium for retail item advertising. Grocers are well aware of the importance of item listings in the newspaper. Even though newspaper ads are posted in a grocery store, it is a familiar sight to see shoppers walking through the same store with a newspaper ad in hand for ready reference.

Under usual conditions, the community newspaper is the only retail advertising medium which is retained in the home long enough to have any reference value. It is also the medium which is likely to bring the most long range prestige to local advertisers.

OCEAN MAMMAL DEBATE

Last spring reporters and members of various humane societies witnessed seal hunts on the eastern Canadian coast, and returned with pictures and films which inspired a vehement public outcry against the annual slaughter. The Animal Protection Institute of America sponsored an ad which warned that "the seal may soon take his place with the other 550 extinct or threatened species of the animal kingdom." In response, several congressmen and senators have introduced bills aimed at protecting seals and other marine mammals. A subcommittee of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee will hold a hearing on the bills Thursday, Sept. 9.

Seal hunting takes place in many parts of the world, but American protesters focus on the northwestern Atlantic where Canadians operate, and the Pribilof Islands off the coast of Alaska. There the native Aleuts are paid by the federal government to kill some 40,000 seals each year. The government then auctions off the skins to foreign buyers, and keeps any profits to maintain the islands. Seal fur is used on coats and other elegant apparel.

The National Marine Fisheries Service insists that the Pribilof fur seal herd is in no danger of extinction. "Under scientific management which determines the numbers, sexes, and ages of animals to be harvested each year, the Pribilof herds have increased from fewer than 200,000 animals in 1911 to about 1.3 million at present," writes Walter Kirkness, an official of the Service. He emphasizes that all killing is done as humanely as possible, and that no baby seals are killed, as they are in Canada.

The Ocean Mammal Protection Act of 1971, introduced simultaneously in the House and Senate, would prohibit the "harassing, collection or killing" of seals, whales, walruses, polar bears, porpoises and dolphins in U. S. territory or waters. It would ban the import of seal skins into the country, and call for the initiation of treaties with other nations to protect such threatened species. According to Sen. Fred R. Harris (D Okla.), "It is the sale of fur coats or the suede purse for the American dollar which provides the economic incentive for the killing of hundreds of thousands of seals."

Kirkness told Editorial Research Reports he doubts that a ban on foreign imports to the United States would greatly reduce seal hunting. He estimates that about 80 per cent of seal fur products are bought outside of this country -- mainly in Euorpe. Experts familiar wi h the Pribilofs also question a provision in the bill wh ch would turn them into a National Seal Rookery a d Bird Sanctuary, with the natives working as rangers nd guides. The islands are too remote and chilly for a l but the most determined tourists.

From Credit River, Minn., comes a ruling from a federal district court that the federal reserve note — the most common folding money in circulation — is "null and void and unlawful tender." The ruling has been given the glare of publicity by U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson of Texas who thinks the ruling deserves the attention of the U. S. Supreme Court. Rep. Burleson says a Savage, Minn., man borrowed $14,000 in 1964 from a bank and in 1967, the bank foreclosed on the loan's collateral of real estate. A year later, a jury refused to grant the bank the land because it had not lent the borrower lawful money. The bank appealed to the federal court, but made the mistake of paying the filing fee with $2 in federal reserve notes. The court refused the money, citing the Constitution which states that "no state shall make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts." Thus the court officially noticed what everyone else has known for years: federal reserve notes are not redeemable for gold or silver and aren't really legal. It is an interesting turn of events, but an unreal one which makes a sad comment upon the times: since everyone uses illegal money, it must really be legal. Mustn't it?

ANOTHER CHANCE SHOULD BE LAST

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' appeal to Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe to reconsider plans for withholding $11.5 million in federal highway funds from Missouri deserves sympathetic attention.

Hearnes wrote Volpe that he expected the General Assembly to pass federally acceptable billboard legislation in the regular session beginning next January.

The state lawmakers' failure to enact laws conforming to federal billboard regulations led to Washington's notification that 10 per cent of Missouri's $115 annual road-building allotment would be withheld in the current fiscal year.

The governor pointed out that bills introduced in the last session and conferences held with federal highway officials indicated good faith on the part of the state. The problems, he said, were that there was some confusion over waiting for a federal opinion on whether the proposals met Washington standards. Time ran out before decision on billboard legislation. The Assembly, however, has long been dilatory and blameworthy so.

Hearnes has made a reasonable request. The loss of $11.5 million in federal highway dollars would be a severe setback to state road projects.

It must be made unmistably clear now that if Volpe gives Missouri another chance it will be the last chance.

The state must approve the federally required billboard regulations next year or suffer the consequences.

LAND-GRANT MYTH

one of the hoariest myths in the annals of U. S. transportation is the claim that railroads enjoy astronomical financial benefits from early land grants. A question that is occasionally asked is whether the rails, because of these grants a century ago, are not obligated to run passenger trains as a public service, irrespective of the losses they incur.

In a brief rail booklet entitled "20 Questions and 19 Answers, "the subject of land grants is touched upon in the following words: "The land - grant myth has been around a long time. But less than 8 per cent of the nation's total rail mileage was involved in either federal or state land grants. And the lands were not a 'gift.' In exchange, railroads receiving the lands -- as well as those competing with them -- were required to haul government freight and personnel at half rates and mail at a 20 per cent reduction for almost 90 years. It was not until after World War II that Congress ended the arrangement as unfair. It has been estimated that compensation paid by the railroads through these reduced rates amounted to $1.25 billion -- almost 10 times the value of the land received. The government immediately doubled the price of the land it retained. And it began to find buyers, thus opening up a new territory for development. This, after all, was the point."

Land grants to railroads were one of the best business deals ever entered into by the federal government. They helped to encourage the building of railroads across the trackless West, which opened up the country for settlement and business growth, to the benefit of the government and the nation. The railroads more than met their end of the obligation.

LABOR PROTESTS PROFITS

Most of the opposition to President Nixon's orders freezing wages and prices has been coming from organized labor.

Some of this is the result of the sweeping effect of those orders, canceling wage increases which already had been negotiated in some cases and holding off automatic raises that would have resulted from added experience on the job. Those controls are tougher than any imposed in the past.

But some of the opposition also is the result of exemption of corporate profits and interst rates from the control system.

ON THE FIRST point, labor has little reason to complain. The freeze order is for just 90 days and so long as everyone is treated alike under the rules during that period, none should feel unduly imposed upon.

It is good to see that the administration has been holding close to the hard line on this, making just as few exceptions as possible. It will be helpful if the various branches of the federal government get together and clear their policy statements with the Cost of Living Council before they are issued in the future, so as to avoid another bobble such as appeared when the Defense Department announced it would continue to give pay increases.

ON THE SECOND point, though, labor has a valid complaint. It is a matter that must be given consideration by the administration if this freeze is to be kept in effect even in revised form after the 90-day period ends.

Where wage increases have been budgeted for but not yet given, the money will have to show up in some other category. Since it is unlikely that prices will be cut during a period of freeze, the place that money is going to show up is in earnings of the firms involved.

Not all the negotiated wage increases had been budgeted, of course, because some price increases which had been announced to cover recent settlements had not gone into effect either and are being held in abeyance. But nobody seems to know how much is involved in the already - budgeted accounts.

The profit picture when the freeze went into effect was quite good. Profits before taxes had dipped sharply in durable goods manufacturing industries during the last quarter of 1970, but they bounced back sharply early this year. Indeed, the profits in those industries during the first quarter of this year were 16.9 billion dollars, compared with 8.8 billion in the last quarter of 1970, reflecting recovery and catchup from some strikes.

Corporate profits after taxes plus the corporate capital consumption allowances shot up to 103.8 billion dollars in the first quarter of this year, easily a record for the last decade.

So business has been profiting from inflation, too.

TREASURY SECRETARY John Connally says now that profits will be controlled because prices are frozen. This does not necessarily follow, however, for profits are determined not only by prices but also by volume of sales and if the freeze is accomplishing the objective of stimulating business the volume of sales should increase in the months ahead.

The possibility that business will be skimming the returns of the wage freeze thus is something that must be kept in mind by those in Washington who are responsible now for the administration of this difficult program.

IT IS ALL RIGHT for labor to keep pressure on the administration to watch over the profit and interest figures and see to it that they don't get out of line.

But the labor leaders should keep in mind that action in this area is needed first of all by Congress. The freeze orders were imposed by the President under the authority which Congress had given him many months ago. That authority did not encompass profits and interest rates.

So the labor leaders should be exerting at least part of their efforts now to getting Congress to amend the presidential authority so that if it appears an inflationary bulge is developing in those areas the President will be able to include those items in the revised rules that may be needed after the 90-day period.

Computer-age timepiece is here! It doesn't tick nor have a motor sound, has no moving parts, no motors, no hands or dial face, yet you can tell time with it. It has no clanging or buzzing alarms, just a quiet beep-beep—beep.

It is the first timepiece which was integrated circuit technology, according to its manufacturer, the General Electric Co.

The numerals are shown by lighted segments of four 7-bar blue-green fluorescent tubes—similar to modern scoreboards out at the ball park. It is a luxury item.

RELIGIOUS PERSECUTION CONTINUES IN THE SOVIET UNION

Anyone familiar with Russian history and culture before communism knows that the Russian people were deeply religious. The Soviets, therefore, set about systematically trying to eliminate religious belief from Russia, hoping thereby to remove the major obstacle to communism. This religious persecution has continued ever since and is still going on today.

Article 124 of the Soviet constitution promises religious freedom to all Soviet citizens. Yet like most provisions, oftheir constitution, it is for propaganda purposes only. Before communism, almost every Russian village had its Orthodox church; now there are only about 7,000 churches open in the country. In many of these, the priests are actually agents for the government.

The Communists are even more ruthless toward other Christian churches. Many Baptists are in prison camps. When parents attempt to teach their children Christianity, their children are taken away from them and placed in state institutions where they are indoctrinated in atheism.

Russian Jews face an equally dismal situation. Only 60 synagogues and rabbis are permitted for the country's three million Jews, and no new rabbis are being trained.

Yet in spite of persecution, many of the Russian people refuse to surrender their religious heritage. They still attend religious services where these are permitted, and a large percentage of babies is baptized.

Those Russians who are valiantly attempting to preserve their faith in spite of Communist persecution deserve the admiration and support of religious people every where. Their ordeal should be kept in mind by all those who wish to "build bridges" to communism, pretending that it has "Mellowed."

EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Fathers deserve protection.

If women's groups are liberating mama and youth organizations are protecting the kids, somebody ought to raise some concern about dear old Dad.

Day care centers spring mother from watching after the kids and new appliances eliminate housework. Boys and girls are pretaught and organized almost from the moment of conception to reach total utilization, full enjoyment, the complete absence of pain or frustration.

With all that going on, daddy ought to get his turn.

There needn't be any such formal association as the National Organization of Women— NOW—or Protection against Parents—PAP. But there should be at least some consideration given to the preservation and even encouragement of fathers, to the elimination of those things which make fatherhood less than totally pleasant sometimes.

Such considerations should be reasonable. It would be totally impractical, for instance, to come out against elimination of leftovers on Friday nights, or for prohibition of TV dinners or cold cuts on bridge club days or for any ban on Parent's Day at the school or Father's Night at the YWCA.

But a rule against more than one kid at a time horsey-riding would help a lot. It might even improve the life expectancy averages and certainly should cut down on back ache as a leading cause of employe absenteeism.

And some rule about not jumping on daddy's stomach when he's down, would be useful, too. As would some age limit on playing football with the neighborhood kids and some sort of definition of the rules of playing rough with the old man after supper.

Legislation could help in some areas.

The first law should require that all toys must be sold assembled. No more boxed bicycles or jungle gyms in a carton.

Penalties for violation should be severe. The guy who sells a swing set in a crate ought to be sentenced to assemble an electric road racing set—without instructions. Leniency would be granting him all the parts.

It's possible that Congress and the various state legislatures would react slowly to these proposals, but not really too likely if you think about it.

After all, most elected officials are fathers, too.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- At the same time that the U.S. command is striving mightily to stop GI drug addiction in Vietnam, a top South Vietnamese general had been using U, S. military equipment to hustle heroin.

This is documented in a number of intelligence reports, all highly classified, which have now reach Washington from Saigon. The reports nail Major Gen. Ngo Dzu, military commander of South Vietnam's central highlands, as one of the chief heroin traffickers in Southeast Asia.

The incriminating details, including dates and places of heroin transactions, have been reported by the Army's Criminal Investigation Division, U.S. Public Safety Directorate and Rural Development Support Team in South Vietnam.

Dzu's accomplices are also named, including a former South Vietnamese Senator, a Chinese businessman from Cholon, the South Vietnamese provost marshal in Qui Nhon and several South Vietnamese navy officers.

Dzu was first named as a heroin dealer by Rep. Robert Steele, R-Conn., in testimony last July before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee. The Congressman told of his fact-finding mission to Indochina where, he said, widespread corruption among officials had blocked efforts to halt the heroin traffic.

The day after Steele's testimony, South Vietnam's President Thieu went through the motions of ordering a narcotics investigation. It's doubtful, however, that Dzu will ever be tried and convicted.

U.S. AIDE'S ROLE

One of Dzu's most vigorous defenders was his senior American advisor, John Paul Vann, who assured the press: "There's no information available to me that in any shape manner or fashion would substantiate the charges Congressman Steele has made."

The incriminating intelligence reports would indicate that Vann either was woefully incompetent or worse, was helping Dzu to cover up his dope smuggling operations.

The first intelligence report linking Dzu to the heroin trade was filed on January 6, 1971, by the CID. Citing highly sensitive sources, the CID charged that the narcotics traffic in the central highlands had increased tremendously since DZU had taken command of the region in September, 1970.

The CID's sources asserted that Dzu not only protected the key traffickers who kicked back part of their profits to him but also took a direct part in the smuggling through his father, Ngo Khoung. At that time, Ngo Khoung was described as an "important " heroin dealer.

It was also alleged that Dzu often used his personal plane--furnished, of course, by the U.S.-- to smuggle heroin. A CID report, dated May 12, 1971, told how Dzu and his father took ingenious advantage of the funeral of a South Vietnamese general in Saigon to fly in heroin from the highlands.

Yet General Dzu, a power in South Vietnam, is expected to be given a whitewash.

KICKBACK CASE

We exposed in March, 1970, that "Gentleman Jim" Collins, the monied and mannerly Congressman from Dallas, had been taking illegal kickbacks from some of his employees. A federal grand jury has now wound up its secret investigation of the case.

Collins at first rushed around getting his employees to sign statements that they hadn't kicked back any of their government salary.

One who was slick-talked into signing such a statement was Noel Lee Reed, a part-time employee in the Congressman's Dallas office. Collins also traveled to Mineral Wells, Tex., to talk to a former employee, Carolyn Conner. But she couldn't be conned.

Both have now told the truth under oath to the grand jury. The Justice Department, however, is preparing to indict Collins's former aide, George Haag, who collected and disbursed the kickback money. Although Collins knew about the collections, he didn't directly supervise the kickback fund. The Justice Department, therefore, will let him off the hook.

YOUNG EXTREMISTS

The political pros are rubbing their eyes in disbelief over private polls which show more than 20 percent of the new teenage voters will cast their first presidential ballots for Gov. George Wallace, the Alabama segregationist.

At least another 20 per cent are expected to support Eugene McCarthy if he should establish a fourth, ultra-liberal party. The young people, apparently, are polarizing.

Alarmed, the party pros are urging new stress on moderation during the 1972 campaign.

Michigan's Gov. William Milliken, for one, has called for party unity in a letter to Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican National Chairman. The moderate Milliken, in line to be the next chairman of the Republican Governors Conference, wants a new national strategy that will appeal to blacks, youths, and other disaffected groups.

Milliken's campaign against [illegible] politics however, has been interpreted by some Agnew admirers as a slap at the Vice President, whose rhetoric doesn't exactly appeal to blacks and youths. Thus ironically the attempt to stop divisiveness may be causing more divisiveness.

Damico Refuses To Talk

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Anthony P. Damico, 25, the only link police have to the murdered Mrs. Sally Lucas, refused to talk to investigators Tuesday.

The body of Mrs. Lucas, 36, was found Sunday off a road in West St. Louis County. The mother of two teen-age daughters, and wife of St. Louis businessman Lawrence Lucas, had been missing nearly three weeks.

Damico is being held at the county jail for stealing Mrs. Lucas' car and forging Mr. Lucas' name on a credit card purchase. Before the body was found, Damico told police he last saw Mrs. Lucas alive and in the company of three other men near Memphis, Tenn. Damico was arrested in Florida after being found asleep in the Lucas car.

A lie detector test has been refused by Damico, who has as his lawyer Daniel V. O'Brien, former St. Louis County prosecuting attorney.

Girl Killed In School Bus Mishap

SHELDON, Mo. (AP) — A seventh grade schoolgirl died of a cut throat today when a school bus carrying about 40 children went into a ditch near Sheldon in Southwest Missouri.

The highway patrol said the victim, Karen Mayfield, sustained the fatal injury when the impact of the crash broke out the vehicle's back window.

An undetermined number of children and the driver, Walter Ford, were injured. Several were taken to the Lamar Clinic in Barton County.

Ford, who was cited by the patrol for failure to exercise the highest care in driving the bus, said he was distracted by an unruly child on the bus before the vehicle went off the road.

It came to rest leaning against a side of the ditch.

The girl killed was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Deb Mayfield of rural Sheldon.

Controversy At Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The controversy over whether contestants in the Miss America Pageant here can wear hot pants ended when pageant officials withdrew a ban against the new fashion.

"You can wear anything you please," Albert A. Marks Jr., chairman of the Pageant Executive Committee, told the 50 contestants at rehearsals Tuesday. Marks started a furor last week when he said, "Hot pants are out."

One contestant, Miss Suan Inman, Miss SouthDakota, showed up in one event in what appeared to be hot pants.

Sgt. and Mrs. James W. Murphy

Murphy-Braswell

Miss Lea Ann Braswell and Sgt. James W. Murphy were married Aug. 14 at 1 p.m. in the First United Methodist church with the Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor of the church, officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Braswell of Sikeston and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy of Bertrand.

The father of the bride sang the theme from Romeo and Juliet "A Time For Us" before escorting his daughter down the aisle. After the vows had been said Braswell sang The Lord's Prayer as the couple knelt before the altar. The organist was Mrs. Elmer Poage.

Lea Ann chose for her wedding a formal length delustered satin and chantilly lace gown. An empire bodice was enhanced with a sheer jeweled lace yoke both front and back, and a high collar touched with lace and jewels.

The bishop sleeves were edged with deep lace trimmed cuffs that were pointed over the hands. A bias band of satin encircled the waist. The demi-bell skirt was softly gathered at the waist and hand clipped motifs were sprinkled about the front of the skirt and the set-in train, which swept to a full chapel length.

Her headpiece was a Juliet cap of Venice lace daisies and an elbow - length veil of imported English silk illusion accented with petite pink satin ribbon. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and baby breath centered around a pink orchid.

The couples only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Alley. Ushers seating the guests were Eddie Sherrod and Philip White.

A reception was held following the ceremony in Epworth Hall at the church. Misses Jennifer and Nola Braswell, sisters of the bride, assisted Mrs. Bill Marsh and Mrs. Robert White, at the refreshment table. Nancy Braswell, younger sister of the birde, attended the guest book.

A buffet was held later in the afternoon at the Braswell home for those attending from out -of -town. Those guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Braswell, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Braswell and family, all of Flat River. Mrs. Barbara Braswell and Miss Michelle Gross and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin AuBuchon and family from Desloge; Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Thurman from Poplar Bluff; Mr. and Mrs. David Braswell, Mr. and Mrs. John Braswell, and Mrs. Lynn Miller from Cape Girardeau; Mrs. Rex Mainord of East Prairie and Mrs. Mayme Dixon of Chicago, Ill.

Sergeant and Mrs. Murphy left the next day for Grand Forks, N.D. where he is stationed with the air force.

Obligatory Surnames

In 1463, King Edward V of England made a surname obligatory for all his subjects. He suggested that they take unto themselves a surname either of some town, color, art or science.

Sebaugh Pobst

ORAN-- Baskets of yellow and white daisies, chrysanthemums and gladioli enchanced the altar at the Guardian Angel Catholic Church Aug. 21 when Miss Marsha Louise Pobst and Spec. 4 Leslie Dale Seabaugh exchanged wedding vows.

Mrs. Elmer Seyer was organist for the double ring ceremony, performed by the Rev. Gervase Ingoldsby. Miss Nancy Mason was soloist, and commentator for the nuptial mass was Elmer Seyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pobst of Oran are parents of the bride, and Mrs. Eunice Grissom of Chaffee, and Dale Seabaugh of Viburnum are the bridegroom's parents.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported organza and lace with a lace mandarin collar, a lace bodice, full bishop sleeves with lace- covered cuffs and scalloped hemline with a chapel-length train.

Her Juliet cap of matching lace was edged with braided pearls and pearl floral motifs, with a veil of illusion attached. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and purple statice and wore a necklace which had belonged to her grandmother.

Miss Gina Pobst, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. Michael Grojean, Marion, Ill., also a sister of the bride, and Miss Jane Davis of Oran were bridesmaids.

Rhonda Pobst, Cape Girardeau, was junior bridesmaid, and was escorted by brothers of the bridegroom.

Lynette Pobst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Pobst, Chaffee, was flower girl, and Rodney Pobst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Pobst, Cape Girardeau, was ringbearer.

John Campbell, Ft. Hood, Tex., was best man, and groomsmen were Ronald and Terry Pobst, brothers of the bride. Grojean and Terry Payne of Charleston were ushers.

A reception was held at the Guardian Angel school hall. Mrs. Ann Miederhoff, Mrs. Herbert Hahn, Mrs. Henry Eftink , and Mrs Hulsof served guests, and Mrs. Donald Kielhofner was at the guest book.

Mrs. Seabaugh attended Oran high school and Spec. 4 Seabaugh is stationed with the Army at Ft. Hood, where the couple will live.

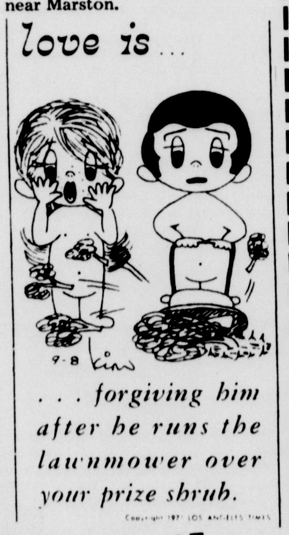

Edmond-Pikey

NEW MADRID — Mrs. Buelah Pikey and William Earl Edmond were married at 7 p.m. Saturday at her home by the Rev. Robert Burnes, pastor of Grace Baptist church.

A reception was held following the ceremony.

Guests attending were Mrs. Ruth Patterson, Brenda Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Speakman, William Earl Edmond Jr., Pamela Pikey and Dianne and Latisha Roseman all of New Madrid, and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Faucett of Risco.

The couple will live on route one. Edmond is employed at the power plant construction site in St. Jude Industrial Park near Marston.

Student Council Officers Elected

NEW MADRID--- New Madrid high school student council officers are president, Fred Nolley, senior; vice president, Donald Lee Tucker, senior;secretary, Jackie Coon, senior; and treasurer, Horrell H. Townsend III, sophomore.

Nolley was elected in April by the student body. Other officers were elected Tuesday by class representatives.

Fresh man representatives on the council will be elected Sept. 13. Filing deadline is Monday.

Topics discussed at the first meeting were a homecoming celebration, a student suggestion box, and a meeting place for students in lieu of study hall periods.

Louis H. Hunt, guidance counselor, is sponsor for the council. Other members are Becky Mitchell, senior; Gladys McKinney, Fred Copeland and Phillip Carter, juniors; and Billy Buchanan and Timmy Fowler, sophomores.

Norman--Snyder

CAPE GIRARDEAU --- Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lee Norman, 1514 Bertling, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beverly Ann Norman, to Sgt. Roger Lynn Snyder, son of Mrs. Lloyd Strop, and E. G. Snyder, Benton.

Miss Norman, a 1968 graduate of Central high school, is employed by Jerry Lipps Truck Service.

Snyder, a 1966 graduate of the same school, attended State College two years. He served with the navy three years, and following his discharge reenlisted in the air force and is now attending the data processing school at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver.

A December wedding is planned.

Ladies Golf

Winners in the Sikeston Ladies Golf Association Tuesday were championship class, Doris Stepp, 71, handicap, 15; A class, Evelyn Howington, 71, handicap 21; B class, Jo Spitzmiller, 69, handicap 31; C class, Barbara Hambrick, 89, handicap 36. The nine-hole golf winner was Barbara Tull, 54.

Filipino Nurses Train At Kansas City Hospital

KANSAS CITY (AP) — If things haven't been quite the same around Kansas City's General Hospital these past few months, those who work there are pretty sure where the credit belongs.

It all has to do with a group of 15 bright and enthusiastic young Filipino nurses who arrived in February for the start of a two-year pilot work and study program. Staff members in the sprawling 270-bed facility will tell you they've never seen anybody quite like them.

The circumstances are these:

The nurses, mostly in their 20s, work four days a week and spend a fifth in the classroom.

Such arrangements have been common for several years in a few other large cities in the U.S., but General Hospital officials say this one is the first of its kind in Missouri. A primary goal, they say, is to convince the State Board of Nursing to authorize such programs on a continuing basis.

Miss Mary Louise Burk, administrator of patient care services, who has worked with a similar program in Philadelphia, describes the experience as an undiluted plus for all concerned.

The young women in the Kansas City group are all nursing graduates with at least one year of experience in hospitals in the Phillipines. They are exposed to new techniques and technology, Miss Burk says, and everybody else, patients and staff alike, shares in the benefits of their sheer spirit.

As Dr. Edwin Twin, the hospital's executive director, is quick to add, no special government funding is involved. The visiting nurses fill budgeted positions at a basic salary of $500 per month, and pay their own plane fares here and back.

A visitor to the hospital can be told and retold of the group's ebullience, but nothing could fully prepare him for his first face-to-face encounter with them en masse.

The scene calls for the 15 of them to be seated in an atmosphere of temporary quiet in a small classroom up in a remote corner of the hospital's fourth floor.

Now enter a reporter and photographer, wilted more than a little by the 98-degree heat outside.

Still peering through the mists of his own perspiration, the reporter asks if it ever gets this hot in the Phillipines.

"Yes. No. Always. Never. No, no, that isn't right," comes the group reply in several voices. There is general laughter.

A conference then, and it's agreed the temperature in the Phillipines ranges between 65 and 85, and the nurses have never seen snow before they came here, and they didn't like it at first, the snow that is, because of the cold, and now that it's this hot they prefer winter after all.

The reporter mentally crumples his list of planned questions.

And the group proceeds to tell about itself, with occasional benevolent guidance from their instructor, Mrs. Patricia Ismert.

The experience began for the young women with a complicated 48-hour air journey marked by many long delays and missed connections.

Ely Paz Baltazar of Laoag City tells of arriving in a place she still calls Shattle (later identified by reliable sources as Seattle, Wash.) to find her next plane already gone. As if in protest at the delay, her luggage strikes out on its own for St. Louis. Mrs. Ismert, meanwhile, is meeting a series of planes at Kansas City without turning up any of her new students.

The global confusion gradually unravels itself, however, as the party assembles in Kansas City.

Undismayed by their traveling travails, the young women quickly demonstrate at General their professional aptitude, Mrs. Ismert relates, and their nonworking hours are put to use in exploration.

There have been picnics, a fashion show they took part in, each has foster parents through the People to People program, they went boating. No, they have never gone to a baseball game; yes, some of them have. And then there was the Engelbert Humperdinck concert.

Did they meet the noted singer? went the next question.

No, we were in the back; yes, we shook hands with him.

"We wanted to kiss him," concluded Jocelyn Cordero, Kabankalan, Negros Occidental.

The young women agree heartily there are many more similarities than differences between their home land and the U.S., both in and outside the field of medicine.

Many talk of hopes and plans to make the U.S. their eventual home. A couple have husbands in the Philipines, and many are from large families, observes, the opportunity more than balances any loneliness.

Female Genes Wider At Hips Than Male Genes

Dear Ann Landers: You should have double-checked your information on sex chromosomes. You would have found that one of the two X chromosomes is a deadhead and sits at the edge of the nucleus doing nothing. The Y chromosome (in people, but not in fruit flies) partially controls the things that make males. male.

Get up off your knees, Ann. Women are wonderful -- and you don't need to explain it on the basis of chromosomes. Besides, the only difference between male and female genes is that female genes are wider at the hips. —H. Ira Pilgrim, Ph. D. Associate Research Professor of Anatomy, University of Utah and an Ann Landers Fan

Dear Dr. Pilgrim: You might have landed on Plymouth Rock, Doc, but when I read your letter I felt as if Pilgrim rock had landed on ME. My agony was short-lived, however, because I checked with Dr. Bernard Strauss, Chairman of the Committee on Genetics at the University of Chicago, and this is what he said: "Dr. Pilgrim is right on both counts. The mixup, however, is due to semantics rather than scientific differences. You used the word "inferior" to describe the Y chromosome. This was a poor choice of words because the Y chromosome does have an important function. It is easy to get into trouble with the scientists when one prints material of this nature, no matter how factual. I am pleased to see that you take enough pride in your work to check."

So, dear readers, if you learned nothing else today you now know that female genes are wider at the hips. Isn't it marvelous, the bits of priceless information you get from reading this column?

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the person in Syracuse whose brother had not spoken to his parents for two years. Your answer burned me up. You said it is "unspeakably cruel" to cut parents out of one's life. What about parents who cut children out of THEIR lives? I don't mean by not speaking to them. I mean by simply ignoring them. I have the most selfish mother who ever lived. As for my father, if I saw him lying on the street I wouldn't stop to pick him up. They are both so self-righteous they make me sick to my stomach.

To listen to them talk, they have been the most devoted parents in the world -- make many sacrifices for us when we were young, all the garbage. But just let one of us kids ask for help and they run a mile in the opposite direction. (We are all grown, by the way, and none of us lives at home.)

Print this if you want to. I mean every word of it. And if either of my parents see it, it't o.k. with me. I despise them both. --An Invisible Child

Dear : The key words in your letter are "sick to my stomach." I believe you are sick somewhere else, as well. And I am not surprised. Such raw hate would make anyone sick.

I urge you to get some counseling. To live a life filled with so much hostility is like carrying a time bomb around in your head. You are toting a mighty dangerous load, my friend. I hope you will unburden yourself, soon.

Confidential to Sick of Other People's Dirt: Sorry -- it's not the job that's "lousy," it's your attitude. Housework is not "lowly, demeaning slavery." Good housekeeping is an art and when done well it can be a source of pride and satisfaction.

Drinking may be "in" to the kins you run with — but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read ' Booze And You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35/ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Drunk Drivers Can Avoid Jail By Taking Drug Treatment

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) -- A problem drinker convicted of drunk driving in Portland may choose a drug treatment for his drinking problem instead of paying a fine or going to jail.

Some 50 persons so convicted are taking daily doses of the drug antabuse, which makes a person ill if he later drinks alcohol.

The treatment is part of a federally financed program aimed at reducing the number of traffic accidents caused by drunk drivers. Another major aspect is stricter enforcement of traffic laws.

The Portland project, which began in February after six months of planning, is one of nine Alcohol Safety Action Projects funded last year by the Department of Transportation. Some 20 more projects were funded this year.

The Portland project works this way:

When a person is convicted of drunk driving, the judge orders a presentence investigation to determine whether the offender is a social or a problem drinker.

Social drinkers are given immediate sentences - fines, jail terms or license suspensions.

Problem drinkers are sent to the Alcohol Safety Action Project clinic, where extensive diagnostic work is performed. The results are sent to the court with a recommendation for sentencing.

If he refuses to go on the treatment program, which is usually a condition of probation, there is no alternative except to refer him back to the court.

Those who agree to the treatment report daily to a participating pharmacy where they drink the drug. The cost, 75 cents a day, is paid by the offender unless he is indigent.

The drug has been used in the treatment of alcoholics since 1946 but an official said, "This is the first time, to my knowledge, that it has been used extensively with a coerced population."

The drug is used in combination with other treatment such as job or marriage counseling, utilizing the resources of state, local and private agencies.

Bullard Receives Ph.D. Degree From S.I.U.

Eugene Bullard of Carterville, Ill., a former Sikeston resident, was awarded a doctor of philosophy degree in educational psychology from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

The degree concluded two years of study and research in guidance and counseling. Dr. Bullard received his bachelor of arts degree in history and social science from Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau in 1964 where he was graduated sumna cum laude. He earned a master of science degree in vocational rehabilitation counseling from Southern Illinois in 1966.

Doctor Bullard has joined the Shawnee College to teach psychology. He and Mrs. Bullard live in Carterville where she teaches sixth grade. Mrs. Bullard formerly taught fourth grade at Matthews elementary school in Sikeston.

Lynda J. Robb Cracks Vertebra

CHARLOTTESVILLE' Va. (AP) -- University of Virginia Hospital spokesmen say Lynda Johnson Robb will be hospitalized through this week for a cracked neck vertebra.

The daughter of former President Lyndon B. Johnson suffered the injury in a fall in the yard of her home last weekend and was brought to the hospital Sunday by her husband Charles.

Robb is a second-year law student at the university.

A hospital spokesman said the injury was not serious and that the 27 year-old Mrs. Robb was "up and around."

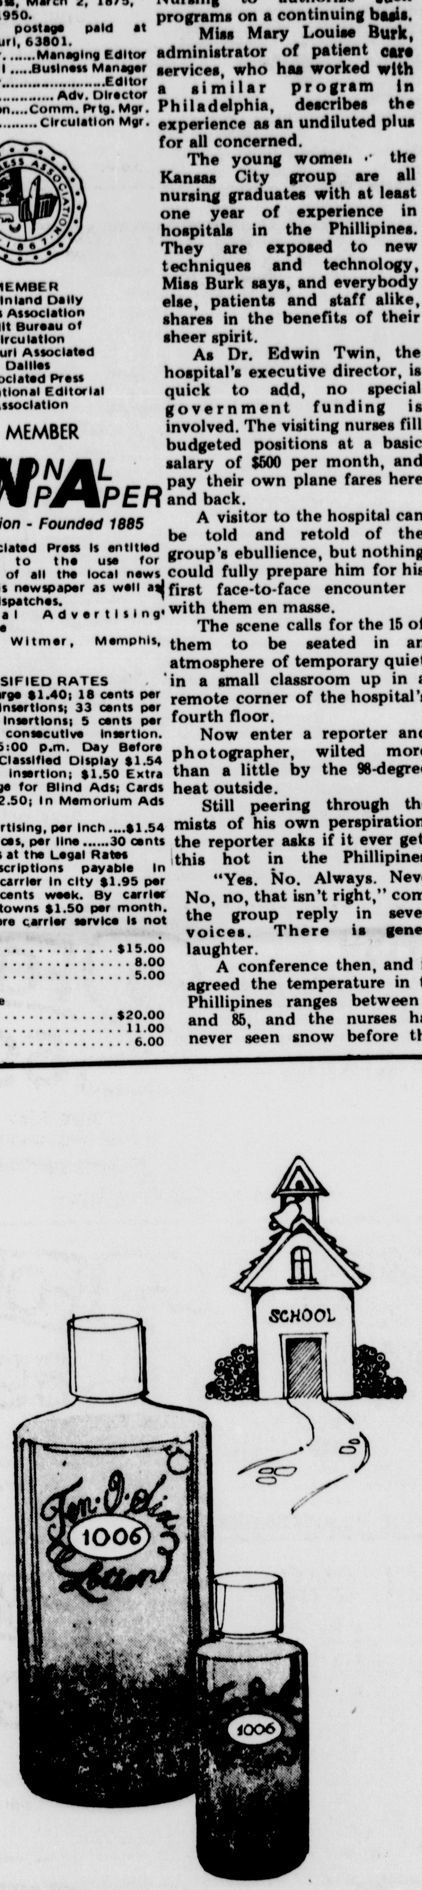

Janet West

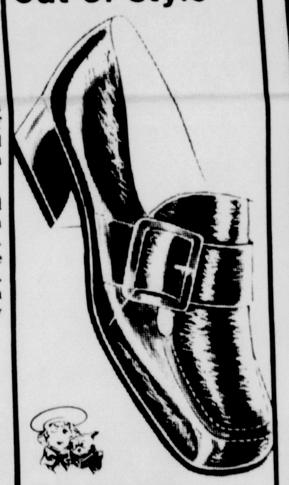

West-Hobble

Mr. and Mrs. Marion West, 129 North Frisco, announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Janet, to James Charles Hobble, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Hobble of Puyallup, Wash.

Miss West is a 1971 graduate of Sikeston high school and is employed by Wal-Mart. Hobble is a 1971 graduate of Sikeston high school and is employed by Semo Motor Co.

BUNKING PARTY

To help Miss Beverly Parker celebrate her Birthday she was number attracted few curiosity seekers, That was the way he wanted it.

Leopold came to Puerto Rico 13 years ago in search of refuge and anonymity and found them in the tiny mountain community of Castaner, in the coffee-growing region of southern Puerto Rico. There he worked as an assistant to the pharmacist and the x-ray technician in a hospital run by the United Church of the Brethren.

Later on he earned his master's degree in social work from the University of Puerto Rico and spent his last 10 years in San Juan. But he never forgot Castaner.

Until shortly before his death he made the three-hour trip once a month to visit the warm-hearted people who had taken him in when he had few friends in the world.

"The people accepted him completely," said John Forbes, who worked with him in the hospital laboratory. "But, the church which had pushed for his release from prison in the late '50s, was not naive about the situation.

"They talked it over with the community, and they never objected to his being there."

Leopold, 66, when he died, spent half his life in the Illinois state penitentiary for his part in the 1924 kidnap-murder of 14 year-old Bobby Franks. They said they wanted to experience but his humanist tendencies the thrill of killing. Another were in harmony with the convict stabbed Loeb to death in 1936.

"There were a number of others. Leopold, the son of a fundamentalist religious tyring well-to-do Jewish family, said to save his soul," Forbes said he changed a great deal in prison as hat he had a great urge to help people develop their potential.

The Daily Standard, Sikeston, Mo. Wednesday, September 8, 1971

JOBS for returning servicemen are a major concern for Joseph L. Victor of Uniontown, Pa., new commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Elected at the VFW's 72nd annual convention in Dallas, Victes pledged development of a program to find employment for returning Vietnam veterans.

Diamonds, rubies, and most other precious gems are taken from the ground, often in deep mines. The one precious gem that does not come from the ground is the pearl. The Japanese have grown pearls by placing small objects, including beads, inside of oysters to grow pearls around them. Pearls are sometimes found in conches and a few other kinds of shellfish. The black pearl is a rare and costly pearl, although there are shades of white and pink ones. The "pearl" of water conditioning units is a Miracle Water refiner. A Miracle Water refiner is totally engineered to give you beauty, efficiency, and our patented process unit solves most water problems by automatically refining, filtering, softening and furnishing clean, clear refreshing water, free of most taste and odor. Schools Open, Drivers Urged To Take Care

As Missouri schools open for another year, Co. E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the superintendent of the state highway patrol, issued a traffic safety plea to motorists urging extreme caution.

"The State Department of Education has informed us that approximately 1.3 million children will be attending the public and private schools this year," Hockaday stated. "The welfare and safety of each and everyone of these children is the responsibility of every citizen."

Colonel Hockaday noted that more than 600,000 school children are transported to and from schools daily on the nearly 7,500 public school buses. Many more young students will be riding on privately - owned buses. He reminded drivers that they are required by law to stop on two lane highways for school buses loading and unloading children. The driver must remain stopped until the school bus resumes motion or until signaled by its driver to proceed.

"The very immensity of the student transportation program in Missouri is sufficient reason for every driver to be extremely cautious," the Colonel continued. "School buses operate on every highway and practically every rural road in the State. These buses travel more than 75 million miles during the school year. It behooves every driver, therefore, to watch for school buses in the traffic scene and to obey the traffic laws pertaining to them.

"I urge all drivers to accept their responsibility in regard to the safety of our children by exercising extreme caution near schools, playgrounds and school buses." Colonel Hockaday concluded.

One of the sure signs of fall is the parade of goodies

being trucked out of the city to roadside stands.

Petting Zoo At Plaza

The zooland petting zoo will be at the Kingsway Plaza Mall Wednesday through Saturday. Attendants will be on hand to answer questions and the zoo will be open from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The animals are in colorful fences and visitors are allowed to come in and pet them. There will be an assortment of more than 45 animals, birds, both domestic and exotic species. Among the animals will be a baby tapir, lambs, burrow, llamas and monkeys.

The animals are young and especially trained to get along with children. As they grow older they are replaced by younger specimens.

Cameras should be brought along to take pictures of the children and animals. Admission to the zoo is by donation. Proceeds after expenses will go to the United Fund.

Dexter Resident Missing

DEXTER-- John Wayne Breedlove, 23-year old Dexter resident was reported missing to the highway patrol Thursday night.

According to information received by the patrol, Breedlove left Dexter at 10:30 p.m. Sept. 1 driving a blue-green 1957 Chevrolet and was taking a passenger to the airport in Poplar Bluff.

Authorities said that Breedlove has not been seen since that time and an investigation is underway.

The Rev. Charles Miller and the Rev. Donald Cooper officiated. Burial was in Bluff Cemetery. Chiles-Cooper Funeral Home was in charge. Masonic services were held there Monday.

Long, 78, died Saturday in a Dexter hospital of pneumonia after an illness of seven days.

He was a Stoddard county resident all of his life and had farmed near Bloomfield. He was tax collector from 1939 through 1957, and served as judge 10 years from 1955 through 1965. He held several offices with the Farm Bureau and had worked with the Red Cross.

He was a trustee of the St. Joseph General Baptist church, and held membership in the Bloomfield Masonic Lodge, Order of Eastern Star and the Shriners.

He was born Oc. 14, 1892, in Avert, and married the former Miss Helen Grace Parrott, Aug. 25, 1912. She survives.

Also surviving are three sons, Cecil Paul Long, St. Louis, Theron C. Long, Essex and J. Byron Long, Marrero, La.; two daughters Mrs. Theresa Alberta Crowe, Sikeston and Mrs. Mary Helen Wilson, Sterline Heights, Mich.; two brothers, Ralph Long, Bloomfield and Elvis Long, Charleston; a sister, Mrs. Liza Gianell, Sacramento, Calif.; 24 grandchildren and 25-great-grandchildren.

Funds from Associated and other cooperatives will be used to finance the second generator on land leased from the industrial park.

The council approved a request by Willie Enlow that the city haul trash and debris from the site of a building being remodeled for use as a recreation center at O'Bannon School.

The council approved a contract with Cowan and Holman Construction Co., Sikeston, for construction of concrete curb and gutter and soil cement streets on Church, Mitchell, Kingshighway, Pinnell, and Diggs Place. Cost to the property owners per front foot of property adjoining the streets are Church, $6.63; Mitchell, $6.85; Kingshighway, $7.33; Diggs Place, $6.24; and Pinnell, $6.12.

Dexter To Vote On Bonds Again

DEXTER — The city council last night voted unanimously to present to the voters of Dexter for the fifth time in two years a $425,000 water improvement bond issue.

The Chamber of Commerce presented a letter to the council requesting another election and the council agreed. The general obligation bond issue will be voted on Oct. 12. A two - thirds majority will be required for passage.

Residents of Dexter turned down the bond issue Aug. 31 by 56 votes.

The proposal, if passed, will provide two new water wells, a new 500,000 - gallon storage tank, and a new 1,000 -gallon -per -minute water treatment plant.

basis and not overspending" are the most important election issues.

He commented:

"I've been working for waterworks improvement since 1965 and I would like to see it completed. Also Lockscreen Inc., an aluminum factory from South Carolina, was brought in during my administration and I would like to see them start operating and build their factory."

Bain said he is interested in parks and recreation and, if elected mayor, would propose the city buy more gorund on the west part of town "to build a park for blacks and whites."

"We only have one park now and it's overcrowded," he explained.

He also said he would like to get another fire station across the railroad tracks on the west side of town and get additional public housing for the aged and poor. The city now has 104 units.

Dowdy said he would like to see "lots of things done" but mainly see the city progress.

Mayor Dowdy said to see the city progress was "the reason I got into the mayor's race."

"I don't think there's a political issue, Dowdy said. "I'm not a politician."

Dowdy, who makes his living as a farm laborer, admits he has no political experience but said he served on the school board four years in 1962-1966.

He has been living in Hayti since March of 1970 but has lived within a mile of town 35 years.

"As mayor I would like to see Lockscreen come in and see the interstate developed," he commented.

"I think I'm going to have a better chance Tuesday than I did April 6," be concluded.

Two Fined

CHARLESTON — Two persons were arrested last night by police and appeared in city court this morning.

James Wilson, 59, Charleston, was fined $15 for possession of an illegal weapon.

Jessie Mae Wilson, 37, Charleston, charged with being drunk and having possession of an illegal weapon, was fined $20.

Morehouse Council Discusses Runoff

By Staff Writer

MOREHOUSE — The town board last night discussed what could be done to improve drainage in the northeast part of Morehouse. Residents have complained for two years that water stands for days after a rain.

The board appointed Water Supt. Ronnie McIntire to survey the area and determine what can be done to solve the problem.

The board discussed purchasing a tractor and back hoe. It was pointed out that with the new equipment, the city would be able to make sewer installations with its own employes. Plumbers must now be employed.

The board approved an application for renewal of a plumbers license for Ellis D. Henson.

Approved was the installation of a street light at the east end of Myrtle Street.

Torre Hikes Average, Comments On Pirates

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "This club has a lot of pride ... and remember, we've got five games left with the Pirates. The way we're going — who knows?"

Joe Torre, the National League's leading hitter with an average of .368, still thinks the St. Louis Cardinals, who have won nine of their last 12 games, have a shot at overtaking Pittsburgh. The Pirates hold a sixgame lead over St. Louis, but both teams still have 19 games remaining.

Torre slammed eight hits in 11 at-bats Tuesday night as the Cardinals took a twinight doubleheader from the Philadelphia Phillies, 9-6 in 13 innings in the first game, 7-5 in 10 innings in the nightcap.

The opener was the completion of a game suspended from Aug. 1, picked up with the Cardinals leading 6-3 in the 12th.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston defeated Atlanta 5-1, Montreal romped to a 9-3 decision over the New York Mets, San Diego rallied to beat Cincinnati 8-7 and Los Angeles downed San Francisco 9-3. The Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh were not scheduled.

In American League action, Kansas City trimmed Milwaukee 4-3, the Chicago White Sox edged Minnesota 8-7, Baltimore defeated Cleveland 3-2, Detroit edged Washington 3-2 in 11 innings, Boston trounced the New York Yankees 9-3 and California beat Oakland and Vida Blue 6-1.

"You pretty well think you've got it won when you're leading a suspended game by three runs," said Torre, "especially when you have five weeks to think about it."

But Philadelphia scored three runs on Larry Bowa's two-run triple and Pete Koegel's single, and it was a new ball game.

Singles by Ted Simmons, Julian Javier, Bob Burda, Torre and Matty Alou produced three runs in the 13th, and the Cardinals had a 9-6 victory.

But the night's excitement was far from over.

The Cards were trailing 5-3 with two out in the bottom of the ninth, but as the saying goes, the game is never over until the last man is out.

That last man, Jim Beauchamp, reached second when Denny Doyle got a late start on his pop fly, then dropped it for an error. Lou Brock followed with a two-run single to tie the game.

The Cards took the lead in the 10th when Torre singled but Simmons tripled. Joe Hague added an insurance run by driving in Simmons on a fielders choice play.

Torre collected five hits in seven at bats in the opener, then came back with three hits in four trips in the nightcap. His .368 average leaves him comfortably ahead of the surging Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, who is now up to .350.

Don Wilson, 14-8, throttled Atlanta 5-1 on just two hits, one in the first by Felix Millan, the other in the ninth by Ralph Garr. The Astros erupted for four runs in the fifth, with Cesar Geronimo and Joe Morgan hitting consecutive homers.

Rusty Staub cracked his 15th home run of the season and drove in four runs as Montreal defeated the New York Mets 93. The Expos scored eight runs in the first three innings, then coasted home behind Steve Renko, 14-13, who got relief help from Mike Marshall in theninth.

Run-scoring ninth-inning singles by Leron Lee and Garry Jestadt gave San Diego a come-from-behind 8-7 victory over Cincinnati. Lee went fivefor-five in the game and scored four runs, while Jestadt was four-for-four with three runs batted in.

The Dodgers pulled within six games of the Giants in the National League West by recording their seventh victory in nine outings and their fifth straight over San Francisco.

Los Angeles chased Giant starter Ron Bryant in the first inning before he could retire a batter. Maury Wills walked and Bobby Valentine, Willie Davis and Richie Allen followed with successive singles.

Blue Loses Again!

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The Cy Young Award?" Vida Blue mused. "Maybe I'd vote for Mickey Lolich, too. He's doing better than I am now."

The young flame-throwing left-hander of the Oakland A's had plenty of time to think about the award—presented to the best pitcher in each league—and his fading chances for it.

Blue spent most of Tuesday night's game against California on the sidelines after the usually mild-hitting Angels pounced on him for three runs in the first inning, then rode Clyde Wright's six-hitter to a 6-1 victory over the A's.

It was Blue's fourth loss in five starts and his eighth of the season, keeping him tied with Lolich of the Detroit Tigers for the most American League victories with 23 and the most complete games with 24.

But of late, Blue's fortunes have been sinking while Lolich, at 31, nine years older than the Oakland ace, has been coming on like gangbusters. It was on Monday that the Detroit workhorse caught Blue in both categories with a masterful six-hit 3-0 victory over Washington.

"It would be nice," Blue commented, "if they had two awards—one for the first half of the season and one for the second half."

In other American League games, Kansas City edged Milwaukee 4-3, the Chicago White Sox topped Minnesota 8-7, Baltimore beat Cleveland 3-1, Detroit defeated Washington 3-2 in 11 innings and Boston routed the New York Yankees 9-3.

In the National League, St. Louis completed a suspended game against Philadelphia with a 13-inning 9-6 victory, then made it a sweep with a 10-inning 7-5 victory in the regularly scheduled game, Montreal mauled the New York Mets 9-3, Houston swatted Atlanta 5-1, San Diego tripped Cincinnati 87 and Los Angeles clouted San Francisco 9-3. Pittsburgh and the Chicago Cubs did not play.

The meager crowd of 6,878 in Oakland has hardly gotten comfortable when Ken Berry singled, Ken McMullen drilled his 18th home run and a walk and singles by Jim Spencer and Tommy Reynods gave the Angels all the runs they needed.

Blue left after three innings, his earliest departure since Washington kayoed him in 1 1-3 innings—in the first game of the season.

Amos Otis ran haywire for the Royals, stealing five bases to equal a feat last performed on May 27, 1904, by Dennis McGann of the old New York Giants. It still fell one short of the American League record set in 1912 by Eddie Collins of the Philadelphia A's.

otis also collected four singles and beat the Brewers when he scratched a two-out single in the seventh inning, swiped second, stole third, then continued home when Milwaukee catcher Darrell Porter's throw sailed into left field. It put Otis' thefts at 47, one back of teammate and league leader Fred Patek.

White Sox catcher Ed Herrmann belted two home runs— offsetting a pair by Harmon Killebrew of the Twins—driving in five runs to enable Tommy John to struggle to his 11th victory. Killebrew's bombs gave him 22 for the year and 509 for his career and Leo Cardenas also homered for Minnesota, his 17th.

Dave McNally, boosting his record to 18-4, won his own game for the Orioles with a two-run homer while silencing the Indians on five hits. It was McNally's 12th successive triumph.

Jim Northrup wielded Detroit's big bat with his 12th and 13th homers of the year, the second a leadoff shot in the top of the 11th inning off Senators reliever Paul Lindblad. It gave Fred Scherman his ninth victory of the season.

The Red Sox carried a 3-2 lead into the eighth inning against the Yanks, then erupted for six runs to seal their victory.

Doug Griffen doubled home two runs in the big inning and two more came in on first baseman John Ellis' wild throw but the hitting hero for Boston was Reggie Smith, who drive in three runs and scored two more.

COUNTDOWN TO KICKOFF

Injuries Could Decide South

The southern division of the Southeast Missouri Football Conference which has been playing in the shadows of the famed and rugged northern division over the past seasons, will field its most potent and balanced league in many a year. It could take over some of the glory from the Yankees.

Over the past two seasons the south has produced runners - up in the state AA and AAA playoffs while the north hasn't made such a big impression since Perryville won the AAA honors in 1969. Cape Girardeau Central has been the only other state tournament representative from Southeast Missouri's north division.

"This season any five of the top teams in the division can play with the northern boys," one of the league coaches commented during spring drills. "Our league is the toughest its been in a long, long time."

While all indications and polls point to the Malden Green Wave as a solid and unbeatable force in the south, three other schools could be as equally potent despite the return of 11 starters at 17 positions for Coach Jack Phillips, the Daily Standard's 1969 'Coach of the Year'.

Portageville has been mentioned most as the big threat to the 'Big Greens' title hopes but Caruthersville and Dexter can't be counted out despite the loss of key personnel from last season.

Dexter could be the league's sleeper having been selected to finish fourth in the seven team division, the Bearcats are the defending co-champs with Malden and runner - up in the state AAA state playoffs.

Injuries, which haven't hampered any of the league's top clubs in past seasons, could be the deciding factor in this four - team title race because each team is short of depth and experience.

One of the big reasons Malden has been tabbed by the coaches and many grid experts to win its third straight league title is Quarterback Dan Prentice's return. He was called the 'back to watch' in a poll of coaches by the Standard.

League coaches pointed to Dexter's David Mathis, one of the league's premier backs, and singled out Dan Smith and Jerry Christian as linemen to watch along with Portageville's Calvin Moore.

But the list of returning all league stars is a lengthy one. A dozen juniors were selected for one of the places on the all star squad along with a pair of sophomores.

Caruthersville has the trio of Peanut Reno, Joe Cagle and Rick Young to build its team around.

Another league challenger could be Chaffee with the return of all league and district Center Tom Glastetter and Back Scott Thomas.

Coach Ed McWilliams thinks he has a potentially good ball club in the East Prairie Eagles for the 1971 season.

One reason for the optimism is Annise Davis, a 5-11 190-pound fullback who has run the 100-yard dash in 10.4 seconds.

"We don't have as much depth as last year but we have a 10-12 pounds heavier team than the squad that finished 5-4 in 1970", said Coach McWilliams.

Jimmy Davis, a senior at 6-1 and 200 pounds, who made the second team all conference, is expected to anchor the line for the Eagles.

"We won't know what we have until the opening game", said Coach McWilliams.

Portageville is expected to be one of the top teams in the southern division with the return of six men on the offensive team.

"I feel that we have as strong a team as any of my eight years here," commented Coach Jim McKay.

Portageville will try to improve on 60-3 record of 1970.

The Bulldogs' hopes are pinned on Randy Willaims a155-pound, 5-9 junior, who scored 12 touchdowns in the first six games as a sophomore before being injured.

Coach McKay says he thinks he has a strong team with not much depth to fill in for injuries.

Malden has a small but experienced squad to begin the 1971 football season and to add to its woes the Greenwave has scheduled Union City, Tenn., to fill the 10th spot on its schedule. Union City ended Martin's 43-game winning streak with a 12-0 victory last season and are ranked high in pre - season polls.

Coach Jack Phillips said:

"I'm not making any prediction on where we will finish the season. We are going to go with our starters and hope for no injuries."

The Greenwave has only 22 boys on the squad so it can't afford any injuries.

"I expect Portageville and Caruthersville to give us the most trouble along with Dexter," said Phillips.

Malden has sustained one injury, a broken thumb of tackle Mike Russell. Russell will be a doubtful starter in the opener against Kennett Friday night.

Coach Clyde Vaughn's DHS Bearcats will have to go some to better their 1970 success. They finished first in the conference and second in the AAA state playoffs.

Coach Vaughn expects the southern division to be stronger than it ever has been in the past with each team having a chance to win.

The Bearcats lost their two starting ends with graduation but have a fine receiving corps to start the 1971 season in Bruce Bishop and Mike Ward.

David Mathis was the starting quarterback last year and is expected to pick up where he left off with a year of experience behind him.

Coach Vaughn has one injury, which will hamper the team at the start. Dan Smith suffered a knee injury and is not expected to be able to play at full strength in the opener.

"It is hard to say that we will be as good as last year", said Coach Vaughn.

Each of the league teams will battle non - league competition in openers Friday night, but start the battles for the championship Sept. 17 with no holds barred and the league title in the minds of each of the seven teams.

Newberry Gets Starting Call At SEMO State

CAPE GIRARDEAU -- The Southeast Missouri State College Indians had their last major scrimmage game Saturday night, and finished up their twice -a -day practice sessions Monday, entering the final days of preparation for the season opener Saturday night at Houck Stadium.

Their opening opponent will be the Delta Statesmen from Cleveland, Miss., who handed the Indains a 14-8 defeat in last year's "curtain -raiser."

Indian coach Tom Thrower was quite pleased with his team's performance in Saturday's scrimmage. He noted the passing game was coming along well and was much improved over earlier scrimmages. The running attack was consistent, but five fumbles occurred, meaning there are still mental mistakes which must be ironed out.

Thrower praised the team for its enthusiasm in the contest. He said, "Both offensively and defensively the hitting was excellent, and that's what we're fired up about."

And the enthusiasm early in the season is very important for a good start, as the Indian head man knows only too well. Thrower noted that "last year we didn't have this good attitude. The enthusiasm wasn't good, the thitting was bad, and there were a lot of players here who just wanted to be on the football team."

Last year the Tribe dropped their first three ball games and struggled during much of the season to finish at only 5-5.

Thrower proudly points out, "Everybody came to play this year! The hiting's been good and everyone's "fired up."

Most of the starters have been selected and experience can be found at nearly all positions.

A big problem the Indians face is the offensive line, where Jack Huelskamp, a senior from St. Louis, is the only starter returning from last year. He has moved to weak side guard to try and replace All-MIAA Steve Johnson who has graduated. Gary Rohr from East St. Louis will take over at strong guard, after having played the last two years at Mesa Junior College in Colorado.

Bob Hollingshead, a 214- pound senior from Collinsville, Ill., will move from his reserve role of last year and take over at strong side tackle. Dan Peiffer, a 240-pound transfer from Ellsworth Junior College in Iowa, will replace Bob Barclay at weak tackle.

All- conference performer Ron Helms, now a graduate assistant with the Indians, will be replaced by Rich Stewart of Hillsboro, Ill., at the center position. The 192 -pound sophomore is returning to the Tribe after sitting out for two years.

Commenting about the offensive line, Thrower said, "Physically we have a better offensive line than last year, and before the season is over it could be superior to last year's."

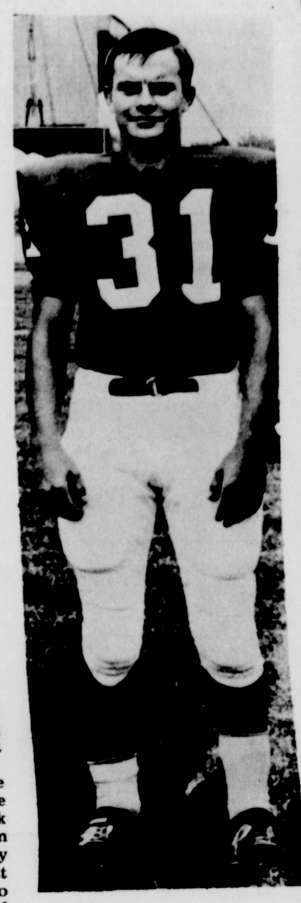

Dennis Maxey, a 190-pound senior form St. Louis, will move from the split end position he played last year and take over at tight end, to fill the hole left by the graduation of Dennis Rudanovich.

Replacing Maxey at split end will be avid Newberry, a 164-pound junior from Sikeston.

The backfield will have the same starters as last year with Lance Brune, a sophomore from Cape Girardeau, at quarterback; Rick Attig, a 200-pound sophomore from Murpbysboro, Ill., at running back; Eddie Moss, a senior from Poplar Bluff weighing 215, at fullback; and Art Miller, a 175-pound senior from Kirkwood, at the flanker position.

The defensive unit has only two vacancies from last year, with nine familiar faces returning.

The vacancies are at the tackle positions where Wayne Behnke and All-MIAA standout Jack Martin have departed. David Means will take over for Martin at right tackle. Means is a sophomore from Hopkinsville, Ky.

David Newberry

Tim Luckett has won the job at left tackle, but a broken bone in his hand makes him a doubtful starter for Saturday night. Should Luckett be unable to play, then either Jim McCarthy, a junior from St. Louis, or Larry Luster, a 230- pound transfer from Centerville Junior College in Iowa, will get the starting nod. Luckett, a 250-pound senior who had to sit out last season because of a nee operation, is a three-year letterman and an all conference tackle.

Steve Derringer, a junior from Webster Groves, and Bill Brown, a senior from St. Louis, will return to action at the end positions.

Doug Mackey, a senior from St. Louis, Jim Shelton, a 195 - pound junior from Mayfield, Ky., and Gene Figge, a senior from Ste. Genevieve, will hold down the linebacker spots.

The only undecided starters are at the defensive back positions, where six men, all of whom started several games last season, are seeking one of the four starting assignments.

Those competing for starting berths at cornerback are Jim Powell, a 165-pound junior from Webster Groves, Bob Rudd, a 160- pound senior from Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Jim Cameron, a senior weighing 158 pounds from St. Louis.

Richard Sanders, a senior, John Bean, also a senior, and Steve Meier, a 194-pound sophomore, are battling it out at safety. All three are from St. Louis.

Kim Godwin, who earned two letters as a linebacker and had a national ranking with a 40.4 punting average, has decided not to play this year. So, a 6-5, 178-pound junior, Gary Hahn, from Des Moines, Ia., will handle the punting chores. Hahn played at Wentworth Military Academy last season.

Thrower is hoping to give his younger players some game experience as soon as possible. He pointed out that "except for the secondary we don't have any experienced back - up men. We can shift a round a little if we have to."

In assessing the Indians' progress to this point Thrower said, "The hitting's been good and concentration has been good until we get tired, and then we begin to make mistakes. Also our execution isn't good at this point."

He continued, "We're going to make some mistakes early in the season, but by the conference season we should have the bugs ironed out."

The Indians will try to clear up some of their weak spots Tuesday night with a light scrimmage.

College Football Predictions

Stanford Favored At Mizzou

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP) — What kind of opening weekend is this for the college football season when no less than 12 of the Top Twenty teams in the preseason poll are in action?

Whatever happened to the openers that used to pit old Block & Tackle U. against Breather Poly?

The season gets under way Friday night with a classic matchup—fifth-ranked Southern California against 16th-rated Alabama in the Los Angeles Coliseum. In addition, Brigham Young faces North Texas State in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

some 40 more games involving at least one major team are on tap Saturday, as well as the Grambling-Morgan State contest to be televised nationally, ABC-TV, 6:30 p.m., EDT, from New York's Yankee Stadium.

So here goes with another campaign of trying to pick 'em right. We'll take the credit for the winners. The losers are the responsibility of the assistant coaches.

Alabama at Southern Cal— The magic number here is 200. Alabama's next victory will be Bear Bryant's 200th and USC's John McKay says the Crimson Tide "is 200 per cent better than a year ago," when the Trojans romped 42-21. The Bear is growling again but will have to wait another week for No. 200 as the Trojans start to make amends for last season's 6-4-1 disappointment. SOUTHERN CAL.

Oregon at Nebraska—The Cornhuskers, ranked only second in the pre-season voting, are trying to become the first team since Alabama in 1964-5 to win consecutive national championships. This could be their toughest test of the year. Nebraska's defense allowed 177 points last season and Oregon has Dan Fouts to throw the ball and Bobby Moore to run with it. But the Ducks gave up 256 points and this game is in Lincoln before all those screaming people in red outfits, so-o-o-o ... NEBRASKA

Michigan at Northwestern— Alex Agase was named Coach of the Year last season by the Football Writers Association of America. In three weeks he could be Coach of the Century. After No. 4 Michigan come topranked Notre Dame and No. 13 Syracuse for the 20th-rated Wildcats. These two tied for second in the Big Ten. Barring a tie, they'll be a game apart after Saturday and the team on top will be ... MICHIGAN.

California vs. Arkansas at Little Rock—The first meeting betweeen the two schools finds eighth-ranked Arkansas with an established quarterback Joe Ferguson and California without one. Razorbacks were stunned in their 1970 opener by another Pacific-8 team, Stanford, and don't intend to let it happen again. ARKANSAS.

Colorado at Louisiana State— It can get awfully warm and humid in Baton Rouge at this time of year and Coach Charlie McClendon of the No. 9 home team hopes it's hotter-n youknow-what. The Buffaloes would like to bring some Colorado snow with them but 'sno use. LSU.

Iowa at Ohio State—Coach Frank Lauterbur brought a 23game winning streak with him from Toledo to Iowa but is about to get a rude welcome into the Big Ten from Woody Hayes, who has never been accused of being a genial host on Saturday afternoons in the fall. Buckeyes are 11th in pre-season rankings. OHIO STATE.

Pitt at UCLA—No. 15 Bruins have a new coach in Pepper Rodgers from Kansas but got a jolt when the NCAA ruled brilliant sophomore running back James McAlister ineligible this season. Pitt hit the comeback trail last seaon and could catch the Bruins looking ahead to Texas. Bases strictly on the home field advantage ... UCLA.

Georgia Tech at South Carolina—"We have the makings of another fine football team," says Tech's Bud Carson after 83 record in 1970 plus Sun Bowl win over Texas Tech. Yellow Jackets, rated 17th, likely will have too much sting for the Gamecocks, debuting as an independent after withdrawing from Atlantic Coast Conference. GEORGIA TEACH.

Oregon State at Georigia— Bulldogs, ranked 18th, are making eyes at the Southeastern Conference crown with 15 recurning starters. Andy Johnson, Georgia supersoph, starts at quarterback. Oregon State is always tough under Dee Andros. First meeting ever. First blood to ... GEORGIA.

Stanford at Missouri—Redshirt Don Bunce chose to sit out a year and replace Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett this season. Now's his chance. Indians, ranked 19th, catch Missouri with a new coach—Al Onofrio—and lots of problems. STANFORD.

Grambling vs. Morgan State at New York—Pro scouts will be out en masse for this one between two predominantly black powerhouses. Grambling's Eddie Robinson and Morgan's Earl Banks are two of the winningest coaches around. Match-up of running backs Eldrie Turner (Grambling) and John Sykes (Morgan), the latter likened to Leroy Kelly, should be a good one. GRAMBLING.

Other games:

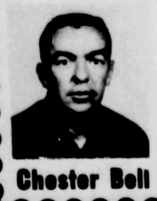

SOUTH — Memphis State over West Texas State.

MIDWEST — Cincinnati over Dayton, Kansas over Washington State, Kansas State over Utah State, Michigan State over Illinois, Minnesota over Indiana, Oklahoma State over Mississippi State, Wisconsin over Northern Illinois.

SOUTHWEST — North Texas State over Birgham Young, Texas A&M over Wichita State, Texas — ElPaso over Texas — Arlington.

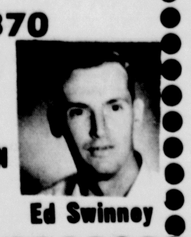

FAR WEST — New Mexico State over Drake.

FISH continued to grab at the hooks of fishermen at Stevens Lake near Parma over the labor day weekend as evidenced by the Cullins. Richey, Ron and E. M. landed 63 pounds of catfish Monday. The largest weighed 5½ pounds with five -year -old Richey hooking the next largest, a four and a half pounder.This was the largest catch of the season.

First Pro Setback For Devine A Big One

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Dan Devine had the third best college football coaching record in the nation over the last 16 years at Arizona State and Missouri, but his first setback as head of the Green Bay Packers came four days into training camp this summer.

Bart Starr, who had quarterbacked the Packers to five National Football League titles and two Super Bowl victories in the 1960s, reinjured the passing arm that had hampered him much of last season. Now, at age 37 and two operations later, Starr is not expected back until at least late October, and perhaps not at all.

Of the NFL's 26 teams, only New England and New Orleans scored fewer points than the Packers (196) last year. Much of that was traceable to Starr's injuries, which near the end of the season all but eliminated his deep passing threat.

Devine, who succeeded Phil Bengtson in January, had counted on a healed Starr to rekindle the offense. Now he has Zeke Bratkowski, still an able passer at 39 but an inactive player since 196, as the probable No. 1 quarterback. Scott Hunter of Alabama has shown exceptional promise but is a rookie.

Devine has decided against extensive trading, preferring to try to rehabilitate the Packers from within. Toward that end, he sent tackle Kevin Hardy to San Diego for a No. 1 draft choice, which will give Green Bay two picks in the first round next January.

Whoever emerges at quarterback will throw to a receiving corps that is not as fast as Devine would like, but able. The best is Carroll Dale, who has gained 814 or more yards receiving four of the last five years and is still elusive at 33.

The other wide receiver is swift John Spilis, who has always shown promise but has caught a total of only 13 passes in his first two years. Tight end John Hilton, who caught 25 passes last season, is being pushed by Rich McGeorge, a No. 1 draft choice in 1970.

Running back is the team's strong suit, with Dave Hampton, a game-breaking threat, healthy after missing eight weeks in 1970. Top draft choice John Brockington of Ohio State looks like the power runner Green Bay has lacked since Jim Taylor departed four years ago. Donny Anderson rushed for 853 yards last year and gained another 414 catching passes. Perry Williams, a good blocker and receiver, will start at fullback if Brockington isn't deemed ready.

Inconsistent placekicking has cost the Packers dearly since Don Chandler retired after 1967, the last championship season. Dale Livingston kicked 15 field goals last year and has a powerful leg, but may not know until shortly before the season starts whether the job will be his again.

Green Bay gave up 293 points a year ago, which unfairly reflects on a defense that was kept on the field too long because of the offense's failures. Anderson had to punt a record 81 times as the offense made first down only 30 per cent of the time on third down plays.

Alex Gets Hearing

CHICAGO (AP) — The general manager and vice president of the California Angels has told a panel deciding the Alex Johnson case he knowingly falsified information which denied that a gun had been pulled on Johnson in the team clubhouse, The Chicago Sun-Times said Tuesday.

An article by sports-writer Jerome Holtzman said a secret transcript of the Johnson hearing shows Dick Walsh knowingly falsified the truth of Johnson's charge, that teammate Chico Ruiz pulled a gun on Johnson June 13 when the two players were alone in the Angels' clubhouse.

The article said Walsh made the admission Aug. 29 during the first day of the Johnson grievance which is being heard by a three-man arbitration panel.

Johnson was suspended without pay June 26. The Major League Players Association, on his behalf, is charging that the iAmerican League's 1970 batting champ is being wrongfully denied his full salary.

It said the paper learned that the following exchange occurred between Walsh and the panel:

Q.—"Isn't it a fact that you announced you conducted investigation of the gun incident and then issued a statement you found no gun?

A.—"Yes.

Q.—"But you knew there was such a gun?

A.—"Yes.

Q.—"Didn't you realize that by issuing such a statement that you left the public with only two things to believe: 1, that Alex Johnson was a liar or No. 2, that he had delusions— whereas neither was true.

A.—"I did it in the best interests of the club."

Walsh, asked to comment on the Sun-Times report, issued this statement:

"There is no evidence to indicate that the Johnson-Ruiz gun incident took place as alleged by Alex Johnson. That has been my postition from the first and it remains unchanged."

Asked if the testimony in the Chicago story was inaccurate, Walsh said:

"I do not choose to amplify my statement. This was a closed hearing and I feel it improper to discuss the testimony."

Angels owner Gene Autry said he did not attend the hearing and could not comment on the story's accuracy.

Big 8 Drills Slowed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As temperatures heated up on football practice fields in Big Eight territory Tuesday, teams preparing for their openers cooled down the intensity of their drills.

With the mercury soaring to 104 in Manhattan, Kansas State coach Vince Gibson expressed the desire for the hot weather to remain through Saturday when the Wildcats host Utah State.

"If it's hot we'll have the advantage," he said, noting that the humidity at Logan, Utah, isn't like that of the Kansas plains.

University of Kansas coach Don Fambrough said he didn't push his players too hard and began tapering off in preparation for Washington State University's visit to Lawrence Saturday.

Fambrough said the rest of the week's practices would be closed and held in Memorial Stadium so the Jayhawks could get used to the artificial turf.

At Stillwater, Oklahoma State University coach Floyd Gass said the heat didn't wilt the enthusiasm of the Coyboys as they prepared for the invasion by Mississippi State.

Emphasis was placed on the kicking game. A school spokesman said advanced ticket sales indicate the crowd might surpass 30,000 for the opener.

Nebraska coach Bob Devaney said the Cornhuskers showed improvement both as "far as energy and execution were concerned" in getting ready for the Oregon game in Lincoln.

Devaney said an outbreak of the flu "concerns me more than injuries. We've had four or five players out each day with the flu recently."

It was 96 degrees at Columbia and Missouri coach Al Onofrio said the Tigers couldn't accomplish much in the way of preparing for Stanford.

And if it is hot again in Columbia Saturday, Tiger fullback Bill Mauser doesn't think it would be a help or hindrance to either team.

"Good football teams aren't going to let a thing like the weather affect their performance," he said.

Oklahoma, one of two conference teams not playing this weekend, suffered a setback when it was learned second team middle linebacker Gary Baccus was lost for the season.

Coach Chukc Fairbanks said Baccus never fully recovered from an arm injury sustained last spring.

"We were counting on him as a major factor in the defense this year," said Fairbanks.

Iowa State, the other Big Eight team idle this weekend, was bolstered by the return of sophomore tailback Moses Moore, who had been out for a week with a knee injury.

Quarterback Dean Carlson's arm was stiff and George Amundson, who has split his time between tailback and quarterback, filled in.

Touring Congressman Says U.S. Lags In Heroin Addiction Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman just back from a worldwide look at the narcotics problem says the United States alone is failing to make headway against heroin addiction.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., says Japan reports stamping out a widespread heroin problem in 10 years through a massive campaign based on appeals to family and national pride and strict law enforcement.

In Hong Kong, he says, officials claim a cure rate of 40 per cent through a harsh treatment program which places addicts in work camps and takes them off drugs abruptly and completely.

"I think these reports are questionable," Edwards said in an interview Thursday, "but there is no doubt that the United States stands practically alone in the world in the size and seriousness of its heroin problem."

Edwards, chairman of a House judiciary subcommittee studying legislative proposals for rehabilitating addicts, said he was most impressed by the British approach.

Contrary to popular belief, he said, the British do not hand out heroin free to addicts but have set up 16 clinics in London, each headed by a psychiatrist, where addicts can get medical treatment and a wide range of help and advice.

If the psychiatrist thinks it necessary, he can prescribe heroin for the addict, but the prescription must be filled each day at the addict's local pharmacy and renewed at the clinic every week, keeping the addict under the psychiatrist's care.

On the law-enforcement side, Edwards said, the British have tough criminal penalties for drug pushers.

Edwards said he is convinced the United States must first regard heroin addiction as a medical, not a criminal, problem, if it is to start solving it.

He also says greater emphasis should be placed on developing sensing devices to detect heroin being smuggled into the United States.

"Marijuana-sniffing dogs are extremely effective," he said, "but they don't work with heroin because they become addicted to it."

Edwards said one explanation for the high cure rate claimed in Hong Kong is that the heroin obtainable there is so pure it cannot be injected into the veins but must be snifted.

Heroin being used by GIs in Vietnam is also of high quality, he said, posing added troubles for them when they return to the United States and find the adulterated U.S. product unable to satisfy their needs.

Why does a new state add a star to the flag, but not a stripe? (ans. below)

Ans: Because extra stripes would make the flag too crowded — in 1817 the flag had 15 stripes, after Kentucky and Vermont entered the Union!

Cost Of Living Council Makes Policy Rulings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is the 13th set of questions and answers released Thursday by the Cost of Living Council on President Nixon's 90-day wage-price freeze. The answers represent policy rulings.

Q. If a worker is hired on a probationary basis and the established practice of the company is to increase his wage rate at the end of the probationary period, may he receive this wage increase during the freeze?

A. Yes. The probationary period is similar to an apprenticeship or learners' program and the wage increase may be granted if the probationary period for the job does not exceed three months.

Q. Can an employer give employees no-interest, non-maturity loans or other grants in lieu of pay increases?

A. No. Loans or grants may only be made according to an established system for making such loans or grants. A new system may not be developed which in effect provides a pay increase ruled out by the freeze.

Q. If an agreement has been reached between a company and an employee specifying that part of the employee's salary will be held by the company until the end of the company's fiscal year as a binder, may the employee receive this held pay if the end of the fiscal year falls during the freeze?

A. Yes. The binder does not constitute increased compensation, but is a return of previously earned salary.

Q. A supplier has long-term contracts with his customers. Before the freeze, he raised his price and charged the new price to customers who were renewing their contracts. May he charge the higher price to customers who renew their contracts during the freeze or new customers of the same class?

A. Yes, if the supplier had substantial transactions on the same commodity or service to the same class of purchaser at the higher price during the base period.

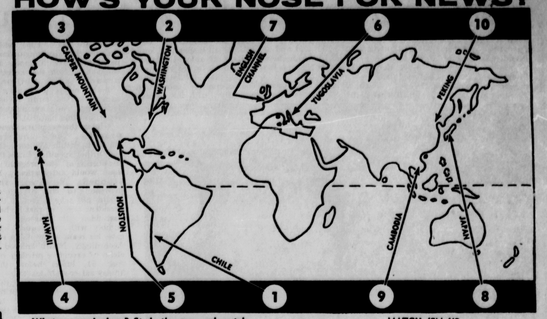

Q. What is the ceiling price for a long-term purchase contract calling for delivery during the freeze period?

A. There are two different rules which are applied to this type of contract:

—If the item is standardized item such as a commercial aircraft, the ceiling is calculated using the substantial volume of transactions rule based on prices which were realized on shipments during the base period.

—If the product is a unique product or service, such as a large building or very large scale generator, the contractor may use the ceiling price realized during the base period on comparable products or services in the same locality; or if no such comparable product can be found, the contractor may use the mark-up received during the base period on the most nearly similar product or service applied to the unit direct cost or net invoice cost.

Identity Of Man Found In River Unknown

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Callaway County authorities have had no luck in their efforts to identify the partially decomposed body of a man found in the Missouri River east of here on Aug. 20.

The grim discovery was made while sheriff's deputies searched the area for an Algoa Reformatory escapee.

The youth, Karl Ray Davidon, 17, who authorities believe landed astolen boat in the area after coming upstream from Jefferson City, is still at large.

The Callaway County coroner, who estimated the unidentified man died Aug. 18 or 19, described him as about five feet, nine inches in height and weighing around 160 pounds. He was believed to have been about 50.

40 Attend Crops Tour

BLOOMFIELD — Approximately 40 participated in a soils and crops tour conducted in the Stoddard County by Extension personnel recently.

Seventeen varieties of soybeans were shown and discussed by Dr. Leo Duclos, Research Agronomist from the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville, at a soybean variety experimental plot being conducted on the Harold Lumaden farm near Essex. Two new varieties including R-68-105, a Race 3 soybean cyst nematode resistant variety of Dare breeding, and Cutler, an early variety simular to Clark 63 and Kent, were discussed in detail.

The benefits of crop rotation in helping to keep soybean cyst nematode under control were seen in a soybean field on the James Ross farm. A portion of the field on which soybeans were produced last year following two years of corn showed heavy nematode damage whereas the remainder of the field on which corn was produced four years prior to this season showed no sign of nematode.

The effect of Fumazone 86-a relatively new fumigant-in reducing nematode damage was seen in a field of soybeans infested with Race 4 nematode on the Jerral Snider farm. A good response is evident in plots where this fumigant was applied at the rate of one gallon per acre, whereas a slight response is being shown where two quarts per acre were applied.

Grain drying and storage facilities suitable for handling grain sorghum were seen and discussed on the Triplett Brothers and W. L. Conner farms. A continuous flow drier which will dry approximately 100 bushels of corn containing 25 to 30 percent moisture per hour was seen on the Triplett farm. Less expensive bin drying facilities which will dry approximately 75 bushels of corn containing 25 to 30 percent moisture per hour was seen on the Conner farm.

The new Delcott 277 variety of cotton was seen on the Walter Lane farm. This variety is an early-maturing, high yielding variety that features good disease resistance, including resistance to both Fusarium and Verticulum wilts and fiber of good staple length and quality.

Joe Scott, State Extension Agronomy Specialist from the University's Delta Center, also assisted with this event.

Recreation Area For M.U. Students

COLUMBIA — A top priority item of students at the University of Missouri -- they wanted it so badly they agreed to pay for it -- will be available for use in a matter of weeks.

It is a free play recreation area which is being incorporated into the UMC campus program, at a site bounded by College and Virginia avenues, Porter street and the parking lot of the Rollins residence hall group. It is within two blocks of residence halls and married student housing in which nearly 4,500 students live.

Hathman Construction Co., of Columbia is the contractor for grading, hard surfacing and lighting the area on a low bid of $99,400. UMC purchased over a period of years 14 pieces of property costing some $518,000 for the site some 24,000 square feet in size.

Into the recreation area will be installed eight hard surfaced tennis courts, a hard-surfaced area suitable for three basketball or volleyball courts, with a curbing to permit flooding for ice skating in the winter; a turf area for football and soccer, and the southeast corner left in its natural wooded state for picknickers an for those who just want to get away from the brick and mortar of the campus.

The tennis and basketball - volleyball areas will be fenced and lighted and external boundaries will be lighted. Sixteen other tennis courts in the gymnasium area also are lighted for evening free play.

Students themselves will have their say on how the area is used. It will be for unscheduled free play, and not available for physical education, athletics or intra - mural sports. It will offer an energy outlet for students not involved in organized UMC activities.

Other recreation areas of the campus are earmarked on a priority basis, such as physical education intramurals, athletics - intramurals, physical education - athletics, and some only for intercollegiate athletic teams. Physical education, for instance, controls areas near Rothwell Gymnasium until class schedules end; intramurals have first priority on areas near Rollins Spring area and new fields at the campus east extremity; the athletic department controls areas near the stadium and athletic dressing rooms.

Three years ago the Missouri Student Association asked that a portion of student activity fees be earmarked for capital items, with recreation area as a top priority. The earmarked funds accumulated to a point this year that the area can be financed.

In long - range UMC plans, the area immediately west of the free - play recreation area -- now mostly in private ownership -- is viewed as a future site for physical education fields. They, too, could become useful to students for recreational purposes after classes. But that addition, if indeed it is carried to completion, appears to be years away despite needs of the physical education department which has seen its playing fields eroded by the mall, the Natatorium, the Mathematics Science building, and the ROTC drill field.

While the physical education department, which offers required courses for underclassmen and for upperclassmen and graduate students preparing for teaching careers, and supervises the intramural program, will not benefit directly from the free play area, it will, indirectly, through lessening of pressure. In tennis, for instance, all courts are required in season for physical education classes until 4:30 o'clock; eight others at that time are turned over to intercollegiate athletics for varsity and freshman teams. As a consequence, student tennis players who are not members of organized teams have a difficult time in locating courts during normal playing hours. The eight new courts will be particularly beneficial to the tennis buffs not in organized sports.

Congress Tangles With Executive Privilege

WASHINGTON — Executive privilege -- the President's asserted right to withhold information from Congress -- is firmly established in precedent if not law. George Washington was the first chief executive to invoke the privilege, in 1796, and and at least 17 of his successors have done so. President Nixon is the latest.

Nixon's hand was forced when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted, July 29, to suspend all foreign military aid unless the Defense Department turned over its five - year plan for the program. The committee acted under authority of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, which provides that any congressional panel dealing with foreign aid can demand from the executive branch any pertinent "document, paper, communication, audit, review, finding, recommendation, report or other material."

Unless the executive agency provides the requested materials within 35 days, the act further specifies, funds for the portion of the program at issue would automatically be stopped. However, the provision to cut off funds would not take effect if the President certified that he had forbidden the agency to comply with the request and gave his reasons for doing so. Accordingly, Nixon entered a claim of executive privilege on Aug. 31, hours before the 35-day aid - cutoff deadline.

In explaining his action, the President said "it would not be in the public interest" to provide the committee with the material it sought. Other Presidents have offered the same justification. Grover Cleveland, for example, asserted in 1886 that "the public interest would not be promoted" by furnishing the Senate Judiciary Committee with information on dismissal of Republican officeholders.

The most serious clash between the White House and Capitol Hill over executive privilege occurred in 1948, when President Truman issued a directive barring disclosure of any loyalty files to Congress. The House thereupon approved a bill "directing all executive departments and agencies ... to make available to ... all ... committees of the House ... and the Senate, information which may be deemed necessary to enable them to properly perform the duties delegated to them by Congress." The bill never reached the floor of the Senate.

In a sense, executive privilege contributed to the downfall of the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R Wis.). During the 1954 Army - McCarthy hearings the senator sought information on a private meeting between Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. and Army Counsel John Adams. President Eisnenhower proceeded to forbid any testimony on the meeting. When McCarthy persisted, Brownell sharply reminded him that responsibility for enforcement of federal law rested in the executive branch and could not "be usurped by an indivisual who may seek to set himself above the laws of our land."

The question of executive privilege forms only a part of the wider debate on secrecy in government. Publication of the Pentagon Papers gave rise to demands from the public and the press for reform of classification procedures. President Nixon has indicated he will initiate such reforms.

Meanwhile, more than a dozen bills aimed at bringing the Central Intelligence Agency under greater legislative control have been introduced in the House and the Senate. And the Senate Foreign Relations Committee acknowledged this year for the first time that Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty had been subsidized by the CIA. Congress is demonstrating anew the wide range of legislative privilege.

How Much Sickness Can Cuba Stand

Shortage of water, overcrowded living conditions and Communist administrative inefficiency are revealed in the following interview, told by Serafin Gomez Lopez;

"For the past three years our building, and those all around us, has not had running water. Living conditions are awful, particularly since we have no water to flush our toilets. Well, the government sends water tank trucks to each neighborhood in the city and the people must go out with buckets and carry water to their apartments. Imagine living on the ninth or tenth floor of one of those buildings! Elevators often don't work and the people have to carry everything up the stairs.

(Cement production that should be used to repair water mains and reservoirs goes instead into military construction.)

"Natural gas for cooking is unavailable for weeks at a time. Repairmen tell us that the lack of gas is due to old pipes and worn - out equipment at the gas plant."

"Then there is incredible bureaucratic mismanagement to contend with. If a leak or break in the gas line occurs within 40 inches of the cooking stove, it is the responsibility of the tenant to repair it. But no one can get pipe, or even tape to wrap around the leak, and the gas is shut off by the government.

"Most Cubans now cook on portable kerosene or alcohol lamps."

More about Communist mismanagement in state planning comes through in the testimony of Manuel Colina Cruz, who says the government is ruining rich tobacco lands:

"I was born and raised in Manicaragua, Las Villas Province, one of the richest areas in which black and blonde tobacco have traditionally been grown. These tobaccos formed the basis for the manufacture of the once world - famous Havana cigars.

"The regime has plowed up the whole area, destroying valuable tobacco seedling beds and curing sheds, replacing them with Pangola grass. They say they are going to establish pastures for dairy cattle."

Even dairy products do not reach the Cuban people; they are an item of export to pay for Fidel Castro's expensive military establishment. Partly as a result of atrocious diet, tuberculosis and other diseases have reached epidemic proportions.

Dr. Jose Gonzalez Barrios spoke of the spread of tuberculosis and the Communist reaction amid the need for more workers.

"Mobile x-ray units which used to make regular visits to labor centers in the countryside and the cities now operate sporadically. Public announcements which used to warn the populace to watch for symptoms of tuberculosis are nonexistent today. Finally, the government will not excuse anybody from work until they literally drop in their tracks. As a result, when TB patients come to us they are in a very advanced stage of the disease. (Tuberculosis increased from 1,177 cases per 100,000 population in 1958 to 3,909 per 100,000 in 1964. No figures have been available since 1964.)

"The principal reasons for the alarming TB epidemic in Cuba are:

"1.-- Crowded, unhealthy living conditions both at home and in labor camps;

"2. -- Scarcity of vitamins and drugs to treat the patients;

"3. -- Broken - down X-ray equipment and inferior chemicals and plates received from Communist countries.

"4. -- Poor diet, and over-work.

"Hepatitis has increased to the extent that it may be considered of epidemic proportions. It is so bad, in fact, that the Ministry of Public Health has warned doctors not to discuss the disease. Again, we have no medicines to treat the patient, and the situation will inevitably get worse."

Pediatrician Dr. Elena Valasquez Acevedo has this to say:

"In one district of Havana alone, we registered between January and June of 1969 2,000 new cases of tuberculosis among children. The incidence of TB is even greater because we treated children up to only 14 years of age. My district had a total of 30,000 residents.

"We prescribe more and better food for the patients, but it is simply not available. We also prescribe better housing, but this is only a dream. So are medicines. But the worst thing of all is that the government will rarely excuse anyone from hard labor, is suspicious that the doctors are working against the regime and seldom take our recommendation."

Doctor Jaime Prieto worked for the government in an out-patient clinic in Havana. He did so from early 1968, when he was prevented from continuing his private practice, until he was able to escape in December of 1969.

"For nearly two years, I examined an average of 1,000 patients monthly in the out-patient clinic. Ninety per cent of them were suffering from respiratory illness. These illnesses often developed into pneumonia among ill-nourished children. I do not know how many died. The Ministry of Public Health no longer issued statistics of this sort. (Infant mortality has increased from 31.3 in 1957 to 37.6 in 1966, per 1,000 live births.)

"Last spring (1969), about 75 per cent of our patients also suffered from gastroenteritis. Minor diseases, such as infectious fungus and the mange also increased. Mange did not exist among humans in Cuba prior to 1959 -- except in very rare cases.

"Intestinal parasitic cases have gone up astronomically. In addition to crowded living conditions and the scarcity of food and medicines, intentinal parasites have risen because of contaminated food. Social disease is rampant." (There were 46 cases of symphilis per 100,000 population in 1958 and 1,863 per 100,000 in 1964, the last year that figures were available.

Youths in specialized schools are no better off than the balance of the Cuban population. One youth, Andres Perez Perez, tells about his life in the Andres Gonzalez Lines fishing school. He and seven others managed to escape from the school last April, were captured and imprisoned but escaped again in December through the U. S. Naval BAse of Guantanamo. Here is what he says:

"There are normally 1,200 students at the fishing school. We learn to fish on the high seas. While at sea on the fishing vessel, Cherna, I learned that the captains and first mate were Russians. The captain's name was Alexander Soldatov."

"There were ten Russian crew members, as well. All of them were in charge of the most important parts of the vessel -- engines, radar, sonar and the like. Col[illegible] common lab[illegible] two 12-hour s[illegible]

"However, the most important thing is that the ship came from Spain, the electronic equipment, fishing lines, hooks and the like came from Japan. The Soviets supplied nothing. If the United States persuaded its allies not to provide these items, both Cuba and Russia would be in trouble."

Overflow of Gasoline Causes Her Pet Peeve

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve concerns gas station attendants who insist on filling the gas tank past its capacity in order to sell another few cents worth of gasoline. At times the tank overflows not only onto the car but on the pavement, which creates a potential hazard.—MRS. C. M.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to remove lime formations from an otherwise good aluminum tea kettle. What can be used to dissolve this thick crust on the lining?—LAURA

DEAR POLLY—I have a very simple answer for Ann S. who wants to remove snapshots from old photo albums that have the pictures glued or pasted to black pages. I have reclaimed such pictures many times. Immerse the page in water and leave it soaking long enough to loosen the glue or paste. When the picture is pulled away, the black paper left on the back will wipe off very easily if gently brushed with a paper towel. (Polly's note—I used a silver knife blade.) Dry the pictures by placing between paper towels for awhile. Keep handling and rearranging on clean towels to keep any fuzz from sticking to them. Work on just a few at a time and, when almost dry, place weights on top to hold them so they dry without curling. I have found the writing on the backs will appear clear and legible. (Polly's note—Some inks could run or dissolve.) Snapshots are washed after their original chemical bath when being developed but if Ann S. is distrustful of this she could experiment with one less valuable snapshot and I think she will be delighted with the results.—JESSIE

An Open letter to the American Legion C/O the Editor, Sikeston Standard --

Gentlemen:

Last year the 1970 Cotton Carnival showed no improvements. The rides and activities were the same as the have been for the past five years. Rose City Rides are old and delapitated, and people are becoming tired of the rides, social and moral qualities of its personnel. If you will recall a few months ago the downtown merchants sponsored a carnival in which there was a larger selection of mechanical rides for the younger generation, and the carnivals personnel had a good moral background, and were always neat and clean, and let me add that the rides were fairly new and in very good condition, unliked Rose City Rides which looked and sounded like a quick wind would force them to collapse. I know that if the downtown merchants can find decent rides that the American Legion can too! The activities are not so bad but, if you really put forth more effort in finging better mechanical rides and new things to entertain all ages of people, the 1971 Cotton Carnival would be much better, and would also be a great acomplishment to the Sikeston American Legion.

Sincerely,
Ray Thompson

An Old Man And Memories

WILLY REMEMBERS. By Irvin Faust. Arbor House. $6.95.

Use of the stream of consciousness technique by an inept writer is comparable to letting a baby play with a loaded pistol: The results can be disastrous.

Faust, happily, is by no means inept. Rather he is a careful stylist who knows very well what he is doing and does it very well. The result, "Willy Remembers," is a well-stirred blend of an old man's muddled memories told with humor and compassion.

The old man is Willy T. Kleinhans, a Spanish-American War veteran and proud of it. The story he tells is his, that of his family, and that of the United States during the years of his long life span.

And the story is an absorbing one, provided the reader is willing to sit still for Willy's abrupt mental leaps through time. Leaps that carry from the battlegrounds of Cuba to the fighting in World War II -- a war that cost Willy his favorite son.

As for the unfavorite son, he also is a literary charmer. All that ever interested the boy was pole-vaulting and Willy's anguished reaction to his son taking a college degree in pole-vaulting and continuing to vault until he is in to his 40s makes for some of the funniest reading in this generally very funny book.

New Camera Valuable Tool in Class Room

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Supplementing traditional learning tools, camera and film are increasingly making the classroom scene. Photographically produced visuals are producing more sophisticated and practical approaches to learning as product technology simplifies the application of the camera as an educational tool.

The new, moderately - priced Kodak Instamatic X-30 camera, with its extended - range electronic exposure control enables the photographer to work around the clock, indoors and out. Its capability for automatic available light photography opens a vast realm of visual note - taking and photo documentation to the student.

Whether recording a professor's vital chalkboard diagrams before the last bell, photographing a prominent speaker in the campus quadrangle, or enumerating the details of a laboratory setup, the Instamatic X-30 camera is a valuable adjunct to pen and paper.

The new freedom afforded by the available light capabilities of this camera allows the student to record the wealth of information housed in museums and art galleries, and to capture the beauty of magnificent artifacts displayed in glass cases in any kind of light.

When the light level is low, a red - light signal, visible in the viewfinder of the Instamatic X-30 camera, cautions the photographer to use a magicube or to steady the camera on a firm support during the automatic time exposure.

Available light photography, which is free from the distance limitations of flash, allows the student to record first the broad view by photographing the whole display, from the unique porcelain vases displayed in the foregound to the vast regal portrait dominating the background. Then it is easy to fill in with individual shots of key elements of the grouping, adapting gallery lighting to recreate mood and atmosphere.

Pictures with interesting composition can be created by utilizing the perspective of one area opening into another. Because the Instamatic X-30 camera produces in-focus pictures from four feet to infinity, the entire exhibit area will be recorded.

Such an excursion through history in art, will produce a wealth of visual material which can be applied to assignments ranging from thematic photo essays or slide presentations to an in- depth research project for courses in art, humanities, literature, sociology, history and anthropology.

Surplus and duplicate prints, stored in a well - documented album or file, will serve as flash cards in reviewing for an exam or as motivation for future assignments.

All the world becomes a classroom through the perceptive eye of the disciplined observer with a keen sense for making photo fact of the moment.

OFFICE OF EMERGENCY PREPAREDNESS OPENS MISSOURI OFFICE

APPLICANTS FOR FOREIGN SERVICE EMPLOYMENT SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, D. C. – In letters received by my office, Missourians have raised many questions about the operations of the ninety - day program, established by the President, freezing wages, prices and rents.

The new Cost of Living Council, appointed by the President, sets policies during the wage / price freeze period, and the Office of Emergency Preparedness is responsible for program operation.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness has designated regional offices in ten United States cities to carry forward the program. Kansas City is the regional office serving the states of Missouri, Iowa Kansas and Nebraska; and is located at the New Federal Building, Room 142, 601 East 12th Street, Kansas City, Missouri 64106 (816 374-5831).

Question and answer pamphlets from the Cost of Living Council, describing regulations of the wage / price freeze, are available at local Internal Revenue Service offices in every state, including offices in the followg Missouri cities: Kansas City, St. Joseph, St. Louis, Springfield, Clayton, Columbia and Joplin.

The OEP has also arranged for program specialists to be available at the IRS offices to answer inquiries from area residents and to receive, discuss, and investigate reported violations.

In addition, county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, have been designated as receiving centers for inquiries by rural citizens on any questions concerning farm prices as well as other aspects of the wage /price freeze program.

Headquarters for the ASCS in Missouri are located at 10th and Walnut Streets, Columbia, Missouri 65201.

FOREIGN SERVICE EXAM. Applicants are currently being sought by the Foreign Service of the Department of State and the U.S. Information Agency in fields of administrative, consular, economic / commercial, political, and cultural / information affairs.

Examinations for employment with the Foreign Service will be held December 4, and all application forms should be completed and returned by October 31.

Tests will be conducted in approximately 300 cities in the United States and abroad, including the following cities in Missouri:

Cape Girardeau, Columbia, Kansas City, Kirksville, St. Louis and Springfield.

Applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 54 by the examination date, and citizens of the United States for at least 7½ years.

Missourians interested in obtaining applications and additional information may write to: Board of Examiners for the U.S. Foreign Service, Department of State, Washington, D.C. 20520.

Frankly Speaking

VOCATIONAL-TECHNICAL EDUCATION FILLS A REAL NEED

Many of the students filling our junior and senior high schools are wandering in an academic no-man's land.

Their physical presence at school is required by their parents or by compulsory attendance laws, but mentally they are truants. They reject their schools and their teachers as irrevelant to their lives and their interests.

For some it is a passing phase. Their motivation will return as they outgrow the difficulties of adolescence. Other exhibit the symptoms of profound alienation that may well lead to a permanent dropout responsibility.

But a sizable segment of our student population has correctly assessed the educational process as it applies to them -- it is irrelevant to their goals, to their interests, to their need to prepare for entering the world of work.

They are not turned off by all education -- they are willing and enthusiastic about preparing now for a future vocation. But they are the victims of an educational psychology that places the highest premium on preparing students for college, regardless of whether a college education is necessary or desirable for a perticular student.

Missouri A Leader

Fortunately for Missourians, our state has committed itself to making vocational= technical education of a very high quality available to all students. A network of 46 area vocational-technical schools--36 of them now actually operating-- will soon span the state.

I gained a firsthand knowledge of our state's need for greatly expanded facilities of this kind during my tenure as chairman of the Governor's Task Force on Vocational-Technical Education when I was Lieutenant Governor.

My interest in this area has continued as a member of the U. S. Senate Education Subcommittee, which has developed the legislation authorizing vitally needed federal support for programs such as the one in Missouri.

The children who are now in school will be earning their living well into the next century. We must privide them with the skills they will need to take advantage of the new opportunities that will be available in the future. These are skills the nation will need, as well, for American pre-eminence in industry and commerce rests, in large measure, upon our sophisticated technology.

Educators, parents, and legislators must themselves be educated to the fact that there is no stigma associated with vocational-technical education.

To paraphrase one sage: The society that heaps undue praise on its philosophers while downgrading its plumbers will find that neither its theories nor its pipes holds water.

Jail Term For Breaking Peace

CHARLESTON---Magistrate T. J. Brown, Jr. sentenced Bobby Kemp to 10 days in jail on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Leroy Maxwell and others, charges with disturbing the peace, withdrew a plea of innocent to the charge and was fined $35.16.

Charges of destroying personal property and disturbing the peace brought fines of $10 on each charge plus costs of $28.50 to Henry Williams. Judge Brown stayed the fines on payment of costs and gave Williams until Sept. 15 to pay the costs.

Jimmy Paul Wood, III, charged with violating minimum speed of 40 miles per hour on Interstate 57, was fined $26.

William Fisher, charged with having no drivers license and no state license plates was levied a $5 fine on each count with $11 cost.

A charge of careless and imprudent driving brought a $21 fine to Richard Arnold Wilson. A $21 fine was assessed James Robert Cade for having expired vehicle license.

An account suit brought by Doctors Fowler and Myre against Charles A. and Annie Hawes was dismissed with prejudice by the doctors.

A charge of felonious assault against A.V. Jackson was dismissed by the state.

Frank B. Young was given to Thursday to employ counsel for his defense on a charge of attempt to commit an offense by stealing. Young was released on $250 cash bond.

$25 Fine On Driving Charge

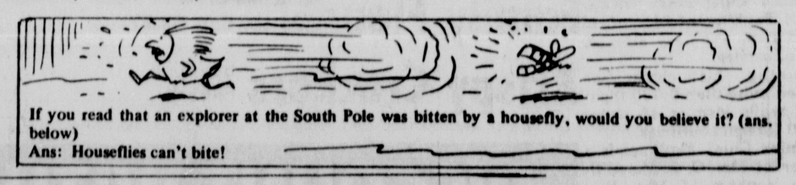

EAST PRAIRIE--- A charge of driving a motor vehicle without an operator's license brought a $25 fine in police court to Leroy Clark.

Judge J. Marvin Bryan assessed fines of $20 each to Lucille Warren, Jerry Warren and Goldman Ditto. Roger Brooks forfeited a $25 bond, posted on the same charge.

Public intoxication charges brought fines of $20 each to Goldman Ditto, Roberta Beckton, Goldy Crow, Claude Phipps, and Eddie Thurman. Zilform Jackman forfeited his bond of $20 on the same charge.

Floyd Aters and Bryant Johnston each paid $25 fines for peace disturbance and fighting. Edward Cross was assessed a $25 fine for public intoxication and peace disturbance.

A charge of illegal parking brought a $10 fine to Sammie Redd.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Sept. 8, the 251st day of 1971. There are 114 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1546, a Spanish expedition landed at what is now St. Augustine, Fla. and founded the first permanent European settlement in North America.

On this date:

In 1664, Peter Stuyvesant surrendered New Amsterdam to the British.

In 1760, Wisconsin came under English control after being French territory.

In 1855, the Crimean War ended.

In 1883, construction of the Northern Pacific Railroad was completed with the driving of the last spike near Garrison, Mont.

In 1934, 134 persons lost their lives in a fire aboard the luxury liner Morro Castle off the New Jersey coast.

In 1935, Sen. Huey Long of Louisiana was shot at Baton Rouge. He died two days later.

Ten years ago: Tunis agreed to permit France to retain a naval base near Bizerte.

Five years ago: There was racial rioting in Atlanta, Ga.

One year ago: Cardinal Richard Cushing resigned as Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston.

Will Hayti Vote For Change Again In Mayor Race

By CHARLES BRADY

HAYTI -- In many ways the rivals for the mayor's office — Mayor Harry Dowdy, 55, and former Mayor Lee Roy Bain, 60, — have similar ideas but Bain has the most experience in city government.

Lee Roy Bain

Bain, who was defeated by two votes April 6 in the general election for mayor, has served in that position for seven two - year terms. He was an alderman eight years prior to that. Mayor Dowdy has never held a city office.

The two will be the only candidates in a special mayor's election set Sept. 14. The Missouri Supreme court today rejected a petition by Hayti City Attorney James (Tick) Vickery asking it to prohibit Judge J. O. Swink's injunction ordering City Clerk Ellis Webb to allow only Bain and Dowdy on the Sept. 14 election ballot.

Bain and Dowdy were the only candidates for mayor in the April election.

"I feel I have a very good chance to be elected," Bain said of the Sept. 14 election. "I think the reason it was so close before was because there was this trend going around when everyone likes a change."

Hayti voters must have been in this mood for they ousted not only the mayor April 6, but Collector Fred Chaffin was beaten by Bob Turnage and ward one alderman Boyd McCrary was defeated by Dale Williams.

Bain said he would like to see many of the improvements started under his administration completed with him in the mayor's seat.

He said industry and housing were real problems.

Bain said Dowdy was "new in town and doesn't really know the problems of the city."

Residents of this Southeast Missouri city have been delayed in knowing who was their mayor. Legal entanglements have mired down the answer.

Bain said that the reason he protested the results of the April 6 election was because eight voters in ward one voted in ward two.

On Sept. 1, Circuit Judge William H. Billings got both candidates together and after they agreed invoked a seldom used law which calls for another election to determine who will be the mayor for the next two years.

Attorney Vickery set the special election for Sept. 14 and prepared a notice for an election open to other candidates and giving them until Sept. 10 to file for mayor.

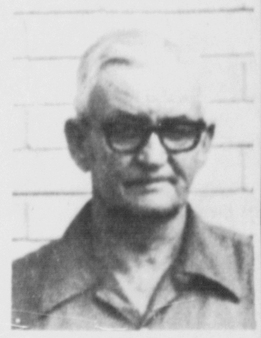

This brought protests from Dowdy and Bain, who claimed they were the only two eligible to run. Vickery said the law isn't clear and he believed the contest was open to all.

That was followed by Judge Swink's injunction Friday and Vickery's petition to the Missouri Supreme Court.

Bain said Dowdy asked for the special election and hinted that the reason Dowdy wanted it was because "we would have taken him to court."

Bain, who owns and operates Bain Motor Company, said "management of city government and operating the city on an economic

Two-Man Election Upheld

JEFFERSON CITY — The Missouri Supreme Court at 10 a.m. today denied Hayti City Attorney James (Tick) Vickery's application for a writ of prohibition ruling in effect that only Mayor Harry Dowdy and former Lee Roy Bain will be candidates in a special election for mayor in Hayti Sept. 14.

The action by the court was taken on petition by Vickery to prohibit Judge J. O. Swink's injunction ordering Hayti City Clerk Ellis Webb to allow only Bain and Dowdy on the Sept. 14 election ballot and to open it to other candidates.

No One Wants City Hall

The sale of the city administrative building on South Kingshighway was turned over to realtors last night by the city council when a call for bids was unsuccessful.

The city has not set a price for the building, but City Manager Raymert Miller said this morning, the building will be re-advertised in hopes of getting an acceptable bid.

The city administrative offices and the city jail will move to their new quarters in the old post office building on North New Madrid in mid-October and the present building then will be vacated.

Mike Bates, city summer recreation program chairman, reported on the progress and success of the program. The three-page report covered the faults and advantages of the program.

Bates reported:

"The program was a learning experience which gave us an objective look at some of the possibilities and some of the problems involved with a program of its nature. I personally feel that a similar program on a broader scale should be developed by the city for all its youngsters.

Mayor Lee Shell said:

"In time to come and I don't believe it's too far off, Sikeston will have a year-round recreational program."

The park board recommended to the city the removal of all drinking fountains from city parks. The recommendation, said the park board's letter, was a result of vandalism over the summer. A large number of the drinking fountains have been damaged or destroyed.

Miller said the collection of fees from city merchant licenses are coming in slightly slower than the same time last year, but added that collections were up nearly $7,000. Nearly 100 merchants have not paid the new licensing fee and Miller said the merchants would be assessed a late penalty amounting to 10 per cent of their license fee per month.

Sikeston's newest street east of Pine from Gladys to Virginia near the high school, was named Twitty Drive by unanimous consent of the council. The street was named in honor of former Superintendent of Schools Lynn Twitty. Clem Beal made the recommendation saying Twitty was "outstanding in his accomplishments to our school system and the community as a whole."

A group of Petty street residents protested to the council on the paving of a two-block portion of the street. The protestors said the street paving was unwanted by residents of the 300 block of the street and said the newly installed street was not as good as the previous one. Miller said the council received a petition from a majority of the residents of the street and added that no protest was heard when the action was first taken.

John Scott, president of the Sikeston chapter of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, spoke to the council on publicity on a "red masked bandit", who terrorized the city in July.

Scott said reports of the bandit in the Daily Standard and on radio stations had a "damaging relationship" to the black community. Scott said that apparently all news reports of the account of the crimes originated with police and asked the city to examine police policies on such incidents.

Scott protested reports by police that the bandit was apparently a Negro male.

A 1,200 ft. unpaved section of Murray Lane in the new Clayton Heights division was approved for paving and Welter Drive, near Malone and Hyde also was approved for a paving project.

The city received an excellent rating from the Water Pollution Baord in Jefferson City.

Rape Case To Circuit

NEW MADRID — Five were bound over to circuit court on felony charges after waiving preliminary hearings in magistrate court before Judge Leo Hedgepeth.

Thomas L. Combs, Lilbourn, charged with forcible rape on a 17-year-old girl Sept. 4, was bound over under $500 bond, after he waived preliminary hearing.

Donald Matthews and Lynn Atchley each were bound over to circuit court under $500 bonds after waiving preliminary hearing on a felonious stealing charge. The two are accused of stealing a school bus battery valued at $50 July 15 from Lilbourn school.

Willie Harris and James MaHaney charged with burglary and larceny in connection with the Sept. 2 theft of a rifle and radio valued at $75 from the home of L. B. Milton, route two, New Madrid, were bound over to circuit court under $500 bonds each after waiving preliminary hearings.

Steven Lynn Mitchell was fined $150, given six months jail sentence and granted probation on charges of driving while intoxicated and illegal possession of beer. His driver's license was suspended for one year.

Princell Jones was levied a $125 fine on charges of driving while intoxicated and operating a vehicle with no operator license.

Judge Hedgepeth assessed a $175 fine against William C. Sheets, charged with operating overweight vehicle of 2,300 pounds.

David McCullough was sentenced to six months in jail and fined $45 on peace disturbance charge. He was give a $20 fine on speeding charge. Lenzie Watson paid $25 fine on peace disturbance charge. Speeding charge against Clarence Louis Vaughn resulted in a $20 fine.

Charged with failure to exercise care, Brain L. Clark was assessed a $20 fine.

Tommy Lee Daniels was levied a $15 fine on a charge of failure to transfer license.

Judy Catherine Poole charged with careless and imprudent driving was granted change of venue to Pemiscot county magistrate court.

Standley Renamed

JEFFERSON CITY — Former Sikeston board of education president L. M. Standley was today reappointed by Gov. Warren Hearnes to the Missouri Commission of Higher Education. Standley has served on the commission eight years. He was first appointed by former Gov. John Dalton.

Dr. C. Brice Ratchford, new president of the University of Missouri, Dr. H. Tudor Westover of Poplar Bluff and Laurence E. Mallinckrodt of St. Louis also were reappointed.

Standley was president of the Sikeston board 12 years and was active in the state school board association. He teaches social studies at the high school.

Enlarged Dial Area Discussed

By Staff Writer

BERNIE — United Telephone Company representatives R. E. Cannon, district manager from Steele, and C. D. Williams, commercial manager from Kansas City, met with Mayor R. B. Woods and the town board last night to discuss expanded area free dialing.

The representatives presented a plan for area free dialing but it was rejected as "too high" by the board.

The plan, for the Bernie-Malden - Parma area, called for an additional monthly charge $2.05 for residents and $6.63 for businesses.

The board voted to investigate the telephone situation to see if anything else can be done.

A letter was presented to the board from the Missouri Inspection Bureau, Jefferson City, asking the city to replace its 1953 fire truck.

Bids were opened for city gasoline for the coming year. Low bidder was Mutual Farmers Association with 16 cents a gallon for premium grade gasoline.

Second Generator Unit

NEW MADRID-- A second 6000,000-kilowatt multi-million electrical generating unit seems certain for the giant industrial complex in the City of New Madrid Industrial Park.

Plans for the second unit were disclosed last night at the city council meeting when the council was told that a long-term lease was being negotiated for the site adjourning the unit nearing completion, which will be put into operation next year.

Cost of the proposed second unit has not been determined. Cost estimates of the present unit originally were $98 million but ballooned to more than $150 million. High labor costs and low productivity have been blamed for much of the

Last year an option was exercised for the purchase of a second steam turbine generating unit from the Brown-Boveri corp., in Switzerland for about $8 million. This turbine generator will be the heart of the second generating station.

By exercising this option given at the time the first steam turbine generator was contracted, an estimated $4 to $6 million savings will be realized based on current prices.

This generating station is being built will city revenue bonds with Associated Electric Cooperative, Springfield, project managers. Associated Electric will operate the plant under

Tax Statements Go Out In October

BENTON — Approximately 12,000 personal and 15,000 real estate 1971 tax statements will be mailed around Oct. 15, Scott County Collector Tom Marshall announced today.

Marshall said there are no significant changes in the tax statements or the number that will be mailed this year.

His August report of collections totaled $29,570.95.

The state will get $192.80; Scott county, $2,835.09, health, $594.25; library, $437.45; Johnson grass, $151.83; county special roads, $1,707.80; and county drainage, $312.24.

Illmo-Scott City R-1 school district will receive $7,101.22; Chaffee R-2, $1,973.66; Oran R-3, $1,034.33; Kelly R-4, $1,159.92; Morley R-5, $3,194.30; Sikeston R-6, $8,526.27; and Kelso C-7, $230.69.

Marshall said 1970 delinquent taxes collected in September bear a two per cent penalty and nine per cent interest charge.

Coffee Break Wins Praise

The Marston wake and break stop was manned by the Bootheel C.B. club in Sikeston for the last time this year on Interstate 55 over the Labor Day weekend with 1,188 cups of coffee served.

Fire Chief Dolph Webb said the break stop was opened at 8 a.m. Saturday and operated until 5 p.m. Monday.

Those who stopped found the break stop unusual and most offered comments such as "very good" and "keep it up," Webb said. Travelers from throughout the United States took advantage of the break over the weekend, including travelers from India and Berlin, Germany.

AMERICAN BUSINESSMEN SCORE HIGH

At a time when downgrading America has become such a favorite pastime of the media, the U. S. News & World Report (Aug. 9th) reports encouragingly on how foreign businessmen around the world assess their American counterparts. It comes as a welcome boost to national self-respect and pride.

Americans are esteemed for know-how, frankness and informality. Italians admire the way Americans strike quickly to the heart of the problem: "Your people use nouns and verbs, don't waste time on adjectives."

American businessmen are admired for the way our executive "brass" pitches in to help subordinates. A Japanese businessman rated Americans tops for logic and efficiency.

Imitation is the sincerest form of flattery. For all their criticisms of America, it is clear that foreigners are becoming more Americanized in advertising and marketing. The American way of doing business facilitates business everywhere. It is one of our most welcome exports.

BACK TO SCHOOL

School opened last week and the annual exhortations are in order for drivers to watch out for youthful pedestrians, and for students to treat school as more than just a place to waste six or seven hours a day. Hopefully these appeals will be heeded a little more this year than in the past, for their age and familarity do not decrease their importance.

The vacation for the students and the teachers is over with the renewal of doing homework and taking tests, of grading papers and mollifying parents.

The weatherman has provided some help with a change from the traditional oppressive heat of the season. The cool will also allow mothers to enjoy the relief of getting the children out of the house without any guilt feelings about sticking them in some sweltering classroom while Mom enjoys her new freedom in air-conditioned comfort.

JAPAN AND NIXON'S NEW ECONOMIC POLICY

There will be a lot of homework done before the Joint U.S. - Japan Committee on Trade and Economic Affairs meets in Washington on Thursday, Sept. 9. On Aug. 10, Joseph Slevin wrote in The Washington Post: "The administration is going to demand that Japan change its foreign economic policies but it can't decide how tough the United States ought to get." President Nixon's announcement five days later that the United States was cutting the dollar free of gold and establishing a 10 per cent surcharge on imports showed just how tough Washington intended to get. The surcharge will effect 90 per cent of Japanese exports to the United States or about one-third of all Japan's export trade. the combined effect of both measures is expected to cut U. S. imports from Japan by nearly $2 billion a year.

Japan's currency and trading methods are believed to be the main targets of Nixon's drastic actions. Japan's continuing balance of trade surplus -- $1.5 billion last year and expected to be even greater this year -- had sharpened demands in this country for either a revaluation of the yen or elimination of some of Japan's trade restrictions. The administration is hoping that the new 10 per cent surcharge on imported goods will force the Japanese to revalue the yen. It has indicated that an upward revaluation of at least 10 per cent would lead to removal of the surcharge. In the absence of a definite assurance, however, the Japanese are afraid they will be stuck with both an upvalued yen and extra duties.

The protectionists' arguement that the United States has been the victim of Japanese trade restrictions overlooks a few facts. An unpublished State Department analysis quoted in the August issue of Fortune shows that by the end of this year, the difference between Japanese and American tariff rates on industrial products will be less than 3 per cent. During the past 10 years, the United States has added new quotas on imports while Japan has been tearing hers down. It is obvious that new trade and investment arrangements between the two countries must be made. But any workable agreement will require concessions by both.

Experienced businessmen hold differences of opinion concerning the effects of advertising.

One opinion is that no one can be expected to remember the details of advertising and that advertising is effective only when it gradually implants certain attitudes in the unconscious mind of the public.

On the other extreme an aggressive retailer may argue that advertising is not effective unless the public acts on the detailed offerings of a particular advertisement.

Both of these opinions persist because both are based on truth. Advertising may work in either or both ways. The best of retail advertising should result in immediate action on individual ads, while, over a period of time, creating a favorable overall image of a business.

It is true that very few people remember the details of an advertisement, even when the ad is studied carefully. Thus, it is important for the retailer who wants specific action on his advertising to choose a medium which is retained and used for reference.

That is why the newspaper is the best medium for retail item advertising. Grocers are well aware of the importance of item listings in the newspaper. Even though newspaper ads are posted in a grocery store, it is a familiar sight to see shoppers walking through the same store with a newspaper ad in hand for ready reference.

Under usual conditions, the community newspaper is the only retail advertising medium which is retained in the home long enough to have any reference value. It is also the medium which is likely to bring the most long range prestige to local advertisers.

We offer a warm welcome to our returning educators who are opening our schools and colleges for the planned onrush of students.

A Standard carrier proffered this story about our educational process.

"Now, children," said the teacher, "there's a wonderful example in the life of an ant. Everyday the ant goes to work all day. Everyday the ant is busy. And in the end what happens?"

Came a voice from the back of the room, "Someone steps on him."

OCEAN MAMMAL DEBATE

Last spring reporters and members of various humane societies witnessed seal hunts on the eastern Canadian coast, and returned with pictures and films which inspired a vehement public outcry against the annual slaughter. The Animal Protection Institute of America sponsored an ad which warned that "the seal may soon take his place with the other 550 extinct or threatened species of the animal kingdom." In response, several congressmen and senators have introduced bills aimed at protecting seals and other marine mammals. A subcommittee of the House Merchant Marine and Fisheries Committee will hold a hearing on the bills Thursday, Sept. 9.

Seal hunting takes place in many parts of the world, but American protesters focus on the northwestern Atlantic where Canadians operate, and the Pribilof Islands off the coast of Alaska. There the native Aleuts are paid by the federal government to kill some 40,000 seals each year. The government then auctions off the skins to foreign buyers, and keeps any profits to maintain the islands. Seal fur is used on coats and other elegant apparel.

The National Marine Fisheries Service insists that the Pribilof fur seal herd is in no danger of extinction. "Under scientific management which determines the numbers, sexes, and ages of animals to be harvested each year, the Pribilof herds have increased from fewer than 200,000 animals in 1911 to about 1.3 million at present," writes Walter Kirkness, an official of the Service. He emphasizes that all killing is done as humanely as possible, and that no baby seals are killed, as they are in Canada.

The Ocean Mammal Protection Act of 1971, introduced simultaneously in the House and Senate, would prohibit the "harassing, collection or killing" of seals, whales, walruses, polar bears, porpoises and dolphins in U. S. territory or waters. It would ban the import of seal skins into the country, and call for the initiation of treaties with other nations to protect such threatened species. According to Sen. Fred R. Harris (D Okla.), "It is the sale of fur coats or the suede purse for the American dollar which provides the economic incentive for the killing of hundreds of thousands of seals."

Kirkness told Editorial Research Reports he doubts that a ban on foreign imports to the United States would greatly reduce seal hunting. He estimates that about 80 per cent of seal fur products are bought outside of this country -- mainly in Euorpe. Experts familiar wi h the Pribilofs also question a provision in the bill wh ch would turn them into a National Seal Rookery a d Bird Sanctuary, with the natives working as rangers nd guides. The islands are too remote and chilly for a l but the most determined tourists.

From Credit River, Minn., comes a ruling from a federal district court that the federal reserve note — the most common folding money in circulation — is "null and void and unlawful tender." The ruling has been given the glare of publicity by U.S. Rep. Omar Burleson of Texas who thinks the ruling deserves the attention of the U. S. Supreme Court. Rep. Burleson says a Savage, Minn., man borrowed $14,000 in 1964 from a bank and in 1967, the bank foreclosed on the loan's collateral of real estate. A year later, a jury refused to grant the bank the land because it had not lent the borrower lawful money. The bank appealed to the federal court, but made the mistake of paying the filing fee with $2 in federal reserve notes. The court refused the money, citing the Constitution which states that "no state shall make anything but gold and silver coin a tender in payment of debts." Thus the court officiailly noticed what everyone else has known for years: federal reserve notes are not redeemable for gold or silver and aren't really legal. It is an interesting turn of events, but an unreal one which makes a sad comment upon the times: since everyone uses illegal money, it must really be legal. Mustn't it?

ANOTHER CHANCE SHOULD BE LAST

Gov. Warren E. Hearnes' appeal to Transportation Secretary John A. Volpe to reconsider plans for withholding $11.5 million in federal highway funds from Missouri deserves sympathetic attention.

Hearnes wrote Volpe that he expected the General Assembly to pass federally acceptable billboard legislation in the regular session beginning next January.

The state lawmakers' failure to enact laws conforming to federal billboard regulations led to Washington's notification that 10 per cent of Missouri's $115 annual road-building allotment would be withheld in the current fiscal year.

The governor pointed out that bills introduced in the last session and conferences held with federal highway officials indicated good faith on the part of the state. The problems, he said, were that there was some confusion over waiting for a federal opinion on whether the proposals met Washington standards. Time ran out before decision on billboard legislation. The Assembly, however, has long been dilatory and blameworthy so.

Hearnes has made a reasonable request. The loss of $11.5 million in federal highway dollars would be a severe setback to state road projects.

It must be made unmistably clear now that if Volpe gives Missouri another chance it will be the last chance.

The state must approve the federally required billboard regulations next year or suffer the consequences.

LAND-GRANT MYTH

one of the hoariest myths in the annals of U. S. transportation is the claim that railroads enjoy astronomical financial benefits from early land grants. A question that is occasionally asked is whether the rails, because of these grants a century ago, are not obligated to run passenger trains as a public service, irrespective of the losses they incur.

In a brief rail booklet entitled "20 Questions and 19 Answers, "the subject of land grants is touched upon in the following words: "The land - grant myth has been around a long time. But less than 8 per cent of the nation's total rail mileage was involved in either federal or state land grants. And the lands were not a 'gift.' In exchange, railroads receiving the lands -- as well as those competing with them -- were required to haul government freight and personnel at half rates and mail at a 20 per cent reduction for almost 90 years. It was not until after World War II that Congress ended the arrangement as unfair. It has been estimated that compensation paid by the railroads through these reduced rates amounted to $1.25 billion -- almost 10 times the value of the land received. The government immediately doubled the price of the land it retained. And it began to find buyers, thus opening up a new territory for development. This, after all, was the point."

Land grants to railroads were one of the best business deals ever entered into by the federal government. They helped to encourage the building of railroads across the trackless West, which opened up the country for settlement and business growth, to the benefit of the government and the nation. The railroads more than met their end of the obligation.

LABOR PROTESTS PROFITS

Most of the opposition to President Nixon's orders freezing wages and prices has been coming from organized labor.

Some of this is the result of the sweeping effect of those orders, canceling wage increases which already had been negotiated in some cases and holding off automatic raises that would have resulted from added experience on the job. Those controls are tougher than any imposed in the past.

But some of the opposition also is the result of exemption of corporate profits and interst rates from the control system.

ON THE FIRST point, labor has little reason to complain. The freeze order is for just 90 days and so long as everyone is treated alike under the rules during that period, none should feel unduly imposed upon.

It is good to see that the administration has been holding close to the hard line on this, making just as few exceptions as possible. It will be helpful if the various branches of the federal government get together and clear their policy statements with the Cost of Living Council before they are issued in the future, so as to avoid another bobble such as appeared when the Defense Department announced it would continue to give pay increases.

ON THE SECOND point, though, labor has a valid complaint. It is a matter that must be given consideration by the administration if this freeze is to be kept in effect even in revised form after the 90-day period ends.

Where wage increases have been budgeted for but not yet given, the money will have to show up in some other category. Since it is unlikely that prices will be cut during a period of freeze, the place that money is going to show up is in earnings of the firms involved.

Not all the negotiated wage increases had been budgeted, of course, because some price increases which had been announced to cover recent settlements had not gone into effect either and are being held in abeyance. But nobody seems to know how much is involved in the already - budgeted accounts.

The profit picture when the freeze went into effect was quite good. Profits before taxes had dipped sharply in durable goods manufacturing industries during the last quarter of 1970, but they bounced back sharply early this year. Indeed, the profits in those industries during the first quarter of this year were 16.9 billion dollars, compared with 8.8 billion in the last quarter of 1970, reflecting recovery and catchup from some strikes.

Corporate profits after taxes plus the corporate capital consumption allowances shot up to 103.8 billion dollars in the first quarter of this year, easily a record for the last decade.

So business has been profiting from inflation, too.

TREASURY SECRETARY John Connally says now that profits will be controlled because prices are frozen. This does not necessarily follow, however, for profits are determined not only by prices but also by volume of sales and if the freeze is accomplishing the objective of stimulating business the volume of sales should increase in the months ahead.

The possibility that business will be skimming the returns of the wage freeze thus is something that must be kept in mind by those in Washington who are responsible now for the administration of this difficult program.

IT IS ALL RIGHT for labor to keep pressure on the administration to watch over the profit and interest figures and see to it that they don't get out of line.

But the labor leaders should keep in mind that action in this area is needed first of all by Congress. The freeze orders were imposed by the President under the authority which Congress had given him many months ago. That authority did not encompass profits and interest rates.

So the labor leaders should be exerting at least part of their efforts now to getting Congress to amend the presidential authority so that if it appears an inflationary bulge is developing in those areas the President will be able to include those items in the revised rules that may be needed after the 90-day period.

RELIGIOUS PERSECUTION CONTINUES IN THE SOVIET UNION

Anyone familiar with Russian history and culture before communism knows that the Russian people were deeply religious. The Soviets, therefore, set about systematically trying to eliminate religious belief from Russia, hoping thereby to remove the major obstacle to communism. This religious persecution has continued ever since and is still going on today.

Article 124 of the Soviet constitution promises religious freedom to all Soviet citizens. Yet like most provisions, oftheir constitution, it is for propaganda purposes only. Before communism, almost every Russian village had its Orthodox church; now there are only about 7,000 churches open in the country. In many of these, the priests are actually agents for the government.

The Communists are even more ruthless toward other Christian churches. Many Baptists are in prison camps. When parents attempt to teach their children Christianity, their children are taken away from them and placed in state institutions where they are indoctrinated in atheism.

Russian Jews face an equally dismal situation. Only 60 synagogues and rabbis are permitted for the country's three million Jews, and no new rabbis are being trained.

Yet in spite of persecution, many of the Russian people refuse to surrender their religious heritage. They still attend religious services where these are permitted, and a large percentage of babies is baptized.

Those Russians who are valiantly attempting to preserve their faith in spite of Communist persecution deserve the admiration and support of religious people every where. Their ordeal should be kept in mind by all those who wish to "build bridges" to communism, pretending that it has "Mellowed."

EAST BRUNSWICK, N.J. (AP) — Fathers deserve protection.

If women's groups are liberating mama and youth organizations are protecting the kids, somebody ought to raise some concern about dear old Dad.

Day care centers spring mother from watching after the kids and new appliances eliminate housework. Boys and girls are pretaught and organized almost from the moment of conception to reach total utilization, full enjoyment, the complete absence of pain or frustration.

With all that going on, daddy ought to get his turn.

There needn't be any such formal association as the National Organization of Women— NOW—or Protection against Parents—PAP. But there should be at least some consideration given to the preservation and even encouragement of fathers, to the elimination of those things which make fatherhood less than totally pleasant sometimes.

Such considerations should be reasonable. It would be totally impractical, for instance, to come out against elimination of leftovers on Friday nights, or for prohibition of TV dinners or cold cuts on bridge club days or for any ban on Parent's Day at the school or Father's Night at the YWCA.

But a rule against more than one kid at a time horsey-riding would help a lot. It might even improve the life expectancy averages and certainly should cut down on back ache as a leading cause of employe absenteeism.

And some rule about not jumping on daddy's stomach when he's down, would be useful, too. As would some age limit on playing football with the neighborhood kids and some sort of definition of the rules of playing rough with the old man after supper.

Legislation could help in some areas.

The first law should require that all toys must be sold assembled. No more boxed bicycles or jungle gyms in a carton.

Penalties for violation should be severe. The guy who sells a swing set in a crate ought to be sentenced to assemble an electric road racing set—without instructions. Leniency would be granting him all the parts.

It's possible that Congress and the various state legislatures would react slowly to these proposals, but not really too likely if you think about it.

After all, most elected officials are fathers, too.

Washington-Merry-Go-Round

By Jack Anderson

WASHINGTON-- At the same time that the U.S. command is striving mightily to stop GI drug addiction in Vietnam, a top South Vietnamese general had been using U, S. military equipment to hustle heroin.

This is documented in a number of intelligence reports, all highly classified, which have now reach Washington from Saigon. The reports nail Major Gen. Ngo Dzu, military commander of South Vietnam's central highlands, as one of the chief heroin traffickers in Southeast Asia.

The incriminating details, including dates and places of heroin transactions, have been reported by the Army's Criminal Investigation Division, U.S. Public Safety Directorate and Rural Development Support Team in South Vietnam.

Dzu's accomplices are also named, including a former South Vietnamese Senator, a Chinese businessman from Cholon, the South Vietnamese provost marshal in Qui Nhon and several South Vietnamese navy officers.

Dzu was first named as a heroin dealer by Rep. Robert Steele, R-Conn., in testimony last July before a House Foreign Affairs subcommittee. The Congressman told of his fact-finding mission to Indochina where, he said, widespread corruption among officials had blocked efforts to halt the heroin traffic.

The day after Steele's testimony, South Vietnam's President Thieu went through the motions of ordering a narcotics investigation. It's doubtful, however, that Dzu will ever be tried and convicted.

U.S. AIDE'S ROLE

One of Dzu's most vigorous defenders was his senior American advisor, John Paul Vann, who assured the press: "There's no information available to me that in any shape manner or fashion would substantiate the charges Congressman Steele has made."

The incriminating intelligence reports would indicate that Vann either was woefully incompetent or worse, was helping Dzu to cover up his dope smuggling operations.

The first intelligence report linking Dzu to the heroin trade was filed on January 6, 1971, by the CID. Citing highly sensitive sources, the CID charged that the narcotics traffic in the central highlands had increased tremendously since DZU had taken command of the region in September, 1970.

The CID's sources asserted that Dzu not only protected the key traffickers who kicked back part of their profits to him but also took a direct part in the smuggling through his father, Ngo Khoung. At that time, Ngo Khoung was described as an "important " heroin dealer.

It was also alleged that Dzu often used his personal plane--furnished, of course, by the U.S.-- to smuggle heroin. A CID report, dated May 12, 1971, told how Dzu and his father took ingenious advantage of the funeral of a South Vietnamese general in Saigon to fly in heroin from the highlands.

Yet General Dzu, a power in South Vietnam, is expected to be given a whitewash.

KICKBACK CASE

We exposed in March, 1970, that "Gentleman Jim" Collins, the monied and mannerly Congressman from Dallas, had been taking illegal kickbacks from some of his employees. A federal grand jury has now wound up its secret investigation of the case.

Collins at first rushed around getting his employees to sign statements that they hadn't kicked back any of their government salary.

One who was slick-talked into signing such a statement was Noel Lee Reed, a part-time employee in the Congressman's Dallas office. Collins also traveled to Mineral Wells, Tex., to talk to a former employee, Carolyn Conner. But she couldn't be conned.

Both have now told the truth under oath to the grand jury. The Justice Department, however, is preparing to indict Collins's former aide, George Haag, who collected and disbursed the kickback money. Although Collins knew about the collections, he didn't directly supervise the kickback fund. The Justice Department, therefore, will let him off the hook.

YOUNG EXTREMISTS

The political pros are rubbing their eyes in disbelief over private polls which show more than 20 percent of the new teenage voters will cast their first presidential ballots for Gov. George Wallace, the Alabama segregationist.

At least another 20 per cent are expected to support Eugene McCarthy if he should establish a fourth, ultra-liberal party. The young people, apparentiy, are polarizing.

Alarmed, the party pros are urging new stress on moderation during the 1972 campaign.

Michigan's Gov. William Milliken, for one, has called for party unity in a letter to Kansas Sen. Bob Dole, the Republican National Chairman. The moderate Milliken, in line to be the next chairman of the Republican Governors Conference, wants a new national strategy that will appeal to blacks, youths, and other disaffected groups.

Milliken's campaign against [illegible] politics however, has been interpreted by some Agnew admirers as a slap at the Vice President, whose rhetoric doesn't exactly appeal to blacks and youths, Thus ironically the attempt to stop divisiveness may be causing more divisiveness.

Damico Refuses To Talk

CLAYTON, Mo. (AP) — Anthony P. Damico, 25, the only link police have to the murdered Mrs. Sally Lucas, refused to talk to investigators Tuesday.

The body of Mrs. Lucas, 36, was found Sunday off a road in West St. Louis County. The mother of two teen-age daughters, and wife of St. Louis businessman Lawrence Lucas, had been missing nearly three weeks.

Damico is being held at the county jail for stealing Mrs. Lucas' car and forging Mr. Lucas' name on a credit card purchase. Before the body was found, Damico told police he last saw Mrs. Lucas alive and in the company of three other men near Memphis, Tenn. Damico was arrested in Florida after being found asleep in the Lucas car.

A lie detector test has been refused by Damico, who has as his lawyer Daniel V. O'Brien, former St. Louis County prosecuting attorney.

Girl Killed In School Bus Mishap

SHELDON, Mo. (AP) — A seventh grade schoolgirl died of a cut throat today when a school bus carrying about 40 children went into a ditch near Sheldon in Southwest Missouri.

The highway patrol said the victim, Karen Mayfield, sustained the fatal injury when the impact of the crash broke out the vehicle's back window.

An undetermined number of children and the driver, Walter Ford, were injured. Several were taken to the Lamar Clinic in Barton County.

Ford, who was cited by the patrol for failure to exercise the highest care in driving the bus, said he was distracted by an unruly child on the bus before the vehicle went off the road.

It came to rest leaning against a side of the ditch.

The girl killed was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Deb Mayfield of rural Sheldon.

Controversy At Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — The controversy over whether contestants in the Miss America Pageant here can wear hot pants ended when pageant officials withdrew a ban against the new fashion.

"You can wear anything you please," Albert A. Marks Jr., chairman of the Pageant Executive Committee, told the 50 contestants at rehearsals Tuesday. Marks started a furor last week when he said, "Hot pants are out."

One contestant, Miss Suan Inman, Miss SouthDakota, showed up in one event in what appeared to be hot pants.

Sgt. and Mrs. James W. Murphy

Murphy-Braswell

Miss Lea Ann Braswell and Sgt. James W. Murphy were married Aug. 14 at 1 p.m. in the First United Methodist church with the Rev. Joseph Wagner, pastor of the church, officiating at the double ring ceremony.

The bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Braswell of Sikeston and the groom is a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Murphy of Bertrand.

The father of the bride sang the theme from Romeo and Juliet "A Time For Us" before escorting his daughter down the aisle. After the vows had been said Braswell sang The Lord's Prayer as the couple knelt before the altar. The organist was Mrs. Elmer Poage.

Lea Ann chose for her wedding a formal length delustered satin and chantilly lace gown. An empire bodice was enhanced with a sheer jeweled lace yoke both front and back, and a high collar touched with lace and jewels.

The bishop sleeves were edged with deep lace trimmed cuffs that were pointed over the hands. A bias band of satin encircled the waist. The demi-bell skirt was softly gathered at the waist and hand clipped motifs were sprinkled about the front of the skirt and the set-in train, which swept to a full chapel length.

Her headpiece was a Juliet cap of Venice lace daisies and an elbow-length veil of imported English silk illusion accented with petite pink satin ribbon. She carried a bouquet of white carnations and baby breath centered around a pink orchid.

The couples only attendants were Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Alley. Ushers seating the guests were Eddie Sherrod and Philip White.

A reception was held following the ceremony in Epworth Hall at the church. Misses Jennifer and Nola Braswell, sisters of the bride, assisted Mrs. Bill Marsh and Mrs. Robert White, at the refreshment table. Nancy Braswell, younger sister of the birde, attended the guest book.

A buffet was held later in the afternoon at the Braswell home for those attending from out-of-town. Those guests were Mr. and Mrs. John Braswell, grandparents of the bride, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Braswell and family, all of Flat River. Mrs. Barbara Braswell and Miss Michelle Gross and Mr. and Mrs. Melvin AuBuchon and family from Desloge; Mr. and Mrs. Darrell Thurman from Poplar Bluff; Mr. and Mrs. David Braswell, Mr. and Mrs. John Braswell, and Mrs. Lynn Miller from Cape Girardeau; Mrs. Rex Mainord of East Prairie and Mrs. Mayme Dixon of Chicago, Ill.

Sergeant and Mrs. Murphy left the next day for Grand Forks, N.D. where he is stationed with the air force.

Obligatory Surnames

In 1463, King Edward V of England made a surname obligatory for all his subjects. He suggested that they take unto themselves a surname either of some town, color, art or science.

Sebaugh Pobst

ORAN-- Baskets of yellow and white daisies, chrysanthemums and gladioli enchanced the altar at the Guardian Angel Catholic Church Aug. 21 when Miss Marsha Louise Pobst and Spec. 4 Leslie Dale Seabaugh exchanged wedding vows.

Mrs. Elmer Seyer was organist for the double ring ceremony, performed by the Rev. Gervase Ingoldsby. Miss Nancy Mason was soloist, and commentator for the nuptial mass was Elmer Seyer.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Pobst of Oran are parents of the bride, and Mrs. Eunice Grissom of Chaffee, and Dale Seabaugh of Viburnum are the bridegroom's parents.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of imported organza and lace with a lace mandarin collar, a lace bodice, full bishop sleeves with lace-covered cuffs and scalloped hemline with a chapel-length train.

Her Juliet cap of matching lace was edged with braided pearls and pearl floral motifs, with a veil of illusion attached. She carried a bouquet of yellow daisies and purple statice and wore a necklace which had belonged to her grandmother.

Miss Gina Pobst, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. Mrs. Michael Grojean, Marion, Ill., also a sister of the bride, and Miss Jane Davis of Oran were bridesmaids.

Rhonda Pobst, Cape Girardeau, was junior bridesmaid, and was escorted by brothers of the bridegroom.

Lynette Pobst, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Terry Pobst, Chaffee, was flower girl, and Rodney Pobst, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Pobst, Cape Girardeau, was ringbearer.

John Campbell, Ft. Hood, Tex., was best man, and groomsmen were Ronald and Terry Pobst, brothers of the bride. Grojean and Terry Payne of Charleston were ushers.

A reception was held at the Guardian Angel school hall. Mrs. Ann Miederhoff, Mrs. Herbert Hahn, Mrs. Henry Eftink, and Mrs Hulsof served guests, and Mrs. Donald Kielhofner was at the guest book.

Mrs. Seabaugh attended Oran high school and Spec. 4 Seabaugh is stationed with the Army at Ft. Hood, where the couple will live.

Edmond-Pikey

NEW MADRID — Mrs. Buelah Pikey and William Earl Edmond were married at 7 p.m. Saturday at her home by the Rev. Robert Burnes, pastor of Grace Baptist church.

A reception was held following the ceremony.

Guests attending were Mrs. Ruth Patterson, Brenda Nolan, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Speakman, William Earl Edmond Jr., Pamela Pikey and Dianne and Latisha Roseman all of New Madrid, and Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Faucett of Risco.

The couple will live on route one. Edmond is employed at the power plant construction site in St. Jude Industrial Park near Marston.

Student Council Officers Elected

NEW MADRID--- New Madrid high school student council officers are president, Fred Nolley, senior; vice president, Donald Lee Tucker, senior; secretary, Jackie Coon, senior; and treasurer, Horrell H. Townsend III, sophomore.

Nolley was elected in April by the student body. Other officers were elected Tuesday by class representatives.

Freshman representatives on the council will be elected Sept. 13. Filing deadline is Monday.

Topics discussed at the first meeting were a homecoming celebration, a student suggestion box, and a meeting place for students in lieu of study hall periods.

Louis H. Hunt, guidance counselor, is sponsor for the council. Other members are Becky Mitchell, senior; Gladys McKinney, Fred Copeland and Phillip Carter, juniors; and Billy Buchanan and Timmy Fowler, sophomores.

Norman--Snyder

CAPE GIRARDEAU --- Mr. and Mrs. Lee Lee Norman, 1514 Bertling, announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Beverly Ann Norman, to Sgt. Roger Lynn Snyder, son of Mrs. Lloyd Strop, and E. G. Snyder, Benton.

Miss Norman, a 1968 graduate of Central high school, is employed by Jerry Lipps Truck Service.

Snyder, a 1966 graduate of the same school, attended State College two years. He served with the navy three years, and following his discharge reenlisted in the air force and is now attending the data processing school at Lowry Air Force Base, Denver.

A December wedding is planned.

Ladies Golf

Winners in the Sikeston Ladies Golf Association Tuesday were championship class, Doris Stepp, 71, handicap, 15; A class, Evelyn Howington, 71, handicap 21; B class, Jo Spitzmiller, 69, handicap 31; C class, Barbara Hambrick, 89, handicap 36. The nine-hole golf winner was Barbara Tull, 54.

Filipino Nurses Train At Kansas City Hospital

KANSAS CITY (AP) — If things haven't been quite the same around Kansas City's General Hospital these past few months, those who work there are pretty sure where the credit belongs.

It all has to do with a group of 15 bright and enthusiastic young Filipino nurses who arrived in February for the start of a two-year pilot work and study program. Staff members in the sprawling 270-bed facility will tell you they've never seen anybody quite like them.

The circumstances are these:

The nurses, mostly in their 20s, work four days a week and spend a fifth in the classroom.

Such arrangements have been common for several years in a few other large cities in the U.S., but General Hospital officials say this one is the first of its kind in Missouri. A primary goal, they say, is to convince the State Board of Nursing to authorize such programs on a continuing basis.

Miss Mary Louise Burk, administrator of patient care services, who has worked with a similar program in Philadelphia, describes the experience as an undiluted plus for all concerned.

The young women of the Kansas City group are all nursing graduates with at least one year of experience in hospitals in the Phillipines. They are exposed to new techniques and technology, Miss Burk says, and everybody else, patients and staff alike, shares in the benefits of their sheer spirit.

As Dr. Edwin Twin, the hospital's executive director, is quick to add, no special government funding is involved. The visiting nurses fill budgeted positions at a basic salary of $500 per month, and pay their own plane fares here and back.

A visitor to the hospital can be told and retold of the group's ebullience, but nothing could fully prepare him for his first face-to-face encounter with them en masse.

The scene calls for the 15 of them to be seated in an atmosphere of temporary quiet in a small classroom up in a remote corner of the hospital's fourth floor.

Now enter a reporter and photographer, wilted more than a little by the 98-degree heat outside.

Still peering through the mists of his own perspiration, the reporter asks if it ever gets this hot in the Phillipines.

"Yes. No. Always. Never. No, no, that isn't right," comes the group reply in several voices. There is general laughter.

A conference then, and it's agreed the temperature in the Phillipines ranges between 65 and 85, and the nurses have never seen snow before they came here, and they didn't like it at first, the snow that is, because of the cold, and now that it's this hot they prefer winter after all.

The reporter mentally crumples his list of planned questions.

And the group proceeds to tell about itself, with occasional benevolent guidance from their instructor, Mrs. Patricia Ismert.

The experience began for the young women with a complicated 48-hour air journey marked by many long delays and missed connections.

Ely Paz Baltazar of Laoag City tells of arriving in a place she still calls Shattle (later identified by reliable sources as Seattle, Wash.) to find her next plane already gone. As if in protest at the delay, her luggage strikes out on its own for St. Louis. Mrs. Ismert, meanwhile, is meeting a series of planes at Kansas City without turning up any of her new students.

The global confusion gradually unravels itself, however, as the party assembles in Kansas City.

Undismayed by their traveling travails, the young women quickly demonstrate at General their professional aptitude, Mrs. Ismert relates, and their nonworking hours are put to use in exploration.

There have been picnics, a fashion show they took part in, each has foster parents through the People to People program, they went boating. No, they have never gone to a baseball game; yes, some of them have. And then there was the Engelbert Humperdinck concert.

Did they meet the noted singer? went the next question.

No, we were in the back; yes, we shook hands with him.

"We wanted to kiss him," concluded Jocelyn Cordero, Kabankalan, Negros Occidental.

The young women agree heartily there are many more similarities than differences between their home land and the U.S., both in and outside the field of medicine.

Many talk of hopes and plans to make the U.S. their eventual home. A couple have husbands in the Philipines, and many are from large families, so naturally there has been some homesickness.

But as one of the married members of the group, Fe Ubaldo, Dinalupihan, Bataan, observes, the opportunity more than balances any loneliness.

Female Genes Wider At Hips Than Male Genes

Dear Ann Landers: You should have double-checked your information on sex chromosomes. You would have found that one of the two X chromosomes is a deadhead and sits at the edge of the nucleus doing nothing. The Y chromosome (in people, but not in fruit flies) partially controls the things that make males. male.

Get up off your knees, Ann. Women are wonderful -- and you don't need to explain it on the basis of chromosomes. Besides, the only difference between male and female genes is that female genes are wider at the hips. —H. Ira Pilgrim, Ph. D. Associate Research Professor of Anatomy, University of Utah and an Ann Landers Fan

Dear Dr. Pilgrim: You might have landed on Plymouth Rock, Doc, but when I read your letter I felt as if Pilgrim rock had landed on ME. My agony was short-lived, however, because I checked with Dr. Bernard Strauss, Chairman of the Committee on Genetics at the University of Chicago, and this is what he said: "Dr. Pilgrim is right on both counts. The mixup, however, is due to semantics rather than scientific differences. You used the word "inferior" to describe the Y chromosome. This was a poor choice of words because the Y chromosome does have an important function. It is easy to get into trouble with the scientists when one prints material of this nature, no matter how factual. I am pleased to see that you take enough pride in your work to check."

So, dear readers, if you learned nothing else today you now know that female genes are wider at the hips. Isn't it marvelous, the bits of priceless information you get from reading this column?

Dear Ann Landers: I just read the letter from the person in Syracuse whose brother had not spoken to his parents for two years. Your answer burned me up. You said it is "unspeakably cruel" to cut parents out of one's life. What about parents who cut children out of THEIR lives? I don't mean by not speaking to them. I mean by simply ignoring them. I have the most selfish mother who ever lived. As for my father, if I saw him lying on the street I wouldn't stop to pick him up. They are both so self-righteous they make me sick to my stomach.

To listen to them talk, they have been the most devoted parents in the world -- make many sacrifices for us when we were young, all the garbage. But just let one of us kids ask for help and they run a mile in the opposite direction. (We are all grown, by the way, and none of us lives at home.)

Print this if you want to. I mean every word of it. And if either of my parents see it, it't o.k. with me. I despise them both. --An Invisible Child

Dear : The key words in your letter are "sick to my stomach." I believe you are sick somewhere else, as well. And I am not surprised. Such raw hate would make anyone sick.

I urge you to get some counseling. To live a life filled with so much hostility is like carrying a time bomb around in your head. You are toting a mighty dangerous load, my friend. I hope you will unburden yourself, soon.

Confidential to Sick of Other People's Dirt: Sorry -- it's not the job that's "lousy," it's your attitude. Housework is not "lowly, demeaning slavery." Good housekeeping is an art and when done well it can be a source of pride and satisfaction.

Drinking may be "in" to the kins you run with — but it can put you "out" for keeps. You can cool it and stay popular. Read ' Booze And You -- For Teen-Agers Only." Send 35/ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope with your request.

Drunk Drivers Can Avoid Jail By Taking Drug Treatment

PORTLAND, Ore. (AP) -- A problem drinker convicted of drunk driving in Portland may choose a drug treatment for his drinking problem instead of paying a fine or going to jail.

Some 50 persons so convicted are taking daily doses of the drug antabuse, which makes a person ill if he later drinks alcohol.

The treatment is part of a federally financed program aimed at reducing the number of traffic accidents caused by drunk drivers. Another major aspect is stricter enforcement of traffic laws.

The Portland project, which began in February after six months of planning, is one of nine Alcohol Safety Action Projects funded last year by the Department of Transportation. Some 20 more projects were funded this year.

The Portland project works this way:

When a person is convicted of drunk driving, the judge orders a presentence investigation to determine whether the offender is a social or a problem drinker.

Social drinkers are given immediate sentences - fines, jail terms or license suspensions.

Problem drinkers are sent to the Alcohol Safety Action Project clinic, where extensive diagnostic work is performed. The results are sent to the court with a recommendation for sentencing.

If he refuses to go on the treatment program, which is usually a condition of probation, there is no alternative except to refer him back to the court.

Those who agree to the treatment report daily to a participating pharmacy where they drink the drug. The cost, 75 cents a day, is paid by the offender unless he is indigent.

The drug has been used in the treatment of alcoholics since 1946 but an official said, "This is the first time, to my knowledge, that it has been used extensively with a coerced population."

The drug is used in combination with other treatment such as job or marriage counseling, utilizing the resources of state, local and private agencies.

Bullard Receives Ph.D. Degree From S.I.U.

Eugene Bullard of Carterville, Ill., a former Sikeston resident, was awarded a doctor of philosophy degree in educational psychology from Southern Illinois University at Carbondale.

The degree concluded two years of study and research in guidance and counseling. Dr. Bullard received his bachelor of arts degree in history and social science from Southeast Missouri State College in Cape Girardeau in 1964 where he was graduated sumna cum laude. He earned a master of science degree in vocational rehabilitation counseling from Southern Illinois in 1966.

Doctor Bullard has joined the Shawnee College to teach psychology. He and Mrs. Bullard live in Carterville where she teaches sixth grade. Mrs. Bullard formerly taught fourth grade at Matthews elementary school in Sikeston.

Lynda J. Robb Cracks Vertebra

CHARLOTTESVILLE' Va. (AP) -- University of Virginia Hospital spokesmen say Lynda Johnson Robb will be hospitalized through this week for a cracked neck vertebra.

The daughter of former President Lyndon B. Johnson suffered the injury in a fall in the yard of her home last weekend and was brought to the hospital Sunday by her husband Charles.

Robb is a second-year law student at the university.

A hospital spokesman said the injury was not serious and that the 27 year-old Mrs. Robb was "up and around."

Few Of Leopold's Neighbors Had Inkling Of His Past

SAN JUAN, P.R. (AP) — When Nathan Leopold died in San Juan Sunday night, very few of his neighbors realized that the quiet, balding social worker was the thrill killer who horrified America five decades ago.

His name on the mailbox of the high-rise building where he lived with his Puerto Rican wife and his listed telephone number attracted few curiosity seekers. That was the way he wanted it.

Leopold came to Puerto Rico 13 years ago in search of refuge and anonymity and found them in the tiny mountain community of Castaner, in the coffee-growing region of southern Puerto Rico. There he worked as an assistant to the pharmacist and the x-ray technician in a hospital run by the United Church of the Brethren.

Later on he earned his master's degree in social work from the University of Puerto Rico and spent his last 10 years in San Juan. But he never forgot Castaner.

Until shortly before his death he made the three-hour trip once a month to visit the warm-hearted people who had taken him in when he had few friends in the world.

"The people accepted him completely," said John Forbes, who worked with him in the hospital laboratory. "But, the church which had pushed for his release from prison in the late '50s, was not naive about the situation.

"They talked it over with the community, and they never objected to his being there."

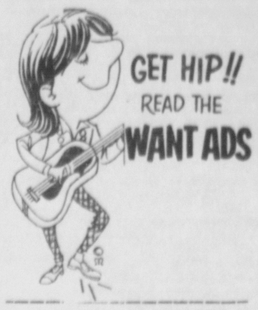

Leopold, 66 when he died, spent half his life in the Illinois state penitentiary for his part in the 1924 kidnap-murder of 14 year-old Bobby Franks. They said they wanted to experience the thrill of killing. Another convict stabbed Loeb to death in 1936.

"There were a number of fundamentalist religions trying to save his soul," Forbes said of Leopold, "but the Brethren were the least intense about it.

"Nate never joined the church," Forbes continued, but his humanist tendencies were in harmony with the Brethren's emphasis on helping others. Leopold, the son of a well-to-do Jewish family, said he changed a great deal in prison a[illegible]hat he had a great urge to help people develop their potential.

JOBS for returning servicemen are a major concern for Joseph L. Vicites of Uniontown, Pa., new commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. Elected at the VFW's 72nd annual convention in Dallas, Vicites pledged development of a program to find employment for returning Vietnam veterans.

Diamonds, rubies, and most other precious gems are taken from the ground, often in deep mines. The one precious gem that does not come from the ground is the pearl. The Japanese have grown pearls by placing small objects, including beads, inside of oysters to grow pearls around them. Pearls are sometimes found in conches and a few other kinds of shellfish. The black pearl is a rare and costly pearl, although there are shades of white and pink ones. The "pearl" of water conditioning units is a Miracle Water refiner. A Miracle Water refiner is totally engineered to give you beauty, efficiency, and our patented process unit solves most water problems by automatically refining, filtering, softening and furnishing clean, clear refreshing water, free of most taste and odor. "See the difference, taste the difference, and feel the difference"!

poops out the wrong guys too much!!!

Schools Open, Drivers Urged To Take Care

As Missouri schools open for another year, Co. E. I. (Mike) Hockaday, the superintendent of the state highway patrol, issued a traffic safety plea to motorists urging extreme caution.

"The State Department of Education has informed us that approximately 1.3 million children will be attending the public and private schools this year," Hockaday stated. "The welfare and safety of each and everyone of these children is the responsibility of every citizen."

Colonel Hockaday noted that more than 600,000 school children are transported to and from schools daily on the nearly 7,500 public school buses. Many more young students will be riding on privately - owned buses. He reminded drivers that they are required by law to stop on two lane highways for school buses loading and unloading children. The driver must remain stopped until the school bus resumes motion or until signaled by its driver to proceed.

"The very immensity of the student transportation program in Missouri is sufficient reason for every driver to be extremely cautious," the Colonel continued. "School buses operate on every highway and practically every rural road in the State. These buses travel more than 75 million miles during the school year. It behooves every driver, therefore, to watch for school buses in the traffic scene and to obey the traffic laws pertaining to them.

"I urge all drivers to accept their responsibility in regard to the safety of our children by exercising extreme caution near schools, playgrounds and school buses." Colonel Hockaday concluded.

One of the sure signs of fall is the parade of goodies

Petting Zoo At Plaza

The zooland petting zoo will be at the Kingsway Plaza Mall Wednesday through Saturday. Attendants will be on hand to answer questions and the zoo will be open from 1 p.m. to 9 p.m.

The animals are in colorful fences and visitors are allowed to come in and pet them. There will be an assortment of more than 45 animals, birds, both domestic and exotic species. Among the animals will be a baby tapir, lambs, burrow, llamas and monkeys.

The animals are young and especially trained to get along with children. As they grow older they are replaced by younger specimens.

Cameras should be brought along to take pictures of the children and animals. Admission to the zoo is by donation. Proceeds after expenses will go to the United Fund.

Dexter Resident Missing

DEXTER– John Wayne Breedlove, 23-year old Dexter resident was reported missing to the highway patrol Thursday night.

According to information received by the patrol, Breedlove left Dexter at 10:30 p.m. Sept. 1 driving a blue-green 1957 Chevrolet and was taking a passenger to the airport in Poplar Bluff.

Authorities said that Breedlove has not been seen since that time and an investigation is underway.

Dexter To Vote On Bonds Again

DEXTER — The city council last night voted unanimously to present to the voters of Dexter for the fifth time in two years a $425,000 water improvement bond issue.

The Chamber of Commerce presented a letter to the council requesting another election and the council agreed. The general obligation bond issue will be voted on Oct. 12. A two - thirds majority will be required for passage.

Residents of Dexter turned down the bond issue Aug. 31 by 56 votes.

The proposal, if passed, will provide two new water wells, a new 500,000 - gallon storage tank, and a new 1,000 -gallon -per -minute water treatment plant.

basis and not overspending" are the most important election issues.

He commented:

"I've been working for waterworks improvement since 1965 and I would like to see it completed. Also Lockscreen Inc., an aluminum factory from South Carolina, was brought in during my administration and I would like to see them start operating and build their factory."

Bain said he is interested in parks and recreation and, if elected mayor, would propose the city buy more gorund on the west part of town "to build a park for blacks and whites."

"We only have one park now and it's overcrowded," he explained.

He also said he would like to get another fire station across the railroad tracks on the west side of town and get additional public housing for the aged and poor. The city now has 104 units.

Dowdy said he would like to see "lots of things done" but mainly see the city progress.

Mayor Dowdy said to see the city progress was "the reason I got into the mayor's race."

"I don't think there's a political issue, Dowdy said. "I'm not a politician."

Dowdy, who makes his living as a farm laborer, admits he has no political experience but said he served on the school board four years in 1962-1966.

He has been living in Hayti since March of 1970 but has lived within a mile of town 35 years.

"As mayor I would like to see Lockscreen come in and see the interstate developed," he commented.

"I think I'm going to have a better chance Tuesday than I did April 6," he concluded.

Two Fined

CHARLESTON — Two persons were arrested last night by police and appeared in city court this morning.

James Wilson, 59, Charleston, was fined $15 for possession of an illegal weapon.

Morehouse Council Discusses Runoff

By Staff Writer

MOREHOUSE — The town board last night discussed what could be done to improve drainage in the northeast part of Morehouse. Residents have complained for two years that water stands for days after a rain.

The board appointed Water Supt. Ronnie McIntire to survey the area and determine what can be done to solve the problem.

The board discussed purchasing a tractor and back hoe. It was pointed out that with the new equipment, the city would be able to make sewer installations with its own employes. Plumbers must now be employed.

The board approved an application for renewal of a plumbers license for Ellis D. Henson.

Approved was the installation of a street light at the east end of Myrtle Street.

Funds from Associated and other cooperatives will be used to finance the second generator on land leased from the industrial park.

The council approved a request by Willie Enlow that the city haul trash and debris from the site of a building being remodeled for use as a recreation center at O'Bannon School.

The council approved a contract with Cowan and Holman Construction Co., Sikeston, for construction of concrete curb and gutter and soil cement streets on Church, Mitchell, Kingshighway, Pinnell, and Diggs Place. Cost to the property owners per front foot of property adjoining the streets are Church, $6.63; Mitchell, $6.85; Kingshighway, $7.33; Diggs Place, $6.24; and Pinnell, $6.12.

Torre Hikes Average, Comments On Pirates

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — "This club has a lot of pride ... and remember, we've got five games left with the Pirates. The way we're going — who knows?"

Joe Torre, the National League's leading hitter with an average of .368, still thinks the St. Louis Cardinals, who have won nine of their last 12 games, have a shot at overtaking Pittsburgh. The Pirates hold a sixgame lead over St. Louis, but both teams still have 19 games remaining.

Torre slammed eight hits in 11 at-bats Tuesday night as the Cardinals took a twinight doubleheader from the Philadelphia Phillies, 9-6 in 13 innings in the first game, 7-5 in 10 innings in the nightcap.

The opener was the completion of a game suspended from Aug. 1, picked up with the Cardinals leading 6-3 in the 12th.

Elsewhere in the National League, Houston defeated Atlanta 5-1, Montreal romped to a 9-3 decision over the New York Mets, San Diego rallied to beat Cincinnati 8-7 and Los Angeles downed San Francisco 9-3. The Chicago Cubs and Pittsburgh were not scheduled.

In American League action, Kansas City trimmed Milwaukee 4-3, the Chicago White Sox edged Minnesota 8-7, Baltimore defeated Cleveland 3-2, Detroit edged Washington 3-2 in 11 innings, Boston trounced the New York Yankees 9-3 and California beat Oakland and Vida Blue 6-1.

"You pretty well think you've got it won when you're leading a suspended game by three runs," said Torre, "especially when you have five weeks to think about it."

But Philadelphia scored three runs on Larry Bowa's two-run triple and Pete Koegel's single, and it was a new ball game.

Singles by Ted Simmons, Julian Javier, Bob Burda, Torre and Matty Alou produced three runs in the 13th, and the Cardinals had a 9-6 victory.

But the night's excitement was far from over.

The Cards were trailing 5-3 with two out in the bottom of the ninth, but as the saying goes, the game is never over until the last man is out.

That last man, Jim Beauchamp, reached second when Denny Doyle got a late start on his pop fly, then dropped it for an error. Lou Brock followed with a two-run single to tie the game.

The Cards took the lead in the 10th when Torre singled but Simmons tripled. Joe Hague added an insurance run by driving in Simmons on a fielders choice play.

Torre collected five hits in seven at bats in the opener, then came back with three hits in four trips in the nightcap. His .368 average leaves him comfortably ahead of the surging Roberto Clemente of Pittsburgh, who is now up to .350.

Don Wilson, 14-8, throttled Atlanta 5-1 on just two hits, one in the first by Felix Millan, the other in the ninth by Ralph Garr. The Astros erupted for four runs in the fifth, with Cesar Geronimo and Joe Morgan hitting consecutive homers.

Rusty Staub cracked his 15th home run of the season and drove in four runs as Montreal defeated the New York Mets 9-3. The Expos scored eight runs in the first three innings, then coasted home behind Steve Renko, 14-13, who got relief help from Mike Marshall in theninth.

Run-scoring ninth-inning singles by Leron Lee and Garry Jestadt gave San Diego a come-from-behind 8-7 victory over Cincinnati. Lee went fivefor-five in the game and scored four runs, while Jestadt was four-for-four with three runs batted in.

The Dodgers pulled within six games of the Giants in the National League West by recording their seventh victory in nine outings and their fifth straight over San Francisco.

Los Angeles chased Giant starter Ron Bryant in the first inning before he could retire a batter. Maury Wills walked and Bobby Valentine, Willie Davis and Richie Allen followed with successive singles.

Blue Loses Again!

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

"The Cy Young Award?" Vida Blue mused. "Maybe I'd vote for Mickey Lolich, too. He's doing better than I am now."

The young flame-throwing left-hander of the Oakland A's had plenty of time to think about the award—presented to the best pitcher in each league—and his fading chances for it.

Blue spent most of Tuesday night's game against California on the sidelines after the usually mild-hitting Angels pounced on him for three runs in the first inning, then rode Clyde Wright's six-hitter to a 6-1 victory over the A's.

It was Blue's fourth loss in five starts and his eighth of the season, keeping him tied with Lolich of the Detroit Tigers for the most American League victories with 23 and the most complete games with 24.

But of late, Blue's fortunes have been sinking while Lolich, at 31, nine years older than the Oakland ace, has been coming on like gangbusters. It was on Monday that the Detroit workhorse caught Blue in both categories with a masterful six-hit 3-0 victory over Washington.

"It would be nice," Blue commented, "if they had two awards—one for the first half of the season and one for the second half."

In other American League games, Kansas City routed the New York Yankees 9-3.

In the National League, St. Louis completed a suspended game against Philadelphia with a 13-inning 9-6 victory, then made it a sweep with a 10-inning 7-5 victory in the regularly scheduled game, Montreal mauled the New York Mets 9-3, Houston swatted Atlanta 5-1, San Diego tripped Cincinnati 87 and Los Angeles clouted San Francisco 9-3. Pittsburgh and the Chicago Cubs did not play.

The meager crowd of 6,878 in Oakland has hardly gotten comfortable when Ken Berry singled, Ken McMullen drilled his 18th home run and a walk and singles by Jim Spencer and Tommy Reynods gave the Angels all the runs they needed.

Blue left after three innings, his earliest departure since Washington kayoed him in 1 1-3 innings—in the first game of the season.

Amos Otis ran haywire for the Royals, stealing five bases to equal a feat last performed on May 27, 1904, by Dennis McGann of the old New York Giants. It still fell one short of the American League record set in 1912 by Eddie Collins of the Philadelphia A's.

otis also collected four singles and beat the Brewers when he scratched a two-out single in the seventh inning, swiped second, stole third, then continued home when Milwaukee catcher Darrell Porter's throw sailed into left field. It put Otis' thefts at 47, one back of teammate and league leader Fred Patek.

White Sox catcher Ed Herrmann belted two home runs— offsetting a pair by Harmon Killebrew of the Twins—driving in five runs to enable Tommy John to struggle to his 11th victory. Killebrew's bombs gave him 22 for the year and 509 for his career and Leo Cardenas also homered for Minnesota, his 17th.

Dave McNally, boosting his record to 18-4, won his own game for the Orioles with a two-run homer while silencing the Indians on five hits. It was McNally's 12th successive triumph.

Jim Northrup wielded Detroit's big bat with his 12th and 13th homers of the year, the second a leadoff shot in the top of the 11th inning off Senators reliever Paul Lindblad. It gave Fred Scherman his ninth victory of the season.

The Red Sox carried a 3-2 lead into the eighth inning against the Yanks, then erupted for six runs to seal their victory.

Doug Griffen doubled home two runs in the big inning and two more came in on first baseman John Ellis' wild throw but the hitting hero for Boston was Reggie Smith, who drive in three runs and scored two more.

COUNTDOWN TO KICKOFF

Injuries Could Decide South

The southern division of the Southeast Missouri Football Conference which has been playing in the shadows of the famed and rugged northern division over the past seasons, will field its most potent and balanced league in many a year. It could take over some of the glory from the Yankees.

Over the past two seasons the south has produced runners - up in the state AA and AAA playoffs while the north hasn't made such a big impression since Perryville won the AAA honors in 1969. Cape Girardeau Central has been the only other state tournament representative from Southeast Missouri's north division.

"This season any five of the top teams in the division can play with the northern boys," one of the league coaches commented during spring drills. "Our league is the toughest its been in a long, long time."

While all indications and polls point to the Malden Green Wave as a solid and unbeatable force in the south, three other schools could be as equally potent despite the return of 11 starters at 17 positions for Coach Jack Phillips, the Daily Standard's 1969 'Coach of the Year'.

Portageville has been mentioned most as the big threat to the 'Big Greens' title hopes but Caruthersville and Dexter can't be counted out despite the loss of key personnel from last season.

Dexter could be the league's sleeper having been selected to finish fourth in the seven team division, the Bearcats are the defending co-champs with Malden and runner - up in the state AAA state playoffs.

Injuries, which haven't hampered any of the league's top clubs in past seasons, could be the deciding factor in this four - team title race because each team is short of depth and experience.

One of the big reasons Malden has been tabbed by the coaches and many grid experts to win its third straight league title is Quarterback Dan Prentice's return. He was called the 'back to watch' in a poll of coaches by the Standard.

League coaches pointed to Dexter's David Mathis, one of the league's premier backs, and singled out Dan Smith and Jerry Christian as linemen to watch along with Portageville's Calvin Moore.

But the list of returning all league stars is a lengthy one. A dozen juniors were selected for one of the places on the all star squad along with a pair of sophomores.

Caruthersville has the trio of Peanut Reno, Joe Cagle and Rick Young to build its team around.

Another league challenger could be Chaffee with the return of all league and district Center Tom Glastetter and Back Scott Thomas.

Coach Ed McWilliams thinks he has a potentially good ball club in the East Prairie Eagles for the 1971 season.

One reason for the optimism is Annise Davis, a 5-11 190-pound fullback who has run the 100-yard dash in 10.4 seconds.

"We don't have as much depth as last year but we have a 10-12 pounds heavier team than the squad that finished 5-4 in 1970", said Coach McWilliams.

Jimmy Davis, a senior at 6-1 and 200 pounds, who made the second team all conference, is expected to anchor the line for the Eagles.

"We won't know what we have until the opening game", said Coach McWilliams.

Portageville is expected to be one of the top teams in the southern division with the return of six men on the offensive team.

"I feel that we have as strong a team as any of my eight years here," commented Coach Jim McKay.

Portageville will try to improve on 60-3 record of 1970.

The Bulldogs' hopes are pinned on Randy Willaims a155-pound, 5-9 junior, who scored 12 touchdowns in the first six games as a sophomore before being injured.

Coach McKay says he thinks he has a strong team with not much depth to fill in for injuries.

Malden has a small but experienced squad to begin the 1971 football season and to add to its woes the Greenwave has scheduled Union City, Tenn., to fill the 10th spot on its schedule. Union City ended Martin's 43-game winning streak with a 12-0 victory last season and are ranked high in pre - season polls.

Coach Jack Phillips said:

"I'm not making any prediction on where we will finish the season. We are going to go with our starters and hope for no injuries."

The Greenwave has only 22 boys on the squad so it can't afford any injuries.

"I expect Portageville and Caruthersville to give us the most trouble along with Dexter," said Phillips.

Malden has sustained one injury, a broken thumb of tackle Mike Russell. Russell will be a doubtful starter in the opener against Kennett Friday night.

Coach Clyde Vaughn's DHS Bearcats will have to go some to better their 1970 success. They finished first in the conference and second in the AAA state playoffs.

Coach Vaughn expects the southern division to be stronger than it ever has been in the past with each team having a chance to win.

The Bearcats lost their two starting ends with graduation but have a fine receiving corps to start the 1971 season in Bruce Bishop and Mike Ward.

David Mathis was the starting quarterback last year and is expected to pick up where he left off with a year of experience behind him.

Coach Vaughn has one injury, which will hamper the team at the start. Dan Smith suffered a knee injury and is not expected to be able to play at full strength in the opener.

"It is hard to say that we will be as good as last year", said Coach Vaughn.

Each of the league teams will battle non - league competition in openers Friday night, but start the battles for the championship Sept. 17 with no holds barred and the league title in the minds of each of the seven teams.

Fighting Irish Ranked No. 1

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Notre Dame's Fighting Irish will succeed Nebraska as national intercollegiate football champion in 1971, the Sporting News predicted Saturday.

The weekly publication kranked Nebraska second followed byTexas, LSU and Michigan in that order. Others in the Top Ten are Tennessee, sixth; Houston, seventh; Ohio State, eighth; Auburn, ninth, and Arkansas, tenth.

Newberry Gets Starting Call At SEMO State

CAPE GIRARDEAU — The Southeast Missouri State College Indians had their last major scrimmage game Saturday night, and finished up their twice -a -day practice sessions Monday, entering the final days of preparation for the season opener Saturday night at Houck Stadium.

Their opening opponent will be the Delta Statesmen from Cleveland, Miss., who handed the Indains a 14-8 defeat in last year's "curtain -raiser."

Indian coach Tom Thrower was quite pleased with his team's performance in Saturday's scrimmage. He noted the passing game was coming along well and was much improved over earlier scrimmages. The running attack was consistent, but five fumbles occurred, meaning there are still mental mistakes which must be ironed out.

Thrower praised the team for its enthusiasm in the contest. He said, "Both offensively and defensively the hitting was excellent, and that's what we're fired up about."

And the enthusiasm early in the season is very important for a good start, as the Indian head man knows only too well. Thrower noted that "last year we didn't have this good attitude. The enthusiasm wasn't good, the thitting was bad, and there were a lot of players here who just wanted to be on the football team."

Last year the Tribe dropped their first three ball games and struggled during much of the season to finish at only 5-5.

Thrower proudly points out, "Everybody came to play this year! The hiting's been good and everyone's "fired up."

Most of the starters have been selected and experience can be found at nearly all positions.

A big problem the Indians face is the offensive line, where Jack Huelskamp, a senior from St. Louis, is the only starter returning from last year. He has moved to weak side guard to try and replace All-MIAA Steve Johnson who has graduated. Gary Rohr from East St. Louis will take over at strong guard, after having played the last two years at Mesa Junior College in Colorado.

Bob Hollingshead, a 214- pound senior from Collinsville, Ill., will move from his reserve role of last year and take over at strong side tackle. Dan Peiffer, a 240-pound transfer from Ellsworth Junior College in Iowa, will replace Bob Barclay at weak tackle.

All- conference performer Ron Helms, now a graduate assistant with the Indians, will be replaced by Rich Stewart of Hillsboro, Ill., at the center position. The 192 -pound sophomore is returning to the Tribe after sitting out for two years.

Commenting about the offensive line, Thrower said, "Physically we have a better offensive line than last year, and before the season is over it could be superior to last year's."

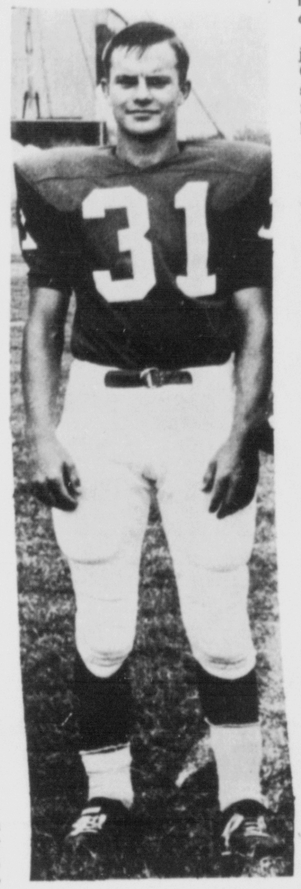

Dennis Maxey, a 190-pound senior form St. Louis, will move from the split end position he played last year and take over at tight end, to fill the hole left by the graduation of Dennis Rudanovich.

Replacing Maxey at split end will be avid Newberry, a 164-pound junior from Sikeston.

The backfield will have the same starters as last year with Lance Brune, a sophomore from Cape Girardeau, at quarterback; Rick Attig, a 200-pound sophomore from Murpbysboro, Ill., at running back; Eddie Moss, a senior from Poplar Bluff weighing 215, at fullback; and Art Miller, a 175-pound senior from Kirkwood, at the flanker position.

The defensive unit has only two vacancies from last year, with nine familiar faces returning.

The vacancies are at the tackle positions where Wayne Behnke and All-MIAA standout Jack Martin have departed. David Means will take over for Martin at right tackle. Means is a sophomore from Hopkinsville, Ky.

David Newberry

Tim Luckett has won the job at left tackle, but a broken bone in his hand makes him a doubtful starter for Saturday night. Should Luckett be unable to play, then either Jim McCarthy, a junior from St. Louis, or Larry Luster, a 230- pound transfer from Centerville Junior College in Iowa, will get the starting nod. Luckett, a 250-pound senior who had to sit out last season because of a nee operation, is a three-year letterman and an all conference tackle.

Steve Derringer, a junior from Webster Groves, and Bill Brown, a senior from St. Louis, will return to action at the end positions.

Doug Mackey, a senior from St. Louis, Jim Shelton, a 195 - pound junior from Mayfield, Ky., and Gene Figge, a senior from Ste. Genevieve, will hold down the linebacker spots.

The only undecided starters are at the defensive back positions, where six men, all of whom started several games last season, are seeking one of the four starting assignments.

Those competing for starting berths at cornerback are Jim Powell, a 165-pound junior from Webster Groves, Bob Rudd, a 160- pound senior from Cedar Rapids, Ia., and Jim Cameron, a senior weighing 158 pounds from St. Louis.

Richard Sanders, a senior, John Bean, also a senior, and Steve Meier, a 194-pound sophomore, are battling it out at safety. All three are from St. Louis.

Kim Godwin, who earned two letters as a linebacker and had a national ranking with a 40.4 punting average, has decided not to play this year. So, a 6-5, 178-pound junior, Gary Hahn, from Des Moines, Ia., will handle the punting chores. Hahn played at Wentworth Military Academy last season.

Thrower is hoping to give his younger players some game experience as soon as possible. He pointed out that "except for the secondary we don't have any experienced back - up men. We can shift a round a little if we have to."

In assessing the Indians' progress to this point Thrower said, "The hitting's been good and concentration has been good until we get tired, and then we begin to make mistakes. Also our execution isn't good at this point."

He continued, "We're going to make some mistakes early in the season, but by the conference season we should have the bugs ironed out."

The Indians will try to clear up some of their weak spots Tuesday night with a light scrimmage.

College Football Predictions

Stanford Favored At Mizzou

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK (AP) — What kind of opening weekend is this for the college football season when no less than 12 of the Top Twenty teams in the preseason poll are in action?

Whatever happened to the openers that used to pit old Block & Tackle U. against Breather Poly?

The season gets under way Friday night with a classic matchup—fifth-ranked Southern California against 16th-rated Alabama in the Los Angeles Coliseum. In addition, Brigham Young faces North Texas State in the Cotton Bowl at Dallas.

some 40 more games involving at least one major team are on tap Saturday, as well as the Grambling-Morgan State contest to be televised nationally, ABC-TV, 6:30 p.m., EDT, from New York's Yankee Stadium.

So here goes with another campaign of trying to pick 'em right. We'll take the credit for the winners. The losers are the responsibility of the assistant coaches.

Alabama at Southern Cal— The magic number here is 200. Alabama's next victory will be Bear Bryant's 200th and USC's John McKay says the Crimson Tide "is 200 per cent better than a year ago," when the Trojans romped 42-21. The Bear is growling again but will have to wait another week for No. 200 as the Trojans start to make amends for last season's 6-4-1 disappointment. SOUTHERN CAL.

Oregon at Nebraska—The Cornhuskers, ranked only second in the pre-season voting, are trying to become the first team since Alabama in 1964-5 to win consecutive national championships. This could be their toughest test of the year. Nebraska's defense allowed 177 points last season and Oregon has Dan Fouts to throw the ball and Bobby Moore to run with it. But the Ducks gave up 256 points and this game is in Lincoln before all those screaming people in red outfits, so-o-o-o ... NEBRASKA

Michigan at Northwestern— Alex Agase was named Coach of the Year last season by the Football Writers Association of America. In three weeks he could be Coach of the Century. After No. 4 Michigan come topranked Notre Dame and No. 13 Syracuse for the 20th-rated Wildcats. These two tied for second in the Big Ten. Barring a tie, they'll be a game apart after Saturday and the team on top will be ... MICHIGAN.

California vs. Arkansas at Little Rock—The first meeting betweeen the two schools finds eighth-ranked Arkansas with an established quarterback Joe Ferguson and California without one. Razorbacks were stunned in their 1970 opener by another Pacific-8 team, Stanford, and don't intend to let it happen again. ARKANSAS.

Colorado at Louisiana State— It can get awfully warm and humid in Baton Rouge at this time of year and Coach Charlie McClendon of the No. 9 home team hopes it's hotter-n youknow-what. The Buffaloes would like to bring some Colorado snow with them but 'sno use. LSU.

Iowa at Ohio State—Coach Frank Lauterbur brought a 23game winning streak with him from Toledo to Iowa but is about to get a rude welcome into the Big Ten from Woody Hayes, who has never been accused of being a genial host on Saturday afternoons in the fall. Buckeyes are 11th in pre-season rankings. OHIO STATE.

Pitt at UCLA—No. 15 Bruins have a new coach in Pepper Rodgers from Kansas but got a jolt when the NCAA ruled brilliant sophomore running back James McAlister ineligible this season. Pitt hit the comeback trail last seaon and could catch the Bruins looking ahead to Texas. Bases strictly on the home field advantage ... UCLA.

Georgia Tech at South Carolina—"We have the makings of another fine football team," says Tech's Bud Carson after 83 record in 1970 plus Sun Bowl win over Texas Tech. Yellow Jackets, rated 17th, likely will have too much sting for the Gamecocks, debuting as an independent after withdrawing from Atlantic Coast Conference. GEORGIA TEACH.

Oregon State at Georigia— Bulldogs, ranked 18th, are making eyes at the Southeastern Conference crown with 15 recurning starters. Andy Johnson, Georgia supersoph, starts at quarterback. Oregon State is always tough under Dee Andros. First meeting ever. First blood to ... GEORGIA.

Stanford at Missouri—Redshirt Don Bunce chose to sit out a year and replace Heisman Trophy winner Jim Plunkett this season. Now's his chance. Indians, ranked 19th, catch Missouri with a new coach—Al Onofrio—and lots of problems. STANFORD.

Grambling vs. Morgan State at New York—Pro scouts will be out en masse for this one between two predominantly black powerhouses. Grambling's Eddie Robinson and Morgan's Earl Banks are two of the winningest coaches around. Match-up of running backs Eldrie Turner (Grambling) and John Sykes (Morgan), the latter likened to Leroy Kelly, should be a good one. GRAMBLING.

Other games:

SOUTH — Memphis State over West Texas State.

MIDWEST — Cincinnati over Dayton, Kansas over Washington State, Kansas State over Utah State, Michigan State over Illinois, Minnesota over Indiana, Oklahoma State over Mississippi State, Wisconsin over Northern Illinois.

SOUTHWEST — North Texas State over Birgham Young, Texas A&M over Wichita State, Texas — ElPaso over Texas — Arlington.

First Pro Setback For Devine A Big One

GREEN BAY, Wis. (AP) — Dan Devine had the third best college football coaching record in the nation over the last 16 years at Arizona State and Missouri, but his first setback as head of the Green Bay Packers came four days into training camp this summer.

Bart Starr, who had quarterbacked the Packers to five National Football League titles and two Super Bowl victories in the 1960s, reinjured the passing arm that had hampered him much of last season. Now, at age 37 and two operations later, Starr is not expected back until at least late October, and perhaps not at all.

Of the NFL's 26 teams, only New England and New Orleans scored fewer points than the Packers (196) last year. Much of that was traceable to Starr's injuries, which near the end of the season all but eliminated his deep passing threat.

Devine, who succeeded Phil Bengtson in January, had counted on a healed Starr to rekindle the offense. Now he has Zeke Bratkowski, still an able passer at 39 but an inactive player since 196, as the probable No. 1 quarterback. Scott Hunter of Alabama has shown exceptional promise but is a rookie.

Devine has decided against extensive trading, preferring to try to rehabilitate the Packers from within. Toward that end, he sent tackle Kevin Hardy to San Diego for a No. 1 draft choice, which will give Green Bay two picks in the first round next January.

Whoever emerges at quarterback will throw to a receiving corps that is not as fast as Devine would like, but able. The best is Carroll Dale, who has gained 814 or more yards receiving four of the last five years and is still elusive at 33.

The other wide receiver is swift John Spilis, who has always shown promise but has caught a total of only 13 passes in his first two years. Tight end John Hilton, who caught 25 passes last season, is being pushed by Rich McGeorge, a No. 1 draft choice in 1970.

Running back is the team's strong suit, with Dave Hampton, a game-breaking threat, healthy after missing eight weeks in 1970. Top draft choice John Brockington of Ohio State looks like the power runner Green Bay has lacked since Jim Taylor departed four years ago. Donny Anderson rushed for 853 yards last year and gained another 414 catching passes. Perry Williams, a good blocker and receiver, will start at fullback if Brockington isn't deemed ready.

Inconsistent placekicking has cost the Packers dearly since Don Chandler retired after 1967, the last championship season. Dale Livingston kicked 15 field goals last year and has a powerful leg, but may not know until shortly before the season starts whether the job will be his again.

Green Bay gave up 293 points a year ago, which unfairly reflects on a defense that was kept on the field too long because of the offense's failures. Anderson had to punt a record 81 times as the offense made first down only 30 per cent of the time on third down plays.

Alex Gets Hearing

CHICAGO (AP) — The general manager and vice president of the California Angels has told a panel deciding the Alex Johnson case he knowingly falsified information which denied that a gun had been pulled on Johnson in the team clubhouse, The Chicago Sun-Times said Tuesday.

An article by sports-writer Jerome Holtzman said a secret transcript of the Johnson hearing shows Dick Walsh knowingly falsified the truth of Johnson's charge, that teammate Chico Ruiz pulled a gun on Johnson June 13 when the two players were alone in the Angels' clubhouse.

The article said Walsh made the admission Aug. 29 during the first day of the Johnson grievance which is being heard by a three-man arbitration panel.

Johnson was suspended without pay June 26. The Major League Players Association, on his behalf, is charging that the iAmerican League's 1970 batting champ is being wrongfully denied his full salary.

It said the paper learned that the following exchange occurred between Walsh and the panel:

Q.—"Isn't it a fact that you announced you conducted investigation of the gun incident and then issued a statement you found no gun?

A.—"Yes.

Q.—"But you knew there was such a gun?

A.—"Yes.

Q.—"Didn't you realize that by issuing such a statement that you left the public with only two things to believe: 1, that Alex Johnson was a liar or No. 2, that he had delusions— whereas neither was true.

A.—"I did it in the best interests of the club."

Walsh, asked to comment on the Sun-Times report, issued this statement:

"There is no evidence to indicate that the Johnson-Ruiz gun incident took place as alleged by Alex Johnson. That has been my postition from the first and it remains unchanged."

Asked if the testimony in the Chicago story was inaccurate, Walsh said:

"I do not choose to amplify my statement. This was a closed hearing and I feel it improper to discuss the testimony."

Angels owner Gene Autry said he did not attend the hearing and could not comment on the story's accuracy.

Big 8 Drills Slowed

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

As temperatures heated up on football practice fields in Big Eight territory Tuesday, teams preparing for their openers cooled down the intensity of their drills.

With the mercury soaring to 104 in Manhattan, Kansas State coach Vince Gibson expressed the desire for the hot weather to remain through Saturday when the Wildcats host Utah State.

"If it's hot we'll have the advantage," he said, noting that the humidity at Logan, Utah, isn't like that of the Kansas plains.

University of Kansas coach Don Fambrough said he didn't push his players too hard and began tapering off in preparation for Washington State University's visit to Lawrence Saturday.

Fambrough said the rest of the week's practices would be closed and held in Memorial Stadium so the Jayhawks could get used to the artificial turf.

At Stillwater, Oklahoma State University coach Floyd Gass said the heat didn't wilt the enthusiasm of the Coyboys as they prepared for the invasion by Mississippi State.

Emphasis was placed on the kicking game. A school spokesman said advanced ticket sales indicate the crowd might surpass 30,000 for the opener.

Nebraska coach Bob Devaney said the Cornhuskers showed improvement both as "far as energy and execution were concerned" in getting ready for the Oregon game in Lincoln.

Devaney said an outbreak of the flu "concerns me more than injuries. We've had four or five players out each day with the flu recently."

It was 96 degrees at Columbia and Missouri coach Al Onofrio said the Tigers couldn't accomplish much in the way of preparing for Stanford.

And if it is hot again in Columbia Saturday, Tiger fullback Bill Mauser doesn't think it would be a help or hindrance to either team.

"Good football teams aren't going to let a thing like the weather affect their performance," he said.

Oklahoma, one of two conference teams not playing this weekend, suffered a setback when it was learned second team middle linebacker Gary Baccus was lost for the season.

Coach Chuke Fairbanks said Baccus never fully recovered from an arm injury sustained last spring.

"We were counting on him as a major factor in the defense this year," said Fairbanks.

Iowa State, the other Big Eight team idle this weekend, was bolstered by the return of sophomore tailback Moses Moore, who had been out for a week with a knee injury.

Quarterback Dean Carlson's arm was stiff and George Amundson, who has split his time between tailback and quarterback, filled in.

Touring Congressman Says U.S. Lags In Heroin Addiction Curbs

WASHINGTON (AP) — A congressman just back from a worldwide look at the narcotics problem says the United States alone is failing to make headway against heroin addiction.

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., says Japan reports stamping out a widespread heroin problem in 10 years through a massive campaign based on appeals to family and national pride and strict law enforcement.

In Hong Kong, he says, officials claim a cure rate of 40 per cent through a harsh treatment program which places addicts in work camps and takes them off drugs abruptly and completely.

"I think these reports are questionable," Edwards said in an interview Thursday, "but there is no doubt that the United States stands practically alone in the world in the size and seriousness of its heroin problem."

Edwards, chairman of a House judiciary subcommittee studying legislative proposals for rehabilitating addicts, said he was most impressed by the British approach.

Contrary to popular belief, he said, the British do not hand out heroin free to addicts but have set up 16 clinics in London, each headed by a psychiatrist, where addicts can get medical treatment and a wide range of help and advice.

If the psychiatrist thinks it necessary, he can prescribe heroin for the addict, but the prescription must be filled each day at the addict's local pharmacy and renewed at the clinic every week, keeping the addict under the psychiatrist's care.

On the law-enforcement side, Edwards said, the English have tough criminal penalties for drug pushers.

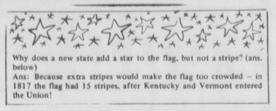

"Marijuana-sniffing dogs are extremely effective," he said, "but they don't work with heroin because they become addicted to it."

Edwards said one explanation for the high cure rate claimed in Hong Kong is that the heroin obtainable there is so pure it cannot be injected into the veins but must be sniffed.

Edwards said he is convinced the United States must first regard heroin addiction as a medical, not a criminal, problem, if it is to start solving it.

He also says greater emphasis should be placed on developing sensing devices to detect heroin being smuggled into the United States.

Heroin being used by GIs in Vietnam is also of high quality, he said, posing added troubles for them when they return to the United States and find the unable to satisfy their needs.

Why does a new state add a star to the flag, but not a stripe? (ans. below)

Ans: Because extra stripes would make the flag too crowded — in 1817 the flag had 15 stripes, after Kentucky and Vermont entered the Union!

Cost Of Living Council Makes Policy Rulings

WASHINGTON (AP) — Here is the 13th set of questions and answers released Thursday by the Cost of Living Council on President Nixon's 90-day wage-price freeze. The answers represent policy rulings.

Q. If a worker is hired on a probationary basis and the established practice of the company is to increase his wage rate at the end of the probationary period, may he receive this wage increase during the freeze?

A. Yes. The probationary period is similar to an apprenticeship or learners' program and the wage increase may be granted if the probationary period for the job does not exceed three months.

Q. Can an employer give employees no-interest, no-maturity loans or other grants in lieu of pay increases?

A. No. Loans or grants may only be made according to an established system for making such loans or grants. A new system may not be developed which in effect provides a pay increase ruled out by the freeze.

Q. If an agreement has been reached between a company and an employee specifying that part of the employee's salary will be held by the company until the end of the company's fiscal year as a bonus, may the employees receive this held pay if the end of the fiscal year falls during the freeze?

A. Yes. The binder does not constitute increased compensation, but is a return of previously earned salary.

Q. A supplier has long-term contracts with his customers. Before the freeze, he raised his price and charged the new price to customers who were renewing their contracts. May he charge the higher price to customers who renew their contracts during the freeze or new customers of the same class?

A. Yes, if the supplier had substantial transactions on the same commodity or service to the same class of purchaser at the higher price during the base period.

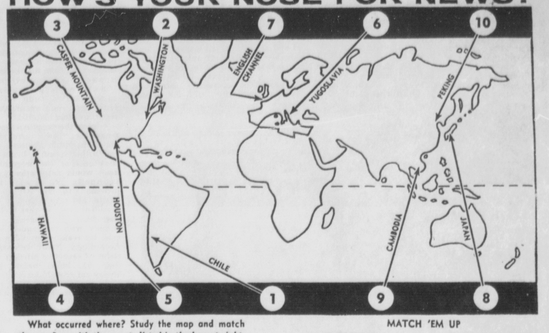

Q. What is the ceiling price for a long-term purchase and contract calling for delivery during the freeze period?

A. There are two different rules which are applied to this type of contract:

—If the item is standardized item such as a commercial aircraft, the ceiling is calculated using the substantial volume of transactions rule based on prices which were realized on shipments during the base period.

—If the product is a unique product or service, such as a large building or very large scale generator, the contractor may use the ceiling price realized during the base period on comparable products or services in the same locality; or if no such comparable product can be found, the contractor may use the mark-up received during the base period on the most nearly similar product or service applied to the unit direct cost or net invoice cost.

Identity Of Man Found In River Unknown

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. (AP) — Callaway County authorities have had no luck in their efforts to identify the partially decomposed body of a man found in the Missouri River east of here on Aug. 20.

The grim discovery was made while sheriff's deputies searched the area for an Algoa Reformatory escapee.

The youth, Karl Ray Davidson, 17, who authorities believe landed astolen boat in the area after coming upstream from Jefferson City, is still at large.

The Callaway County coroner, who estimated the unidentified man died Aug. 18 or 19, described him as about five feet, nine inches in height and weighing around 160 pounds. He was believed to have been about 50.

Q—Which is sweeter, cane or beet sugar?

A—Pure cane sugar and pure beet sugar do not differ in sweetness. When the sugar is refined, there is no difference in the chemical composition of sugar obtained from either of these plants.

40 Attend Crops Tour

BLOOMFIELD — Approximately 40 participated in a soils and crops tour conducted in the Stoddard County by Extension personnel recently.

Seventeen varieties of soybeans were shown and discussed by Dr. Leo Duclos, Research Agronomist from the University of Missouri Delta Center at Portageville, at a soybean variety experimental plot being conducted on the Harold Lumsden farm near Essex. Two new varieties including R-68-105, a Race 3 soybean cyst nematode resistant variety of Dare breeding, and Cutler, an early variety simular to Clark 63 and Kent, were discussed in detail.

The benefits of crop rotation in helping to keep soybean cyst nematode under control were seen in a soybean field on the James Ross farm. A portion of the field on which soybeans were produced last year following two years of corn showed heavy nematode damage whereas the remainder of the field on which corn was produced four years prior to this season showed no sign of nematode.

The effect of Fumazone 86-a relatively new funigant-in reducing nematode damage was seen in a field of soybeans infested with Race 4 nematode on the Jerry Snider farm. A good response is evident in plots where this fumigant was applied at the rate of one gallon per acre, whereas a slight response is being shown where two quarts per acre were applied.

Grain drying and storage facilities suitable for handling grain sorghum were seen and discussed on the Triplett Brothers and W. L. Conner farms. A continuous flow drier which will dry approximately 100 bushels of corn containing 25 to 30 percent moisture per hour was seen on the Triplett farm. Less expensive bin drying facilities which will dry approximately 75 bushels of corn containing 25 to 30 percent moisture per hour was seen on the Conner farm.

The new Delcott 277 variety of cotton was seen on the Walter Lane farm. This variety is an early-maturing, high yielding variety that features good disease resistance, including resistance to both Fusarium and Verticulum wilts and fiber of good staple length and quality.

Joe Scott, State Extension Agronomy Specialist from the University's Delta Center, also assisted with this event.

Recreation Area For M.U. Students

COLUMBIA — A top priority item of students at the University of Missouri — they wanted it so badly they agreed to pay for it — will be available for use in a matter of weeks.

It is a free play recreation area which is being incorporated into the UMC campus program, at a site bounded by College and Virginia avenues, Porter street and the parking lot of the Rollins residence hall group. It is within two blocks of residence halls and married student housing in which nearly 4,500 students live.

Hathman Construction Co., of Columbia is the contractor for grading, hard surfacing and lighting the area on a low bid of $99,400. UMC purchased over a period of years 14 pieces of property costing some $518,000 for the site some 24,000 square feet in size.

Into the recreation area will be installed eight hard - surfaced tennis courts, a hard - surfaced area suitable for three basketball or volleyball courts, with a curbing to permit flooding for ice skating in the winter; a turf area for football and soccer, and the southeast corner left in its natural wooded state for picknickers are for those who just want to get away from the brick and mortar of the campus.

The tennis and basketball - volleyball areas will be fenced and lighted and external boundaries will be lighted. Sixteen other tennis courts in the gymnasium area also are lighted for evening free play.

Students themselves will have their say on how the area is used. It will be for unscheduled free play, and not available for physical education, athletics or intra - mural sports. It will offer an energy outlet for students not involved in organized UMC activities.

Other recreation areas of the campus are earmarked on a priority basis, such as physical education - intramurals, athletics - intramurals, physical education - athletics, and some only for intercollegiate athletic teams. Physical education, for instance, controls areas near Rothwell Gymnasium until class schedules end; intramurals have first priority on areas near Rollins Spring area and new fields at the campus east extremity; the athletic department controls areas near the stadium and athletic dressing rooms.

Three years ago the Missouri Student Association asked that a portion of student activity fees be earmarked for capital items, with recreation area as a top priority. The earmarked funds accumulated to a point this year that the area can be financed.

In long - range UMC plans, the area immediately west of the free -play recreation area — now mostly in private ownership — is viewed as a future site for physical education fields. They, too, could become useful to students for recreational purposes after classes. But that addition, if indeed it is carried to completion, appears to be years away despite needs of the physical education department which has seen its playing fields eroded by the mall, the Natatorium, the Mathematics Science building, and the ROTC drill field.

While the physical education department, which offers required courses for underclassmen and for upperclassmen and graduate students preparing for teaching careers, and supervises the intramural program, will not benefit directly from the free play area, it will, indirectly, through lessening of pressure. In tennis, for instance, all courts are required in season for physical education classes until 3:30 o'clock; eight others at that time are turned over to intercollegiate athletics for varsity and freshman teams. As a consequence, student tennis players who are not members of organized teams have a difficult time in locating courts during normal playing hours. The eight new courts will be particularly beneficial to the tennis buffs not in organized sports.

Congress Tangles With Executive Privilege

WASHINGTON — Executive privilege -- the President's asserted right to withhold information from Congress -- is firmly established in precedent if not law. George Washington was the first chief executive to invoke the privilege, in 1796, and at least 17 of his successors have done so. President Nixon is the latest.

Nixon's hand was forced when the Senate Foreign Relations Committee voted, July 29, to suspend all foreign military aid unless the Defense Department turned over its five - year plan for the program. The committee acted under authority of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, which provides that any congressional panel dealing with foreign aid can demand from the executive branch any pertinent "document, paper, communication, audit, review, finding, recommendation, report or other material."

OLD WORLD LOOK characterizes grape harvesting in New York's Keuka Lake (Crooked Lake) area despite use of immense mechanical pickers.

Unless the executive agency provides the requested materials within 35 days, the act further specifies, funds for the portion of the program at issue would automatically be stopped. However, the provision to cut off funds would not take effect if the President certified that he had forbidden the agency to comply with the request and gave his reasons for doing so. Accordingly, Nixon entered a claim of executive privilege on Aug. 31, hours before the 35-day aid - cutoff deadline.

In explaining his action, the President said "it would not be in the public interest" to provide the committee with the material it sought. Other Presidents have offered the same justification. Grover Cleveland, for example, asserted in 1886 that "the public interest would not be promoted" by furnishing the Senate Judiciary Committee with information on dismissal of Republican officeholders.

The most serious clash between the White House and Capitol Hill over executive privilege occurred in 1948, when President Truman issued a directive barring disclosure of any loyalty files to Congress. The House thereupon approved a bill "directing all executive departments and agencies ... to make available to ... all ... committees of the House ... and the Senate, information which may be deemed necessary to enable them to properly perform the duties delegated to them by Congress." The bill never reached the floor of the Senate.

In a sense, executive privilege contributed to the downfall of the late Sen. Joseph R. McCarthy (R Wis.). During the 1954 Army - McCarthy hearings the senator sought information on a private meeting between Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. and Army Counsel John Adams. President Eisnenhower proceeded to forbid any testimony on the meeting. When McCarthy persisted, Brownell sharply reminded him that responsibility for enforcement of federal law rested in the executive branch and could not "be usurped by an indivisual who may seek to set himself above the laws of our land."

The question of executive privilege forms only a part of the wider debate on secrecy in government. Publication of the Pentagon Papers gave rise to demands from the public and the press for reform of classification procedures. President Nixon has indicated he will initiate such reforms.

Meanwhile, more than a dozen bills aimed at bringing the Central Intelligence Agency under greater legislative control have been introduced in the House and the Senate. And the Senate Foreign Relations Committee acknowledged this year for the first time that Radio Free Europe and Radio Liberty had been subsidized by the CIA. Congress is demonstrating anew the wide range of legislative privilege.

How Much Sickness Can Cuba Stand

Shortage of water, overcrowded living conditions and Communist administrative inefficiency are revealed in the following interview, told by Serafin Gomez Lopez;

"For the past three years our building, and those all around us, has not had running water. Living conditions are awful, particularly since we have no water to flush our toilets. Well, the government sends water tank trucks to each neighborhood in the city and the people must go out with buckets and carry water to their apartments. Imagine living on the ninth or tenth floor of one of those buildings! Elevators often don't work and the people have to carry everything up the stairs.

(Cement production that should be used to repair water mains and reservoirs goes instead into military construction.)

"Natural gas for cooking is unavailable for weeks at a time. Repairmen tell us that the lack of gas is due to old pipes and worn - out equipment at the gas plant."

"Then there is incredible bureaucratic mismanagement to contend with. If a leak or break in the gas line occurs within 40 inches of the cooking stove, it is the responsibility of the tenant to repair it. But no one can get pipe, or even tape to wrap around the leak, and the gas is shut off by the government.

"Most Cubans now cook on portable kerosene or alcohol lamps."

More about Communist mismanagement in state planning comes through in the testimony of Manuel Colina Cruz, who says the government is ruining rich tobacco lands:

"I was born and raised in Manicaragua, Las Villas Province, one of the richest areas in which black and blonde tobacco have traditionally been grown. These tobaccos formed the basis for the manufacture of the once world - famous Havana cigars.

"The regime has plowed up the whole area, destroying valuable tobacco seedling beds and curing sheds, replacing them with Pangola grass. They say they are going to establish pastures for dairy cattle."

Even dairy products do not reach the Cuban people; they are an item of export to pay for Fidel Castro's expensive military establishment. Partly as a result of atrocious diet, tuberculosis and other diseases have reached epidemic proportions.

Dr. Jose Gonzalez Barrios spoke of the spread of tuberculosis and the Communist reaction amid the need for more workers.

"Mobile x-ray units which used to make regular visits to labor centers in the countryside and the cities now operate sporadically. Public announcements which used to warn the populace to watch for symptoms of tuberculosis are nonexistent today. Finally, the government will not excuse anybody from work until they literally drop in their tracks. As a result, when TB patients come to us they are in a very advanced stage of the disease. (Tuberculosis increased from 1,177 cases per 100,000 population in 1958 to 3,909 per 100,000 in 1964. No figures have been available since 1964.)

"The principal reasons for the alarming TB epidemic in Cuba are:

"1.-- Crowded, unhealthy living conditions both at home and in labor camps;

"2. -- Scarcity of vitamins and drugs to treat the patients;

"3. -- Broken - down X-ray equipment and inferior chemicals and plates received from Communist countries.

"4. -- Poor diet, and over-work.

"Hepatitis has increased to the extent that it may be considered of epidemic proportions. It is so bad, in fact, that the Ministry of Public Health has warned doctors not to discuss the disease. Again, we have no medicines to treat the patient, and the situation will inevitably get worse."

Pediatrician Dr. Elena Valasquez Acevedo has this to say:

"In one district of Havana alone, we registered between January and June of 1969 2,000 new cases of tuberculosis among children. The incidence of TB is even greater because we treated children up to only 14 years of age. My district had a total of 30,000 residents.

"We prescribe more and better food for the patients, but it is simply not available. We also prescribe better housing, but this is only a dream. So are medicines. But the worst thing of all is that the government will rarely excuse anyone from hard labor, is suspicious that the doctors are working against the regime and seldom take our recommendation."

Doctor Jaime Prieto worked for the government in an out-patient clinic in Havana. He did so from early 1968, when he was prevented from continuing his private practice, until he was able to escape in December of 1969.

"For nearly two years, I examined an average of 1,000 patients monthly in the out-patient clinic. Ninety per cent of them were suffering from respiratory illness. These illnesses often developed into pneumonia among ill-nourished children. I do not know how many died. The Ministry of Public Health no longer issued statistics of this sort. (Infant mortality has increased from 31.3 in 1957 to 37.6 in 1966, per 1,000 live births.)

"Last spring (1969), about 75 per cent of our patients also suffered from gastroenteritis. Minor diseases, such as infectious fungus and the mange also increased. Mange did not exist among humans in Cuba prior to 1959 -- except in very rare cases.

"Intestinal parasitic cases have gone up astronomically. In addition to crowded living conditions and the scarcity of food and medicines, intentinal parasites have risen because of contaminated food. Social disease is rampant." (There were 46 cases of symphilis per 100,000 population in 1958 and 1,863 per 100,000 in 1964, the last year that figures were available.

Youths in specialized schools are no better off than the balance of the Cuban population. One youth, Andres Perez Perez, tells about his life in the Andres Gonzalez Lines fishing school. He and seven others managed to escape from the school last April, were captured and imprisoned but escaped again in December through the U. S. Naval BAse of Guantanamo. Here is what he says:

"There are normally 1,200 students at the fishing school. We learn to fish on the high seas. While at sea on the fishing vessel, Cherna, I learned that the captains and first mate were Russians. The captain's name was Alexander Soldatov."

"There were ten Russian crew members, as well. All of them were in charge of the most important parts of the vessel -- engines, radar, sonar and the like. Cu... common labo... ing in two 12-hour sh...

"However, the most important thing is that the ship came from Spain, the electronic equipment, fishing lines, hooks and the like came from Japan. The Soviets supplied nothing. If the United States persuaded its allies not to provide these items, both Cuba and Russia would be in trouble."

POLLY'S POINTERS

Overflow of Gasoline Causes Her Pet Peeve

By POLLY CRAMER

DEAR POLLY—My Pet Peeve concerns gas station attendants who insist on filling the gas tank past its capacity in order to sell another few cents worth of gasoline. At times the tank overflows not only onto the car but on the pavement, which creates a potential hazard.—MRS. C. M.

Polly's Problem

DEAR POLLY—I would like to know how to remove lime formations from an otherwise good aluminum tea kettle. What can be used to dissolve this thick crust on the lining?—LAURA

DEAR POLLY—I have a very simple answer for Ann S. who wants to remove snapshots from old photo albums that have the pictures glued or pasted to black pages. I have reclaimed such pictures many times. Immerse the page in water and leave it soaking long enough to loosen the glue or paste. When the picture is pulled away, the black paper left on the back will wipe off very easily if gently brushed with a paper towel. (Polly's note—I used a silver knife blade.) Dry the pictures by placing between paper towels for awhile. Keep handling and rearranging on clean towels to keep any fuzz from sticking to them. Work on just a few at a time and, when almost dry, place weights on top to hold them so they dry without curling. I have found the writing on the backs will appear clear and legible. (Polly's note—Some inks could run or dissolve.) Snapshots are washed after their original chemical bath when being developed but if Ann S. is distrustful of this she could experiment with one less valuable snapshot and I think she will be delighted with the results.—JESSIE

Gentlemen:

Last year the 1970 Cotton Carnival showed no improvements. The rides and activities were the same as the have been for the past five years. Rose City Rides are old and delapitated, and people are becoming tired of the rides, social and moral qualities of its personnel. If you will recall a few months ago the downtown merchants sponsored a carnival in which there was a larger selection of mechanical rides for the younger generation, and the carnivals personnel had a good moral background, and were always neat and clean, and let me add that the rides were fairly new and in very good condition, unliked Rose City Rides which looked and sounded like a quick wind would force them to collapse. I know that if the downtown merchants can find decent rides that the American Legion can too! The activities are not so bad but, if you really put forth more effort in finging better mechanical rides and new things to entertain all ages of people, the 1971 Cotton Carnival would be much better, and would also be a great acomplishment to the Sikeston American Legion.

Sincerely,
Ray Thompson

An Old Man And Memories

WILLY REMEMBERS. By Irvin Faust. Arbor House. $6.95.

Use of the stream of consciousness technique by an inept writer is comparable to letting a baby play with a loaded pistol: The results can be disastrous.

Faust, happily, is by no means inept. Rather he is a careful stylist who knows very well what he is doing and does it very well. The result, "Willy Remembers," is a well-stirred blend of an old man's muddled memories told with humor and compassion.

The old man is Willy T. Kleinhans, a Spanish-American War veteran and proud of it. The story he tells is his, that of his family, and that of the United States during the years of his long life span.

And the story is an absorbing one, provided the reader is willing to sit still for Willy's abrupt mental leaps through time. Leaps that carry from the battlegrounds of Cuba to the fighting in World War II — a war that cost Willy his favorite son.

As for the unfavorite son, he also is a literary charmer. All that ever interested the boy was pole-vaulting and Willy's anguished reaction to his son taking a college degree in pole-vaulting and continuing to vault until he is in to his 40s makes for some of the funniest reading in this generally very funny book.

New Camera Valuable Tool in Class Room

ROCHESTER, N.Y. — Supplementing traditional learning tools, camera and film are increasingly making the classroom scene. Photographically produced visuals are producing more sophisticated and practical approaches to learning as product technology simplifies the application of the camera as an educational tool.

The new, moderately - priced Kodak Instamatic X-30 camera, with its extended - range electronic exposure control enables the photographer to work around the clock, indoors and out. Its capability for automatic available light photography opens a vast realm of visual note - taking and photo documentation to the student.

Whether recording a professor's vital chalkboard diagrams before the last bell, photographing a prominent speaker in the campus quadrangle, or enumerating the details of a laboratory setup, the Instamatic X-30 camera is a valuable adjunct to pen and paper.

The new freedom afforded by the available light capabilities of this camera allows the student to record the wealth of information housed in museums and art galleries, and to capture the beauty of magnificent artifacts displayed in glass cases in any kind of light.

When the light level is low, a red - light signal, visible in the viewfinder of the Instamatic X-30 camera, cautions the photographer to use a magicube or to steady the camera on a firm support during the automatic time exposure.

Available light photography, which is free from the distance limitations of flash, allows the student to record first the broad view by photographing the whole display, from the unique porcelain vases displayed in the foregound to the vast regal portrait dominating the background. Then it is easy to fill in with individual shots of key elements of the grouping, adapting gallery lighting to recreate mood and atmosphere.

Pictures with interesting composition can be created by utilizing the perspective of one area opening into another. Because the Instamatic X-30 camera produces in-focus pictures from four feet to infinity, the entire exhibit area will be recorded.

Such an excursion through history in art, will produce a wealth of visual material which can be applied to assignments ranging from thematic photo essays or slide presentations to an in- depth research project for courses in art, humanities, literature, sociology, history and anthropology.

Surplus and duplicate prints, stored in a well - documented album or file, will serve as flash cards in reviewing for an exam or as motivation for future assignments.

All the world becomes a classroom through the perceptive eye of the disciplined observer with a keen sense for making photo fact of the moment.

APPLICANTS FOR FOREIGN SERVICE EMPLOYMENT SOUGHT

WASHINGTON, D. C. – In letters received by my office, Missourians have raised many questions about the operations of the ninety - day program, established by the President, freezing wages, prices and rents.

The new Cost of Living Council, appointed by the President, sets policies during the wage / price freeze period, and the Office of Emergency Preparedness is responsible for program operation.

The Office of Emergency Preparedness has designated regional offices in ten United States cities to carry forward the program. Kansas City is the regional office serving the states of Missouri, Iowa Kansas and Nebraska; and is located at the New Federal Building, Room 142, 601 East 12th Street, Kansas City, Missouri 64106 (816 374-5831).

Question and answer pamphlets from the Cost of Living Council, describing regulations of the wage / price freeze, are available at local Internal Revenue Service offices in every state, including offices in the followg Missouri cities: Kansas City, St. Joseph, St. Louis, Springfield, Clayton, Columbia and Joplin.

The OEP has also arranged for program specialists to be available at the IRS offices to answer inquiries from area residents and to receive, discuss, and investigate reported violations.

In addition, county offices of the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture, have been designated as receiving centers for inquiries by rural citizens on any questions concerning farm prices as well as other aspects of the wage /price freeze program.

Headquarters for the ASCS in Missouri are located at 10th and Walnut Streets, Columbia, Missouri 65201.

FOREIGN SERVICE EXAM. Applicants are currently being sought by the Foreign Service of the Department of State and the U.S. Information Agency in fields of administrative, consular, economic / commercial, political, and cultural / information affairs.

Examinations for employment with the Foreign Service will be held December 4, and all application forms should be completed and returned by October 31.

Tests will be conducted in approximately 300 cities in the United States and abroad, including the following cities in Missouri:

Cape Girardeau, Columbia, Kansas City, Kirksville, St. Louis and Springfield.

Applicants must be between the ages of 21 and 54 by the examination date, and citizens of the United States for at least 7½ years.

Missourians interested in obtaining applications and additional information may write to: Board of Examiners for the U.S. Foreign Service, Department of State, Washington, D.C. 20520.

Frankly Speaking

VOCATIONAL-TECHNICAL EDUCATION FILLS A REAL NEED

Many of the students filling our junior and senior high schools are wandering in an academic no-man's land.

Their physical presence at school is required by their parents or by compulsory attendance laws, but mentally they are truants. They reject their schools and their teachers as irrevelant to their lives and their interests.

For some it is a passing phase. Their motivation will return as they outgrow the difficulties of adolescence. Other exhibit the symptoms of profound alienation that may well lead to a permanent dropout responsibility.

But a sizable segment of our student population has correctly assessed the educational process as it applies to them -- it is irrelevant to their goals, to their interests, to their need to prepare for entering the world of work.

They are not turned off by all education -- they are willing and enthusiastic about preparing now for a future vocation. But they are the victims of an educational psychology that places the highest premium on preparing students for college, regardless of whether a college education is necessary or desirable for a perticular student.

Missouri A Leader

Fortunately for Missourians, our state has committed itself to making vocational= technical education of a very high quality available to all students. A network of 46 area vocational-technical schools--36 of them now actually operating-- will soon span the state.

I gained a firsthand knowledge of our state's need for greatly expanded facilities of this kind during my tenure as chairman of the Governor's Task Force on Vocational-Technical Education when I was Lieutenant Governor.

My interest in this area has continued as a member of the U. S. Senate Education Subcommittee, which has developed the legislation authorizing vitally needed federal support for programs such as the one in Missouri.

The children who are now in school will be earning their living well into the next century. We must privide them with the skills they will need to take advantage of the new opportunities that will be available in the future. These are skills the nation will need, as well, for American pre-eminence in industry and commerce rests, in large measure, upon our sophisticated technology.

Educators, parents, and legislators must themselves be educated to the fact that there is no stigma associated with vocational-technical education.

To paraphrase one sage: The society that heaps undue praise on its philosophers while downgrading its plumbers will find that neither its theories nor its pipes holds water.

Jail Term For Breaking Peace

CHARLESTON---Magistrate T. J. Brown, Jr. sentenced Bobby Kemp to 10 days in jail on a charge of disturbing the peace.

Leroy Maxwell and others, charges with disturbing the peace, withdrew a plea of innocent to the charge and was fined $35.16.

Charges of destroying personal property and disturbing the peace brought fines of $10 on each charge plus costs of $28.50 to Henry Williams. Judge Brown stayed the fines on payment of costs and gave Williams until Sept. 15 to pay the costs.

Jimmy Paul Wood, III, charged with violating minimum speed of 40 miles per hour on Interstate 57, was fined $26.

William Fisher, charged with having no drivers license and no state license plates was levied a $5 fine on each count with $11 cost.

A charge of careless and imprudent driving brought a $21 fine to Richard Arnold Wilson. A $21 fine was assessed James Robert Cade for having expired vehicle license.

An account suit brought by Doctors Fowler and Myre against Charles A. and Annie Hawes was dismissed with prejudice by the doctors.

A charge of felonious assault against A.V. Jackson was dismissed by the state.

Frank B. Young was given to Thursday to employ counsel for his defense on a charge of attempt to commit an offense by stealing. Young was released on $250 cash bond.

$25 Fine On Driving Charge

EAST PRAIRIE--- A charge of driving a motor vehicle w.thout an operator's license brought a $25 fine in police court to Leroy Clark.

Judge J. Marvin Bryan assessed fines of $20 each to Lucille Warren, Jerry Warren and Goldman Ditto. Roger Brooks forfeited a $25 bond, posted on the same charge.

Public intoxication charges brought fines of $20 each to Goldman Ditto, Roberta Beckton, Goldy Crow, Claude Phipps, and Eddie Thurman. Zilform Jackman forfeited his bond of $20 on the same charge.

Floyd Aters and Bryant Johnston each paid $25 fines for peace disturbance and fighting. Edward Cross was assessed a $25 fine for public intoxication and peace disturbance.

A charge of illegal parking brought a $10 fine to Sammie Redd.

Today In U.S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, Sept, 8, the 251st day of 1971. There are 114 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1546, a Spanish expedition landed at what is now St. Augustine, Fla. and founded the first permanent European settlement in North America.

On this date:

In 1664, Peter Stuyvesant surrendered New Amsterdam to the British.

In 1760, Wisconsin came under English control after being French territory.

In 1855, the Crimean War ended.

In 1883, construction of the Northern Pacific Railroad was completed with the driving of the last spike near Garrison, Mont.

In 1934, 134 persons lost their lives in a fire aboard the luxury liner Morro Castle off the New Jersey coast.

In 1935, Sen. Huey Long of Louisiana was shot at Baton Rouge. He died two days later.

Ten years ago: Tunis agreed to permit France to retain a naval base near Bizerte.

Five years ago: There was racial rioting in Atlanta, Ga.

One year ago: Cardinal Richard Cushing resigned as Roman Catholic archbishop of Boston.
